BANNARD OVATION AT CARNEGIE HALL

MAKES TAMMANY THE ISSUE

Declares That an Honest Business Administration Would Save the City Millions Annually.

Tammany Hall is the real issue in this campaign, Otto T. Bannard, Fusion candidate for Mayor, told the mass meeting in Carnegie Hall last night under the auspices of the Republican Club. He defined Tammany as an organization for the promotion of graft, its members living by the people for themselves, and he said amid a burst of laughter that he had known where Tammany Hall was for thirty-five years.

Mr. Bannard did not reach the hall until nearly 10:30 o'clock, having spoken five times in Brooklyn and once on the east side of Manhattan. The audience which filled the great room, far from tiring with the waiting, had apparently its interest in the coming of its favorite candidate only whetted by his delay. When he did appear the demonstration in his honor lasted nearly ten minutes, Mr. Bannard acknowledging it with smiles and bows.

When at last the candidate could make himself heard the stillness following the last burst of enthusiasm was broken for a moment by a single cry far off in one of the upper galleries of "Oh, you Otto." Mr. Bannard joined in the laughter which followed.

Speaking almost entirely without gesture and giving emphasis to his utterances with his voice only and the seriousness of his demeanor, he said:

Mr. Bannard's Speech.

"The issue in this campaign is Tammany Hall, and for thirty-five years I have known where it is located. Tammany is an organized society for the promotion of graft. It lives by the people, on the people, and for themselves, but I think we will put an end to it Nov. 2. It has no business management—neither has the City of New York, but it gets rich and New York gets poor.

"What would you think of a railroad that built the middle sections and then didn't build the ends—forget all about it? What would you think of a railroad that had seventy-eight purchasing agents, each paying different prices? Or fifty-eight kinds of soap at fifty-eight different prices? But still Tammany is not clean.

"This city is suffering not only from plunder, but from waste, from a lack of a business head and a business plan and a business design. When they lay out an improvement their only object is to spend the money, and they never follow it up to see that it is utilized; that any income comes from it, or that any service to the people arises out of it.

"They buy land—they are crazy to buy land—but they do not use it. There is more profit in buying land than in building the schoolhouse. It is quicker. They build docks on the East River and then shortly before they are ready to lease, they forget about them and they are idle and they earn nothing.

"This big loop that connects the two bridges, the Subway loop, is nearly finished. It cost $10,000,000. The plan was to build two subways in Brooklyn, but that is forgotten, laid aside. This loop will be finished, the interest on it is $400,000 a year, and it won't earn anything until the Brooklyn subways are built. In that way they neglect all of the improvements and lose interest in them and on them."

A Little Pipe Story.

"Let me tell you a little story of cast iron pipe. In 1906 cast iron pipe was at its highest price, as some of you know. I knew, because I needed some at that time in a reorganization matter, but all business men decided that it was too high, and it was no time to buy pipe.

"Tammany was in no hurry for this pipe, but it bought 19,500 tons at $33 and $34 a ton. In one year it was worth $22 a ton. They had lost $227,500. But that is just a starter. They laid that pipe from 110th Street to the Harlem River, and then across the Harlem River up Jerome Avenue, under a contract, for $1,065,000.

"When they got it all finished, it suddenly occurred to them that they had no permit from the United States War Department to cross the river. They have not got it yet.

"That is not quite all. They made a contract for $140,000 to asphalt up Jerome Avenue to Macomb's Bridge. As soon as they had finished asphalting it and spent $140,000 they ripped it up and put this pipe down. You don't see the pipe because it is buried—so is your million and a half dollars. It is waste. Now, it is not only waste, there is also graft.

"If I am elected I would like every one who has been grafted, be he the owner of a business block or a push cart or peddler, to come and tell me who stung him. If he cannot tell me the name of the man who robbed him—it may be difficult—but if he will tell me who stung him, I will find a way to get after that man. And I will hang up in the City Hall a sign, 'The Lord helps those who help themselves, but the Lord help the man caught helping himself.'"

Job Hedges Didn't Get Mad.

Before the arrival of Mr. Bannard the audience heard addresses from ex-Mayor Low, who was presented by President Robert C. Morris of the Republican Club as the presiding officer of the evening; Job E. Hedges, who said he would like to be Mayor himself, but "didn't get mad about it and raise a rumpus" when he wasn't nominated; Charles S. Whitman, candidate for District Attorney, and George McAneny, candidate for Borough President of Manhattan.

Mr. Low in his address described Tammany's attitude toward New York in the words of Blücher, Wellington's ally at Waterloo, on a subsequent visit to London: "What a city to sack!"

"That has the true Tammany ring," he added, "only Tammany's process was not usually so dramatic as that suggested by the old Prussian soldier."

Mr. Low said also that he never tired of quoting Richard Croker's statement that he was in politics for his own pocket all the time. That was Tammany's aim always, and the only way to put a stop to it, he said, was to drive it from power.

Of Mr. Gaynor he said it was hard to believe that a man who had made such a splendid fight against John Y. McKane could have lived to lend the cloak of his

TELLS OF CUSTOMS FRAUD.

Weigher Birge Explains How the Spoils Were Divided.

Further evidence as to the extent of the graft among weighers and assistant weighers in the Government Customs Service prior to the recent investigation and prosecutions came out yesterday at the trial of Antonio and Philip Musica before Judge Holt in the United States Circuit Court for conspiracy to defraud the Government upon the importation of cheese. The prosecution is producing the testimony of former weighers who shared in the spoils. On Tuesday George Brehm told how he had taken money from the Musicas for falsifying the weights, and yesterday George E. Birge, an assistant weigher, was called.

Birge introduced the names of others who were weighers at the time of the frauds and who, he said, got some of the money. There was one man named Williams, with whom he had divided money he received from Philip Musica in the presence of Antonio, Philip's father. Birge, like Brehm, is still in the Customs Service, having obtained immunity and a promise of continued employment on condition that he tell what he knew about the frauds.

On cross-examination Birge said yesterday that he took graft in the "sugar cases" and divided up with other employes on that score, but Williams, he declared, was the only one with him on the Musica importations. It is understood that the Government will use Birge in its further investigation and prosecution of the sugar-weighing frauds.

Birge, in telling of the extent to which the arrangement for the recording of false weights was carried, said that the regular thing was to divide the "saving" in duty between the weigher and the importer for whom the falsification was made.

"So," said Charles N. Rushmore, of counsel for the defense, "you are prepared to say that there was a general system of fraud of this kind in the customs service?"

"Yes," said Birge, after a long pause.

"Will you name the other firms that were involved?"

Assistant United States Attorney Buckner and Deputy Attorney General Wickham Smith, who represent the Government, objected and were sustained.

"Did you divide the money that you received from the Musicas with any one else?" asked Mr. Rushmore.

The Government's objections were overruled this time and Birge said he divided it with Brehm and Williams. In answer to a further question Birge declared that no accounts were kept.

"It was a sort of a case of honor among thieves" he remarked.

The case will continue to-day.

BETTING LIVENS A BIT.

Still 2 to 1 on Gaynor—A Bet That Hearst Won't Get 100,000 Votes.

The election betting increased a bit yesterday, and there were indications that within a few days the men who usually lay large wagers will back their opinions of this contest with their money.

Many small bets were placed along Broadway yesterday at 2 to 1 on Gaynor against the field. Several even money bets were made that Hearst would not get 100,000 votes, and that Gaynor will not get more than 75,000 plurality.

Congressman Bennet, Mr. Bannard's campaign manager, declared that he knew of $20,000 in Republican money which was "going begging" at 1 to 2, only $4,000 of it having been placed.

In Wall Street it was said that the betting commissioners had plenty of Gaynor money at their disposal, but were not doing business because the Republican and Hearst backers demanded too long odds. The only bet of any size recorded was one of $500 even that Gaynor would not get more than 25,000 plurality.

BUGEYE SKIPPER DEFIES LAW.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 20.—Authorized by an order of the United States District Court libeling the bugeye Freddie Hayward, Jerome Hall, colored, owner and master, for a debt of $27, a United States Deputy Marshal set out on Saturday to seize the ship. The Marshal found the bugeye tied up in the mouth of Jones's Falls at Samuel McKay's woodyard and went on board. The vessel was apparently untenanted, and the officer having taken possession in the name of the United States Government, set about making himself comfortable on deck.

He was not comfortable long, however, for very soon three stalwart negroes came up from below and without much ado laid hold upon his person.

"Heave that watchman over the side and cast away," said one who seemed to be in command. And over the side the officer went. Then the bugeye, while the law's representative scrambled ashore, got under sail and slipped off toward the Chesapeake.

The deputy marshal got ashore with nothing worse than a ducking in the doubtful waters of the harbor and reported the indignity to his superior, Marshal Langhammer. Langhammer in turn got after District Attorney Rose and the latter put the Federal machinery in Washington in motion. Orders were sent by wireless to the revenue cutter Apache to go in pursuit of the bugeye. That was Saturday.

It was not till yesterday, however, that the Apache actually started after the runaway, and the whereabouts of the Freddie Hayward and the Freddie Hayward's dusky owner and crew has become very vague in the interval.

The cutter, which reached Annapolis this evening, and there took Marshal Langhammer on board, is now hastening down the bay, hoping to overhaul the fugitive. It appears from the documents in the case that the debt for which the bugeye was libeled was incurred in supplying her with the sails with which she made off.

SEEK MORE MURDER CLUES.

Fall River Police on Trail of Another Man in Tiverton Case.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Oct. 20.—The Fall River police Inspectors to-day searched for additional evidence in the Tiverton murder case, particularly with reference to the connection of a man who has not been publicly named, and who, it is alleged, may be charged with having been an accessory.

The authorities of Tiverton continued their search for the head of the murdered girl, although it is generally believed that it would not be found.

ELIMINATE M'CARREN WHILE HE'S HELPLESS

TO SAVE LOCAL TICKETS

Murphy Approached, but Declined to Interfere—Democratic Factions Reconciled on Some Terms.

Brooklyn politicians were greatly stirred last night by a story to the effect that the political head of Senator McCarren, who is now fighting a stubborn battle with death in St. Catherine's Hospital, had been offered by certain of his lieutenants and accepted by his foes as the price of an attempted salvation of the Democratic county and borough tickets. It was not accepted as a pleasing tale.

With the leader lying stricken and helpless, as it was told, those on guard in his camp made desperate by threatened defeat, had bargained with his enemies, offering his leadership as a sacrifice. Of course, this was not done with the knowledge or consent of McCarren himself, and whether those said to have made this bargain will or can keep it remains to be seen. No one directly concerned would admit that such a compact had been entered into, but what men in a position to know did say together with some generally known circumstances seemed give the tale an appearance of truth.

The first whisper of it was suggested in a queer rumor to the effect that Charles F. Murphy, moved by a feeling of sympathy for McCarren in his hour of great distress, had "called off" the Democratic forces opposing his ticket in Brooklyn.

The report was that two members of the Provisional Committee of the Democratic organization in Kings County had visited the Tammany leader and begged him to save the McCarren ticket. Mr. Murphy, as the story ran, out of the goodness of his heart, had told the Kings County Democratic Pary, which is the so-called Delaney organization, and the Allied Committees, to withdraw the nominations they had made in opposition to those of McCarren.

There was this much of truth at least in the report: Two members of the Provisional Committee did call on Mr. Murphy on Tuesday afternoon and did ask him to do something to save the Brooklyn ticket. On the best of authority it was said in Brooklyn last night Mr. Murphy declined to interfere in Brooklyn.

He suggested that if anything was to be done about the matter the committeemen should negotiate directly with the McCarren foes, whom they wanted "called off." As a matter of fact, it was asserted last night, negotiations with the aforesaid foes had already been opened, but up to that time had not effected anything. It was in sheer desperation that the committeemen had gone to Murphy.

Still, according to the story as it came out in Brooklyn last night, the McCarren leader of a South Brooklyn district called up John H. Delaney, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Kings County Democratic Party, on the telephone on Friday last, and asked if Delaney would meet him and one of the nominees on the McCarren ticket. Mr. Delaney is said to have met the two as requested.

The nominee referred to is said to have frankly admitted to Delaney that he felt that he and his fellow candidates were facing defeat. With the support of the Delaneyites and other factions he thought the ticket might win. He is said to have gone on to assure Mr. Delaney that it seemed unlikely that Senator McCarren's health would admit of his taking up the hard work of leadership again.

Mr. Delaney was not satisfied with this. He did not see why his friends who had been opposed to McCarren for years, should now support his ticket. No agreement was then reached. On Monday night the Provisional and Executive Committees of the regular organization met and selected a committee of five to act in the campaign "and otherwise." At the same time the Delaneyites met and talked over the proposal which had been made. They rejected it as too vague and indefinite.

That was how matters stood on Tuesday afternoon, when two of the Provisional Committeemen are said to have visited Mr. Murphy. Then negotiations with Delaney were reopened. A clearer and more satisfactory proposal was submitted. One concession offered, it is said, was the giving to the Delaneyites of representation in the County Committee. This and other pledges offered are believed to have been accepted. Anyhow, the nominations of the Delaneyites were withdrawn, and that faction, or at least most of it, seems to be supporting the McCarren ticket.

The Delaney clan has all along stood for one thing uncompromisingly—the elimination of Senator McCarren as county leader. Up to Tuesday afternoon it had resolutely rejected any and all other concessions to become "regular." That it had suddenly changed its attitude on Tuesday Brooklyn politicians found it difficult to believe last night.

Because of an irregularity in the make-up of the petition the ticket of the Allied Committees has been withdrawn and will not appear on the ballot. This movement had indorsed the candidacy of Alfred E. Steers, who heads the Republican-Fusion ticket in Brooklyn, as well as several other nominees on that ticket.

George V. S. Williams, leader of the Kings County Democratic Party, which has been regarded more or less as the creation of Tammany Leader Murphy, to be used as a weapon against McCarren, told a TIMES reporter at midnight last night that an agreement looking to the harmonizing of the Democratic factions in Kings had been reached at a conference on Tuesday night. Representatives of the regular Democratic organization, the Kings County Democratic Party, and the allied committees composed of several groups of independent Democrats attended.

"A complete understanding satisfactory to all concerned was reached, and we are now all united not only for the Democratic city ticket, but for the borough ticket placed in the field by the McCarren organization," he said.

"What was the basis of the understanding; what concessions were made?" Mr. Williams was asked.

"There were no concessions. We felt we were all Democrats and ought to unite for the Democratic ticket."

Asked if the elimination of Senator McCarren as leader was involved, Mr. Williams said that the Senator's name was "mentioned only once or twice and then casually."

Deputy Controller John H. McCooey, candidate for Borough President, said that the only information he had was that all the factions were now united and supporting the ticket.

In order not to miss the many notable features in next Sunday's Times it is important to place orders with news dealers to-day.

NAMES ANOTHER SPY IN REVOLUTION CAMP

BOURTSEFF IS HIS ACCUSER

Russian Revolutionary Leaders Do Not Know Kaplinsky, but Have Had Inquiries from Bourtseff.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 20.—The Central Committee of the Union of Russian Socialistic Workingmen has denounced Sroul Kaplinsky, well known to the New York branch of the organization as a provocative agent of the Czar's police. This action is based on information furnished to the Central Committee by Vladimir Bourtseff, whom I saw to-day at his home in the Montrouge quarter.

Bourtseff has just started here a bi-monthly journal called "La Cause Commune," which, he says, is to be the organ of the entire opposition to Russia without distinction of party, with the sole object of achieving political liberty. The first number issued contains an appeal for the union of all elements hostile to autocratic oppression, and sets forth a long list of provocative agents of the Russian police who have masqueraded as militant patriots.

Bourtseff denies the report which has been spread in Europe that Kaplinsky was a member of the Central Committee of the Union of Russian Socialistic Workingmen. There had never, he said, been any question of provocative action in the Central Committee itself but Kaplinsky was an active and militant member of the union, well known in Jewish revolutionary circles.

He is a mechanician by trade and distinguished himself especially by the installation of clandestine printing establishments. He was also founder of the first secret journal in Russia in the Jewish language, and has taken part in the revolutionary movement for nearly fifteen years.

His first relations with the police, it is said, began in 1898, when he was caught in the act of carrying on a clandestine printing business. Threatened then with deportation, he consented, Bourtseff says, to betray the cause and placed himself at the orders of the celebrated Chief of Police of Moscow, Zoubatoff.

Dr. Paul Kaplan, Secretary of the Russian Social Revolutionists, and other officers of that organization professed ignorance last night of the man Kaplinsky, whom Bourtseff has denounced as one of the Russian Government spies or "agents provacateurs," posing as a member of the revolutionist organization and who was said to be well known here.

"The name Kaplinsky is new to me," said Dr. Kaplan, who is acquainted with all of the prominent members of the Revolutionary Party in this city. "I cannot recall him as being a member of our organization. He is evidently, by the name, a Pole, and although many of the Poles meet with the Russian revolutionists, I have never heard of one by the name of Kaplinsky who holds any prominent place among the sympathizers of Russian liberties here."

Dr. Kaplan admitted that he had received a letter a few days ago from Vladimir Bourtseff asking him to make inquiries regarding a supposed spy in this city, but it was ascertained that the man was not in New York.

It will be remembered that early in September Bourtseff was reported to be on the point of denouncing as a Russian spy Alexander M. Evalenko, one of the wealthiest and most active Russian revolutionists in New York. Evalenko has been charged with being in the secret service of the Russian Government before, but successfully disproved the charges. He immediately asked for a court of inquiry here, and offered, if Bourtseff made formal charges, to go to Paris at his own expense and clear himself of all suspicion. A few days later Bourtseff stated that he had as yet said nothing about Evalenko, but that he did know of two active Russian agents procovateurs here whom he might denounce as spies in a short time. In view of his ignorance of the supposed Pole, Kaplinsky, Dr. Kaplan was disposed to doubt that the latter was one of the men referred to originally by Bourtseff.

TAFT SEES A ROUND-UP.

Cow Punchers Chase Wild Steers to Show Him How It's Done.

GREGORY, Tex., Oct. 20.—President Taft had a touch of rural ranch life this afternoon. He rode a cow pony to a round-up of 1,200 head of cattle on the Rincon section of his brother's ranch, saw two wild steers cut out of the bunch and roped, witnessed the branding of several calves, and saw half a hundred steers taking a spectacular dip in a disinfecting tank through which they had to swim for 50 feet.

A rattlesnake with seventeen rattles and a button was killed at the Rincon ranch house shortly before the President arrived from the palatial farmhouse of his brother, Charles P. Taft, at La Quinta. The President's horse "Sam" spied a dead snake just as the President was about to take the saddle to go to the round-up, and bucked viciously a number of times. After President Taft had once got safely astride, however, Sam was a good horse.

The President began his day with a game of golf with his brother. While these two were on the links, Secretary of War Dickinson and Capt. Butt, the President's aid, were at the fresh water tanks trying to duplicate their performance of yesterday when they bagged fifty-nine wild ducks. They got thirty-eight ducks. Mr. Dickinson wore an old khaki outfit to-day that was anything but indicative of the office he holds.

To-morrow afternoon the President will visit the town of Taft, named for him and where at the last election he received the vote of every man.

SUFFRAGE CHEERS FOR MRS. PANKHURST

PREDICTS VICTORY AT HOME

Believes Her Countrywomen Will Get the Ballot Within Two Years—Wins Customs Men When She Lands.

Mrs. Pankhurst, the first and original Suffragette, founder and leader of the movement in England, which found less vehement followers in this country, arrived in New York last evening on the White Star steamer Oceanic. She was greeted at the pier with wild hurrahs and the English slogan: "Vote for Women."

The Equality League of Self-Supporting Women, under whose auspices Mrs. Pankhurst will speak at a big mass meeting in Carnegie Hall on the 25th, was at the pier in as many numbers as the customs authorities would allow, and carried a big black-lettered yellow banner. Mrs. Pankhurst's English Suffragette banner of purple, white, and green was waved aloft from a yellow ribbon-decked throng of women as Mrs. Stanton Blatch, President of the L. S. S. W.'s, hurried forward to greet the leader, and Miss Kate Keegan, wearing an English Suffragette sash of the same colors, embraced Mrs. Pankhurst warmly, for she was a fellow-prisoner with her on her first visit to Holloway Jail.

Mrs. Pankhurst, a small, gentle-looking woman in a gray checked traveling wrap, wearing a gray fur hat encircled with a mauve veil, looks younger than the pictures which have reached America before her—more like a nice, home-keeping mother than a political leader. She speaks in a low, unoratorlike voice.

Faces the Reporters' Fire.

As soon as Mrs. Pankhurst could get away from the cameras she was driven to the Woman's University Club, at 17 East Twenty-sixth Street, where she met the reporters and answered a rapid fire of questions. There were no banners at the University Club, which if it has suffrage proclivities does not say so aloud. Even Miss Keegan doffed her purple and green "Votes for Women" sash, and only a reporter, who didn't know and brought in a slender cane tied with a big bow of yellow ribbon, marred the appearance of quiet respectability of the gathering when it settled down to business.

Mrs. Pankhurst was decided in her statements. According to her the English women are on the immediate verge of getting the votes for women which the suffragettes have been demanding. Asked about the condition here as compared with that in England, and which country had a chance of getting the suffrage first, Mrs. Pankhurst said:

"I come from the storm centre to tell you what we are doing. I do not know about conditions here, but if you are going to have suffrage over here before we do you will have to hurry up. We cannot wait for you to make up your minds. If the present Government in England continues in office until the end of the term—and that will be two years more—we shall have suffrage. The conditions over here are very different. You have not as many legends as we have. I am a practical politician, have been a politician and a woman suffragist all my life, but I know only English politics."

Asked if the militant movement of the suffragettes would not become more and more serious until it became a bloody fight, as has been said, the suffragette leader said:

The Cause Worth Fighting For.

"Many people make wild statements. There was never anything worth while obtained without fighting for it; but if the politicians are becoming alarmed it shows that we are going to get what we are asking for. The fact that women have gone to prison has influenced the workingmen more than anything else could. When they know we have suffered they want to ask us the reason why.

"I am always told that women should stay at home and darn the stockings and not want to vote," said one woman who was present.

In response to a question in regard to the hardships of her prison life, Mrs. Pankhurst said:

"The hardest thing that has ever happened to me has been not to be able to vote. The treatment we receive from the police varies according to the orders they have received. There are many of them who sympathize with us. The A and B divisions about Westminster are entirely with us; they have seen so much of us, and wear badges under their coats."

How the Men View Suffrage.

Asked if many of the masculine relatives of the suffragettes were opposed to the militant methods of their wives, sisters, and sweethearts, she said:

"I think the women usually have sufficient influence to gain the men's favor for the work. If the men ever do object when the women go to prison they are exceedingly proud of it afterward. And as for chivalry, the Australian women, who have the vote, are shocked by the lack of chivalry with which we other women are treated. I find that my suffragette badge is always an incentive to courtesy."

"A man looked at my badge in the car the other day and then gave me a seat," interpolated Miss Keegan.

"Will women get equal pay for equal work if they get the vote?" Mrs. Pankhurst was asked.

"They will if they have good sense," she replied.

Mrs. Pankhurst was wearing a fac simile of her prison badge on a green, purple, and white ribbon, but the handsomest of her Suffragette badges was worn by a man who escorted her off the steamer. He opened his coat and displayed it. It was Deputy Collector Williams, and he had begged for it, and she gave it to him.

Mrs. Pankhurst and Miss Pethick, who accompanied her, had a large trunk full of suffrage literature, on which they had to pay $7 duty, but they recovered a part of the money immediately for the customs men gathered around them and were the first purchasers of English Suffragette documents.

"All the men on the steamer," Miss Pethick said, "asked for the date of the Carnegie Hall meeting, and announced that they should be present in front seats."

MORGAN BUYS MEREDITH MSS.

Originals of Three Famous Novels Given to Old Servant Bring $4,000.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 20. — J. P. Morgan bought to-day for $4,000 three manuscript works of the late George Meredith. They are "Diana of the Crossways," "Lord Ormont and His Aminta," and "The Amazing Marriage."

The manuscripts were given by Mr. Meredith to an old servant, who was amazed to discover their value. They are being sent to New York.

PEARY WARNED POLAR BODY.

Lecointe Attaches Importance to Letter on Cook Written Last Year.

BRUSSELS, Oct. 20.—M. Lecointe, director of the Brussels Observatory, says that Commander Peary sent to the International Polar Association in May, 1908, an anticipatory detailed disquisition against Dr. Cook's supposed enterprise which, if published, would inject an unexpected element into the polar controversy.

11,000 MEN TO GUARD CZAR.

Italy Will Post Them Along 75 Miles of Railway Near Racconigi.

TURIN, Oct. 20.—It is officially announced that the Czar will arrive at the Italian frontier on the morning of Oct. 23. From the frontier to Racconigi, a distance of seventy-five miles, 11,000 soldiers are guarding the railroad. The Czar's train will pass outside of Turin, arriving at Racconigi in the afternoon. The Russian monarch will be received at the station by the King, his Cabinet, and the members of his Court, while the Queen will await his Majesty at the castle.

RIZZO CASE TO JURY TO-DAY.

Arguments in Utica Murder Trial to be Made This Morning.

UTICA, N. Y., Oct. 20.—The trial of Theodore Rizzo, charged with the murder of Theresa Procopio and Freddy Infusino, was virtually brought to a close this afternoon, and it is expected that the case will be in the hands of the jury at noon to-morrow.

At 4:30 o'clock District Attorney Willis announced that the prosecution rested. J. A. Goldstone, attorney for the defendant, announced that no witnesses would be sworn in the prisoner's behalf, and asked for an adjournment until morning, when, he said, he would be prepared to address the jury.

It developed during the examination of witnesses for the prosecution this afternoon that Rizzo had on three occasions during his confinement at the jail made voluntary confessions regarding his connection with the crime. He said he had been drinking the night before and did not know why he had committed the crime.

MRS. G. G. HUBBARD KILLED.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—Mrs. Gardner G. Hubbard, widow of the first President of the American Bell Telephone Company, was thrown from her automobile and killed this evening in a collision with a street car. The accident occurred at 6:05 o'clock at the corner of Newcombe Street and Connecticut Avenue, in the northwestern portion of this city. Mrs. Hubbard was taken to the Garfield Hospital, where she died at 8:30 o'clock without regaining consciousness.

With Mrs. Hubbard in her automobile at the time of the accident was her sister, Mrs. Charles Nash of Morristown, N. J. Mrs. Nash, though badly shaken up, was not injured.

Before Mrs. Hubbard died her daughter, Mrs. Charles J. Bell, wife of President Bell of the American Security and Trust Company of this city, was called to her bedside.

Mrs. Hubbard, who was the mother-in-law of Prof. Alexander Graham Bell, scientist and aviator, was out motoring late this afternoon and was going at a good clip in the growing darkness when the accident occurred. The force of her fall to the paved street when the machine struck the car was so great that Mrs. Hubbard lay quite still. It was ascertained afterward that her skull was fractured. Major Cole of the Marine Corps rushed to the spot and lifted her to the sidewalk. He then summoned an ambulance.

Mrs. Hubbard was 84 years old. She was prominent in the older set of Washington.

AUTO CRUSHES A CHILD.

And a Stranger Tells Later of Driver's Flight and of Rescuing His Sister.

An automobile, in which were a girl and a chauffeur, sped through Cornelia Street yesterday. Fourteen-year-old Malfina Poletti of 216 Thompson Street started across its path. The car struck her and passed over her.

The chauffeur cast one look back, then put on more power, disappearing into Washington Square as a throng of angry Italians began to fill the street. Some started after the auto while others remained to pick up the child and send her to St. Vincent's Hospital. It was said there that two of her ribs were broken and her hip was crushed, and she would probably die.

Several hours later a stranger drove into the garage at 862 Jefferson Avenue, Williamsburg, the automobile owned until a week ago by Arthur Kern, who lived four doors up the street. To the Superintendent the stranger said he had been in Washington Square and had seen a crowd of Italians making a demonstration around an automobile in which sat a frightened girl, alone. Being able to drive a car, he had pushed through the crowd, and, with the permission of the girl, drove her to her home, in Monroe Street, Brooklyn. He said that she was Miss Olga Kern, daughter of the former proprietor of the garage.

"We employ young Arthur Kern here," said the Superintendent, "and this morning he took the car out with his sister in it. We haven't seen him since."

According to this man, the strange chauffeur said Miss Kern told him that after running down the child her brother tried to escape, but when the crowd surrounded him after a crush of traffic had held him up, he had jumped from the car and made off, leaving her to face the angry Italians.

Cook, in Anticipation of Doubts, Declared He Would Assume an Attitude of Superiority to Them.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 20.—Mrs. Knud Rasmussen, wife of the Danish arctic scientist, has received from her husband a report of his impressions of Dr. Frederick A. Cook, with a special request for its publication in THE NEW YORK TIMES. The report follows:

BY KNUD RASMUSSEN.

JULIANSHAAB, Greenland, Sept. 25, 1909.

The last post from Denmark tells me that there has been some surprise among my countrymen that I, who was the only white man who saw Dr. Cook's start and who was the only man with a real knowledge of the Eskimo language who had been in contact with the Cape York Eskimos, have not sent any statement to civilization about my impressions of Dr. Cook's north pole trip. I therefore now hasten to take this opportunity, which is afforded me by my accidental meeting with the steamer, to expedite the sending of my opinion to Denmark, an opinion which, in view of Peary's attacks, may be of value.

I was on a voyage in Umanak Bay, North Greenland, when Dr. Cook passed Umanak, going south on his way to Egedesminde, where he was going to wait for the Hans Egede to take him to Copenhagen.

Asks Cook for Facts.

As I, before my journey in the Godthaab to North Star Bay, twenty miles north of the far Cape York, would have an opportunity of meeting the Cape York Eskimos, I wrote just before I started from Hugssnak on July 19 a letter to Dr. Cook, the contents of which were as follows:

> My heartiest congratulations on your happy north pole journey. Your victory is the greatest in the history of arctic exploration. It will bear its reward in itself, but great victories always bring envy to light, and you will, on your return, have to reckon on a big fight with ever-ready doubters. I therefore mean to be of great help to you, if I, when during the Summer I am visiting the polar Eskimos at Cape York, get a thorough interview with your companions, if I happen to meet them.
>
> In order to help me in getting the interview as complete as possible, I ask you to give me a short resumé of your journey before you leave Greenland, and I ask you to send this to Umanak by the Hans Egede on the 3d.

Did Not Meet Cook's Eskimos.

However, during my stay between Cape York and Kimo, I did not meet Dr. Cook's two companions, who at the time were about 100 miles north of North Star Bay, and the information I could get from other polar Eskimos was therefore only second hand. On my return to Umanak, where I met the Hans Egede, there was no reply to my letter to Cook.

A few days later I met Cook at Egedesminde just before he was leaving, and as I got the impression that he was going to take toward eventual doubters a tone of superiority, which he had a perfect right to do, I thought a defense from me would be out of place, and I preferred to keep quiet, but now, after the information which I have from the newspapers, which go to Sept. 9, I think the moment has come to speak. My report will be supplemented when I arrive at Copenhagen at the beginning of November.

Absolute Proof Impossible.

It is, of course, impossible for me to give absolute proofs that Cook, a single white man with two young Eskimos, has been to the pole. It must necessarily be more or less a matter of belief, as authorities can always maintain that a clever swindler, even if he has not reached the pole, may be very well able to construct a series of observations, and these, together and in continuation of real observations, it would be impossible to prove to be falsifications; but in the same way as it is possible to condemn criminals on circumstantial evidence, there will always, in such big, complicated things as a north pole journey, be a number of small points which, without constituting absolute proof, still on the whole will give a picture of fact that leaves out all doubt.

The polar Eskimos are, of course, not able to determine whether Cook has only been on the way to the pole or if he has really reached the ninetieth degree, but through them we can get a lot of details which together have a value, as for instance: First, start of the expedition and the route taken over the ice; second, how far the expedition went from land; third, whether there were any special obstacles which hindered going further at the point Cook called the pole; fourth, the equipment of Cook and his two men at the start. That Cook was away from Anoratok from January or February, 1908, until the Spring of 1909 is a fact.

Time of Cook's Start.

First—Start of the expedition and the route. The start from Anoratok took place, according to the Eskimos, exactly at the time given by Cook. The expedition went over Ellesmere Land and through the sound which separates that land from Heiberg Land, away from the shore and out on the actual Polar Sea ice. Helping with the sledges went only Cook and his two men, Ah-pe-lah and I-took-a-shoo. After they reached the polar ice and the little party had gone directly to the north, the two Eskimos knew that the goal was the pole. The direction was well known to them through Peary's many expeditions, in which most of the men of the tribe, at one time or another, had taken part. While Peary used to start from the north point of Grant's Land, Cook selected a western route because he, on the basis of Peary's observations, expected to find better ice conditions there, a supposition which turned out to be correct, so the Eskimos, who know the conditions north of Grant's Land, say. The friends of Ah-pe-lah and I-took-a-shoo assert that the expedition had good ice and good weather and that the ice became better the further they came out on the Polar Sea.

Distance Inferred from Time.

Second—How far did the expedition go from shore? The Eskimos, of course, cannot give the distance in figures, but they say that on the journey over the ice field from the shore the sun began to appear and stood high in the sky, and at last did not disappear at all, so that it was almost Summer before they reached land again. Furthermore, they have said that it was Autumn before they decided to go into Winter quarters before they tried the return journey to Anoratok.

These statements, therefore, amount to the same as Cook's, who gives September as the month in which he decided to go into Winter quarters at Cape Sparbo, on the south side of Jones Sound. The Eskimos, who are accustomed to take their bearings on a map, have themselves, on my map, given the route of the expedition to the pole and the location of the Winter quarters at Jones Sound, a district which they know from their bear hunts. Ah-pe-lah and I-took-a-shoo have furthermore told how they, on the way back, were prevented by deep crevices in the ice from going to Heiberg's Land, where they had depots, and that that was the reason they went to North Devon.

Had Cook not taken a small canvas boat with him to serve for a ferry when they met open water, the Eskimos think they should never have got home alive from the pole trip.

Other Statements Agree.

Cook's statements about how they got over the wintering, fighting musk oxen and walrus without ammunition, are also correct, compared with the statements of his companions, as is his statement about the slow and difficult wandering from Cape Sparbo to Anoratok, where they had to drop their sledges for two months.

I therefore reach this conclusion: That whenever Cook's statements are compared with the statements of his companions they appear to be quite truthful.

Third—Were there special obstacles which hindered going further? The Eskimos have told their friends that they were very much surprised when Cook told them the goal was reached, because the spot was not the least different from all the other ice they had passed over. They had often asked Cook to return, but that was only because they had a feeling that they were very, very far from shore and that they would never get back alive again. It is, therefore, apparent that the expedition was not forced back by the hindrance of ice, but because the leader said the goal had been reached.

Eskimos Praise Equipment.

Fourth—How was the equipment? The Eskimos, who have often seen the start of expeditions, have only praise for the manner in which Cook reduced his equipment to the minimum, by which he increased the chances of making quick journeys. The food he carried along was greatly compressed and did not weigh more than the dogs could drag. Furthermore, the expedition had a great advantage during the voyage over Ellesmere Land, through hunting musk oxen, to get the dogs well fed, so that they, when the final start began, were in splendid condition. The Eskimos think it of great importance that the dogs on starting had not been fed on pemmican, but on fresh meat.

To sum up, the Eskimos think that Cook reached the goal, and that he, during the voyage, showed great nerve and energy. The Eskimos are very glad that the pole has been discovered, as the many expeditions which during the last few years have been sent to their regions took away from the tribe its best men. They are at the same time very proud of I-took-a-shoo and Ah-pe-lah, as it is their conviction that Cook would never have reached the goal without them. The above facts must be looked upon as strong confirmation for Cook.

Personally, I want to express my unreserved admiration for Dr. Cook. A man who with his bare hands has passed a Winter at Cape Sparbo, a man who on his feet has taken a walk to Anoratok through deep snow, through twisting ice and utter darkness, that man certainly deserves to have been the first at the pole. His name is Frederick Cook. No one in the world can name him as a swindler.

KNUD RASMUSSEN.

RASMUSSEN IS HALF ESKIMO.

Has Made Extensive Researches Into Eskimo Racial History.

Knud Rasmussen was a member of the Danish literary expedition which left Copenhagen early in 1902 and spent two years among the surviving tribes of Eskimos in Greenland for the purpose of studying their racial history. The other principal members were L. Mylius Erichsen and Count Harald Moltke. Organized originally as a private enterprise, the objects were deemed of such importance from a geographical and ethnological point of view that the total expenses of the expedition were assumed by the Danish Kingdom.

The expedition arrived in Greenland in June, 1902. It left Upernavik for Cape York in March, 1903, spending nearly ten months among the polar Eskimos, and left for the south again in June, 1904, breaking its journey by a stop in West Greenland and returning to Copenhagen in September, 1904.

In August, 1906, Rasmussen left Copenhagen for Greeland, intending to be gone six years to complete his researches into the ethnological and social habits of the Eskimos, the tour, as originally planned, to cover the entire north coast of North America as far as Alaska.

For this work Rasmussen is peculiarly fitted, as he is part Eskimo himself. His mother is a South Greenland Eskimo. His father is Christian Rasmussen, a Danish clergyman, who spent over twenty years as a missionary among the natives of Southwest Greenland. At the age of 14 Knud Rasmussen went to Denmark with his parents and entered the University of Copenhagen, from which he was graduated with honors.

Three Branches of Race.

The results of his early association with his kinsfolk, supplemented by his more mature studies of 1902 and 1903, were published in Danish under the titles of "The New People" and "The Lash of the North Wind." They were translated into English in 1908, and published under the title of "People of the Polar North." The book deals with three distinct Eskimo branches, which comprise the population of Greenland—first, the West Greenlanders, being the civilized and Christianized inhabitants of West and Southwest Greeland; second, the East Greenlanders, being the former inhabitants of the southeast coast, now practically deserted except in one area on the east coast known as Angmagsslik, and third, the Polar Eskimos.

In this record of the lives of the most northerly dwelling people of the world, comprising the nomadic groups between the degrees of 76 and 78 north latitude, are embraced their legends, religious beliefs, and fables—everything, in fact, connected with their folk lore and their present views of life. In the preface to his book Rasmussen says:

"When I was a child I used often to hear an old Greenlandic woman tell how, far away north, at the end of the world, there lived a people who dressed in bearskins and ate raw flesh. Their country was always shut in by ice, and the daylight never reached over the tops of their high fjelds, (mountains.) Whoever wished to go there must travel with the south wind, right up to the Lord of the wild north gales. Even before I knew what traveling meant I determined that one day I would go and find these people, whom my fancy pictured as different from others. I must go and see the New People, as the old story teller called them."

Justify Beating Their Wives.

"The Eskimos," he says, "are much like animals. The men love their wives, but when the fancy takes them, they maltreat them in a manner that we civilized men would consider brutal. 'But,' say the Eskimos, 'if affection is to be kept alive the women must feel occasionally that the man is strong.'"

Even the presence of a civilized man who had Eskimo blood in his veins aroused the suspicions of the Southeast Greenlanders. All sorts of rumors, he says, were circulated about his coming, "chiefly hawked about by old Christian women whose tongues required a little exercise." To win their confidence Rasmussen adopted the policy of asking no questions for a number of days.

"Thus," he says, "I succeeded at length in winning the confidence of the people and during my life with them they gave me descriptions of the events that had been mainly responsible for their determination to migrate to the West coast, and their resultant conversion to Christianity."

Rasmussen tells some weird stories about the horrible murders practiced by these Eskimos in their earlier days, but, in summing up their general characteristics, he adds:

"I have never in the course of my travels lived with more cheerful, more amiable and good-humored people than these East Greenlanders, who, had they lived in a civilized state, would have paid the penalty of the law for most horrible murders."

And again, in speaking of the Eskimos as a whole, he says:

"There is no people with a history which, as regards the bitterness of its struggle for existence and the eeriness of its memories can be compared with the best of the Eskimos. Yes, they are good-natured, and filled with a desire for peace in spite of all. But do not forget that they are first and foremost men, and men formed by the nature surrounding them. The mind of the Eskimo can be quiet and serene. But it can be savage and remorseless as the ocean itself."

DANES ASK FOR RECORDS.

Ask Cook When They Are Coming—Perhaps Two Months, He Says.

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 20.—The University of Copenhagen has declined to forego its claim to the first examination of the records of Dr. Cook. The authorities of the university cabled to the National Geographic Society at Washington to-day as follows:

> Sorry. University not able to comply with your request.

Rector Torp of the University of Copenhagen also cabled to Dr. Cook to-day as follows:

> When will you be able to send the original observations and instruments?
> TORP.

TOLEDO, Oct. 20.—Dr. Cook said today that he would be ready to submit proofs of the discovery of the north pole to the University of Copenhagen within two months, or possibly within a month. He will begin work upon his documents upon his return to New York immediately after the close of his lecture tour at Minneapolis next Monday.

"These documents will consist of astronomical and geographical data, my observations and records," he said. "It was the original plan to submit these proofs first to the University of Copenhagen, and there has never been any reason for changing it. There is no reason why the National Geographic Society should have precedence over any other society in America, and the records will be open to the inspection of all such societies after the University of Copenhagen has completed its investigation. My instruments cannot be brought from Etah until next Summer."

Following the preparation of his documents, Dr. Cook said, he will consider his plan of again ascending Mount McKinley. He stopped off here to-day at noon on his way from Columbus to Ann Arbor to lecture to-night.

LAWRENCE, Kansas, Oct. 20.—Dr. Frank V. Strong, Chancellor of the University of Kansas, sent a telegram to Dr. Cook to-day, tendering, in the name of the university, the services of Prof. L. L. Dyche on an expedition to scale Mt. McKinley to recover the records the explorer declares he left there in 1906.

Prof. Dyche has been with both Dr. Cook and Commander Peary on polar expeditions.

$8,502 for Part of Armstrong Books.

The sale of Part I. of the library of Collin Armstrong ended last evening with a grand total so far of $8,502. The highest prices of the day were $285 for a twelve-volume set of the writings of Eugene Field, 8vo., New York, 1896-1901, printed on Japan vellum paper, and $200.25 for Bret Harte's works, nineteen volumes, 8vo., buckram, Boston, 1896-1903, autograph edition signed by the author in the first volume.

GEOGRAPHIC SOCIETY GETS PEARY'S DATA

Sub-Committee Expected to Report on Discovery of North Pole Within Two Weeks.

RECORDS PLACED IN VAULT

Refusal of Copenhagen University to Waive Priority in Examining Cook's Observations Causes No Surprise.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—Commander Robert E. Peary's observations and data in proof of his assertion that he reached the north pole on April 6, 1909, were received by the National Geographic Society to-day. The Board of Managers immediately referred them to a sub-committee of the Committee on Research, consisting of Prof. Henry Gannett of the Geological Survey, Rear Admiral Colby M. Chester, U. S. N., retired, and O. H. Tittman, Director of the Coast and Geodetic Survey.

The National Geographic Society received a cablegram from the University of Copenhagen to-day refusing to comply with the request of the society, that the university waive its first claim to Dr. Frederick A. Cook's records in order that they might be examined as soon as possible by an American scientific tribunal.

The committee of inquiry of the National Geographic Society will proceed with its work of investigation as quickly as possible. Prof. Gannett, its Chairman, said to-day that he did not believe it would take long to go over the records with care—perhaps not two weeks. Mr. Tittman is at present on his way back to this country from Europe and is due in New York next Saturday. Admiral Chester has gone to New York and will not return to this city until next Saturday or the following Monday. The investigation of the records will be made by the trio of scientists together. Therefore the examination probably will not be begun until the first of next week.

Records are Voluminous.

The Peary records are voluminous, it is said, consisting of his notebooks and other data. It is understood that Peary's instruments, with which he made the observations in the Far North, will also be examined by the committee. It was suggested that Peary himself be asked to come to Washington and testify before the committee, but Prof. Gannett said to-day that he did not believe this would be necessary, unless some unforeseen tangle over the records should arise.

The members of the Investigating Committee have been pledged to secrecy regarding the records and decline to give any description whatever of them. The records were received here to-day by registered mail, and were submitted at once to the Board of Managers of the society. They will be kept in a safe deposit vault while they are in the custody of the society.

The refusal of the University of Copenhagen to waive its claim to the right to investigate the Cook records first did not create much surprise among the members of the National Geographic Society.

"It was to be expected," said Prof. Gannett. "Aside from the fact that the university does not wish to relinquish the honor of first passing upon the claimed discovery of the north pole, it is easy to see that it would object to being placed in the rather embarrassing position that would result from our giving a negative verdict in regard to Cook's alleged discovery, if we were to reach such a verdict. The University of Copenhagen has already given Cook favorable consideration, which would make it doubly embarrassing if his records came to it discredited by our verdict."

Expects Little from Cook.

"Will you investigate Dr. Cook's records if they are submitted to your research committee after they have been passed upon at Copenhagen?" Prof. Gannett was asked. He hesitated for a moment, and then said:

"Yes, but I doubt if we ever get much from Cook anyway."

Prof. Gannett for some time has been considered a skeptic on the question of the discovery of the pole by Cook, and it seemed to-day that he had not changed his mind.

In a statement issued by the National Geographic Society this afternoon it is made plain that the society at this time has merely undertaken to ascertain from his records whether Peary really reached the north pole. The investigation has no bearing at all upon the controversy between Peary and Cook, except so far as it will establish whether or not Peary reached the pole last April. The statement in part was as follows:

> At a meeting on Oct. 1 the Board of Managers stated that the National Geographic Society could accept the personal statements of neither Commander Peary nor Dr. Cook that the pole had been reached without investigation by its Committee on Research or by a scientific body acceptable to it.
>
> At the same meeting Commander Peary and Dr. Cook were urged to speedily submit their observations to a competent scientific commission in the United States.
>
> Commander Peary was willing to abide by such a commission, but Dr. Cook stated that his observations would go first to the University of Copenhagen. In view of the fact that Commander Peary had been waiting since his return to submit his records to a scientific commission in the United States, the National Geographic Society believed it should receive his papers now, in order that his claim of having reached the pole may be passed upon without further delay.

Considered Delay Unfair.

The society is ready to make a similar examination of Dr. Cook's original observations and field notes, but as he promised to send them to the University of Copenhagen, and the society will not have an opportunity of seeing them for probably some months it did not seem fair to defer action on Commander Peary's observations until Dr. Cook's papers were received by the society. The only question now to be decided by the society is whether or not Commander Peary reached the pole on April 6, 1909, as claimed.

Henry Gannett, Chairman of the Committee, has been Chief Geographer, United States Geological Survey, since 1882; he is the author of "Manual of Topographic Surveying," "Statistical Atlases of the Tenth and Eleventh Censuses," "Dictionary of Altitudes," "Magnetic Declination in the United States," "Standford's Compendium of Geography," and of many Government reports. Mr. Gannett was Vice President of the National Geographic Society in 1888.

Rear Admiral Colby M. Chester, U. S. N., was graduated from the United States Naval Academy in 1863. He has held practically every important command under the Navy Department, including Superintendent of the United States Naval Observatory, Commander-in-Chief Atlantic Squadron, Superintendent of the United States Naval Academy, and Chief of Hydrographic Division, U. S. N. Admiral Chester has been known for many years as one of the best and most particular navigators in the service.

O. H. Tittman has been Superintendent of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey since 1900. He is the member for the United States of the Alaskan Boundary Commission, and was one of the founders of the National Geographic Society.

Mr. Tittman had sailed for Europe to invite Dr. Cook and Lieut. Shackleford to attend a function to be given by the National Geographic Society before the news of Peary's having reached the pole was received here.

BANNARD BY 20,000, HE SAYS

Congressman Bennet Forecasts the Fusion Candidate's Election.

Otto T. Bannard by 20,000 plurality or more; William A. Prendergast and John Purroy Mitchel, the other candidates on the Fusion city ticket, by not less than 100,000; the election of the Fusion candidates in New York County and in the Boroughs of Manhattan and the Bronx—these were the predictions made yesterday by Congressman William S. Bennet, Mr. Bannard's campaign manager, as to election results.

Part of this forecast was made early in the day, but it was amplified and made authoritative after a secret council, at which all the members of the Executive Committee of the New York County Republican Committee, the three Republican Congressmen from New York County, and all the Republican State Senators, Assemblymen, and Aldermen met Mr. Bannard and his campaign manager and conferred with him for nearly two hours.

At this conference, it was announced, the situation was gone over thoroughly. Reports were received from the district leaders who constitute the Executive Committee as to the conditions in their respective districts in reference to the relative strength of the Fusion and Tammany tickets.

"All the reports were optimistic," said Mr. Bennet after the conference. "This does not mean, however, that there will be any let up in the fight. On the contrary, the Fusion campaign will keep on gathering momentum until the night before election. We expect to make steady progress from now on."

According to Mr. Bennet, many helpful suggestions had been received from the district leaders. Many of these will be carried out. Campaign literature, the Bannard pamphlet, and the Republican campaign book with its record of alleged Tammany misrule and of the qualifications of the fusion candidates for giving this city good government will be mailed to every enrolled voter not known as a Tammany office holder. In addition to these campaign moves there will be a house to house canvass in districts where this may be regarded as opportune, and letters to every enrolled voter telling him why he should vote for Mr. Bannard and the fusion candidates.

Mr. Bennet said that all reports received from the Borough of Queens, where Mr. Bannard is the candidate both of the Republican organization and the Gresser faction among the Democrats, indicated that Mr. Bannard would carry the borough. From Brooklyn, too, came favorable reports. Jacob Brenner, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Kings County Republican organization, said that a preliminary canvass made in Brooklyn indicates a large gain in Bannard sentiment. Republican State Chairman Timothy L. Woodruff said:

"There will be a close race between Mr. Gaynor and William R. Hearst for third place."

COOK ANSWERS KENNAN.

Says He Ignored Food Obtained by Killing Fourteen Dogs.

Special to The New York Times.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 20.—Dr. Frederick A. Cook, who lectured at Michigan University to-night, was asked to make a statement in reply to the contention of George Kennan that it would have been impossible for Dr. Cook to make the journey he reports on the supplies which the explorer says he had.

"Mr. Kennan has starved off and killed our dogs to suit his own argument. When that is understood it will be seen how we had food enough," said Dr. Cook. He was asked to explain this answer, and said further:

"Fourteen of the sixteen dogs we lost we killed, and these were eaten. That meant 700 pounds more food. This Mr Kennan has not mentioned. I shall answer Mr. Kennan over my own signature as soon as I have time to prepare the article, doubtless in a few days."

Dr. Cook said he would accept the offer made by Chancellor Frank V. Strong of Kansas University of the services of Prof. L. L. Dyche to scale Mount McKinley, and bring back the records Cook says he left there. Dr. Cook added:

"I am delighted and esteem it a high compliment from Chancellor Strong. This is one of the most pleasing assurances of loyalty that I have received. I shall be glad to have Prof. Dyche secure the records on Mount McKinley alone or with me."

Prof. Dyche has been in the arctic with both Cook and Peary, and has supported Cook in his contention that he reached the north pole.

In his lecture to-night Dr. Cook made no reference to the attack made upon him last week by Prof. Hobbs of the geological department of the university. Cook's critics in the audience mad no effort to disconcert him, and the lecture passed off quietly.

Wants a Fifth Avenue Parkway.

The Committee on Lighting Fifth Avenue of the Fifth Avenue Association, headed by Simon Brentano, the publisher, met yesterday at 542 Fifth Avenue. It was voted to lay before the Aldermen a request that Fifth Avenue be put under the jurisdiction of the Park Department and that the city furnish enough lights to make that thoroughfare the best lighted highway in the country.

EAST SIDE CHEERS HEARST AS OF OLD

TELLS OF HIS TRUST FIGHTS

Claims Credit for 80-Cent Gas Victory—Declares Gaynor Lacks Veracity and Sincerity.

William Randolph Hearst made a trip through the east side last night, speaking at four halls. He was met by large throngs that cheered him wildly. It reminded the old campaigners of the scenes in the Fall of 1905, when Mr. Hearst made his first run for Mayor.

It was the candidate's first appearance on the east side in this campaign, and Mr. Hearst remarked in his speeches that it looked to him as though his old friends were with him.

Mr. Hearst's largest crowd was at the Yorkville Casino, in Eighty-sixth Street, near Third Avenue, where 1,800 men and women had jammed themselves into the auditorium and the balcony. From there he went to Teutonic Hall, at Third Avenue and Sixteenth Street, then to the Progress Assembly, at 28 Avenue A, finally winding up at Jefferson Hall, in Columbia Street.

The four meetings were held under the auspices of the Civic Alliance, and a corps of spellbinders at each hall kept the crowds enthused until Hearst made his appearance. In his speech, which was the same at all the meetings, Mr. Hearst undertook to reply to the charge of Judge Gaynor that Hearst had not supported the fight against the Sugar Trust. Hearst not only insisted that he had done all he could to punish Sugar Trust officials for rebating, going into details to support his contention, but he referred to efforts he said he had made to run the Ice Trust out of the State and to put down the price of gas from $1 to 80 cents. Mr. Hearst took the credit for the successful fight waged against the Gas Trust, saying that it was his persistence that had brought about the reduction in price.

William A. De Ford, former Assistant Attorney General, was just finishing a brisk attack again Judge Gaynor and Tammany Hall when Mr. Hearst appeared at the Yorkville Casino. The hall was so crowded that Hearst had to be taken by an escort of police up to the gallery of the theatre and down a flight of stairs to the stage. When he stepped to the stage an ear-splitting cheer went up. For five minutes Hearst stood swaying back and forth on his toes while the cheering kept up. He put up his hand a dozen times to stop the throng and get at his speech, but every time he did so the cheering only increased in intensity. When it had finally subsided Hearst remarked:

"There is enough enthusiasm here to elect the whole ticket. I don't see that there is need of going any further."

The crowd broke loose again, and there were cries of "Hearst, Hearst, our next Mayor."

When Hearst declared, in his arraignment of Gaynor, that he considered the Judge "utterly without veracity and sincerity," a voice yelled:

"You're right, Bill."

Mr. Hearst's Speech.

"My friends, when I first read some of Judge Gaynor's rather ridiculous statements I felt angry and disposed to reply bitterly, but I have become sincerely sorry for that old gentleman who has stepped down from his high place as a Supreme Court Judge to vie in violence with the preachers of Tammany Hall. Judge Gaynor sat enthroned on his judicial seat, wrapped in his Judge's robes, overpowering lawyers, cowing witnesses, terrifying litigants. We were all disposed, I think, to accept Judge Gaynor as the great man he professed to be.

"Mr. Gaynor has stepped down from that high place upon the same plane as the average citizen, and judged by ordinary standards Judge Gaynor is even something less than the ordinary man, rather ill natured he is, and ill informed, addicted to vituperation and some vulgarity. Particularly is he without veracity and without sincerity. Judge Gaynor made his first reputation as a prosecutor of election thieves, but Mr. Gaynor accepts a nomination on a fraudulent ballot stolen by election thieves and composed mainly of election thieves."

Mr. Hearst then referred to the various suits against corporations in which he furnished part of the evidence used by the Federal authorities against the defendants, among them being the Sugar Trust rebating case and the eighty-cent gas case.

His Corporation Record.

"On May 6, 1906," he said, "the Federal Grand Jury in New York indicted the Sugar Trust and the New York Central lines for rebating on our charges. On May 9, 1906, President Roosevelt in a special message to Congress called attention to the evidence submitted to the Attorney General in the Sugar Trust.

"On Nov. 16, 1906, the trial was begun before Judge Holt, and on Nov. 20, 1906, the jury found the Sugar Trust and the New York Central Railroad Company guilty of rebating as charged in my complaints. The New York Central was fined $108,000 and their traffic manager was fined an additional $6,000. In December, 1906, the Sugar Trust pleaded guilty and was fined $136,000. Attorney General Moody gave me credit for the prosecution, and on Feb. 24, 1909, the United States Supreme Court upheld the verdicts of the circuit courts against the Sugar Trust and the New York Central Railroad Company.

Referring to the Ice Trust prosecution he said:

"On June 5, 1900, in legal proceedings before the Hon. Myer Nussbaum, referee, I succeeded in disclosing the fact that Mayor Van Wyck and his brother and John E. Carroll and a horde of Tammany officers held enormous blocks of Ice Trust stocks. On June 7, 1900, the Ice Trust surrendered and agreed to reduce the price of ice."

This reduction Mr. Hearst estimated had saved the people of this city $12,000,000 a year, or a total in the last nine years of $108,000,000.

To his own fight against the Gas Trust Mr. Hearst attributed the successful outcome of the eighty-cent gas law.

"The difference paid to the people by the gas companies as a result of this four years' fight," he said, "amounts to $10,267,831. In the next five years there will be a net saving in Greater New York of $32,317,315.

"I am willing to lay down my record of achievement alongside of the records of Judge Gaynor or Mr. Bannard before the citizens of Greater New York and cheerfully and confidently abide by their decision. In this campaign you should not vote for any friend or favorite, but for a man who will, in your opinion, do the most for your best and honest interests."

Guarded By Policemen.

When Mr. Hearst had finished, more than 500 of the crowd in the hall pushed out after him, and, as his automobile started away, there were more cheers.

It was 9:45 when Hearst arrived at Teutonia Hall, and the place was so crowded that six policemen had all they could do to work a way through the aisle for the candidate. When Hearst reached the stage there were whoops and cheers for him that lasted two minutes. As Hearst started to speak a raucous voice cried out:

"Eat 'em alive, Hearst."

Teutonia Hall is within a stone's throw of Tammany Hall, and those who attended the rally live in Charles F. Murphy's district. There appeared, however, to be no Tammany sympathizers.

Hearst's chauffeur lost the way in looking for the Progress Assembly Hall, in Avenue A, and made a detour of half a dozen blocks before he discovered it. In the street in front of the hall more than 300 men were waiting, unable to get into the hall. They cheered Hearst and tried to follow him in, but the police stopped them. The hall was lined all around with men, while the gallery seemed to be spilling over. It was the same at Jefferson Hall, where Hearst arrived at 11 o'clock.

McCARREN IMPROVES AGAIN.

Senator McCarren's condition was so much improved yesterday that Dr. Hughes, who performed the operation on him, and all the physicians at St. Catharine's Hospital, in Williamsburg talked more hopefully of his recovery than at any time since the patient's illness began.

The Senator rallied from a severe attack of the hiccoughs, which caused his friends some alarm, on Tuesday and was taken as a very bad sign by those in the hospital who have watched his case closely. These made no attempt to conceal the fact that his condition was considered grave until the fit of coughing passed away at midnight. He rallied to such an extent yesterday, however, that he was able to take nourishment, consisting chiefly of beef broth.

Dr. Hughes felt much encouraged when he left the sick chamber at noon. In issuing a bulletin on the patient's condition he said to the reporters:

"We've got a lot to be thankful for, boys!"

The bulletin which Dr. Hughes gave out then read:

> Senator McCarren is much better to-day, although he is very weak. His condition is normal. He is much inclined to rest. Taking everything into consideration, his condition is favorable. His nourishment to-day will consist of beef broth, which is a tissue builder. His heart needs it very much. He will also have milk and peptonoids. PETER HUGHES, M. D.

Through the rest of the day the Senator was in a cheerful mood. He joked with his physician before they separated; and took an interest in things around him. He expressed a desire to look out through the window, and was slightly propped up on pillows so that he could get a better view of the sky. The window was opened at his request, and he seemed to enjoy the fresh air. He was not allowed to remain in that position long. He seemed tired and sank in the pillows as if exhausted by the effort.

Mayor McClellan called at the hospital yesterday afternoon in his automobile. The Senator was sleeping then and the nurses did not want to disturb him, so the Mayor was not allowed to go to the sick chamber. He waited for ten minutes at the hospital, and as the Senator had not awakened in that time he re-entered his automobile and returned to Manhattan.

POLITICAL BREVITIES.

A new Camp Bannard will be opened in the Bronx this evennig, at 1,347 Boston Road, in the Thirty-fourth Assembly District. Hedley M. Greene, Republican leader of of the district, will preside, and Otto T. Bannard and Charles S. Whitman will speak.

Under their own auspices William M. Ivins and Job E. Hedges, are to hold a mass meeting in Cooper Union on Friday evening to debate the relative merits of Otto T. Bannard and William R. Hearst as Mayoralty candidates.

John Leary, the lawyer who tried to get the courts to revoke the permits issued by the Park Commissioner for the erection of stands during the Hudson-Fulton Celebration, has started a campaign for the election of Gaynor and Whitman. His motto is, "No more park stand outrages."

name to an attempt to elevate a man like Roesch to the City Court bench.

He paid his respects to Mr. Hearst briefly, comparing his benefactions to the people to those of Mr. Gaynor.

Following Mr. Bannard, John Purroy Mitchel, who, with William A. Prendergast, candidate for Controller, was there with the Mayoralty candidate, told of the Tammany contract graft disclosed while he was Commissioner of Accounts.

"The investigation of the Borough of Manhattan disclosed the corrupt relationship of William Walker, Superintendent of Public Buildings, to the carpentry firms of Lynch, Boyce & Lynch and Thomas Tydings," he said. "It traced the profits of the $38,000 paid these firms into the bank account of William Walker. It bared to public gaze the criminal profits of Kremer's Metropolitan Equipment and Supply Company. It exposed the 400 per cent. profit of Herman Horwitz, a fellow-club member of Ahearn, and the extortionate bills of O'Brien & Rydern. It made clear the grip upon the city of the Asphalt Trust, fostered by Ahearn's tricky asphalt specifications."

Mr. Mitchel said that before Walker could be removed, Ahearn had to send his personal counsel and adviser, Martin Littleton, to Fourteenth Street to sue at Murphy's feet for permission to turn him out.

BANNARD ON A 50-MILE TOUR.

Fusion Candidate Stirs the Enthusiasm of Five Brooklyn Audiences.

Before the Carnegie Hall meeting last night Otto T. Bannard made a fifty-mile tour of Brooklyn and adressed five meetings. The reception tendered to the Fusion candidate by Mr. Gaynor's neighbors was enthusiastic and at times boisterous. Every meeting was a big one and so great was the enthusiasm exhibited that Timothy L. Woodruff, head of the Republican organization of Kings County, said afterward he was certain that Mr. Bannard would be elected.

Mr. Bannard began his Brooklyn tour with a short speech at the Union League Club, where he was entertained at dinner by about 400 of its members, and closed his work in the borough with a speech before a packed hall in Williamsburg. The speech to the Union League members was what Mr. Bannard termed an after-dinner affair and was not so serious or to the point as his four other speeches across the river.

Mr. Woodruff also spoke briefly at the Union League Club.

Invincible Hall at 78 Herkimer Street was the first stopping place of the Bannard automobile after leaving the Union League Club. There the candidate faced an audience that taxed the capacity of the hall, while outside trying to get in were hundreds more.

"The waste in the Government of this city," said Mr. Bannard, "is a serious question. It should be stopped, and it is for you to say whether or not that shall be done. Tammany will open a 100-foot boulevard in the Bronx in a section where there are few houses, and where it is not needed at this time, except possibly as a matter of real estate speculation. Tammany, you know, is strong on real estate."

From Invincible Hall Mr. Bannard proceeded to Congress Hall, at Vermont and Atlantic Avenues, where he found at least 2,000 persons waiting to hear him. The demonstration that followed his arrival lasted nearly two minutes.

"Although I am a New York man, I was born in Brooklyn," Mr. Bannard told them there, "and so I naturally have an interest in our entire city. New York is a great city, the greatest in the world, and it is worth any man's zeal to work for it.

"We have been badly governed for six years. Tammany has had its chance and has misused it. The city's money is your money, for you pay the rents, and the rents pay the taxes. You pay the taxes and kiss good-bye to your money, and the graft creeps on. How is your patience? Do you want four years more?"

"No!" came the shout from all over the hall.

"Well, if you do it's your own fault, and you will wait until 1913, too," answered Mr. Bannard.

"This situation is all due to the fact that there is not a business administration of the city's affairs; no man at the head to save the people's money."

The speaker then referred to the graft that is practiced on prisoners in jail, by charging them a dollar for a magazine and 50 cents for a telephone call, as is reported to have been done.

"That is a fine example to a man who may have stolen something—to take from him what is left!"

Palm Garden at Green Street and Hamburg Avenue was the next stop. There another big crowd greeted the candidate.

"He's here four minutes ahead of time," the Chairman of the meeting said as Mr. Bannard appeared on the platform.

"And he will be ahead of time on Nov. 2, too," shouted Mr. Woodruff.

"Tamamny," Mr. Bannard said, "parcels out the contracts just like the old feudal barons. Manhattan gets so many, Brooklyn so many, and so on. That is not a business administration. It is a plunderbund.

"Twelve per cent. of the deaths in this city are due to tuberculosis. Last week they asked for $500,000 to stamp it out and to get hospitals where it can be treated, for the regular hospitals cannot take persons who are suffering from tuberculosis in its advanced stages.

"What did they do? They cut it down to $110,000 because they said they didn't have the money."

The Long Island Business College in Williamsburg was Mr. Bannard's last appointment in Brooklyn. There he created a great deal of enthusiasm by his references to the ferries. That section of the city has lost five ferries in the last year. Mr. Bannard, speaking of the operation of the municipal ferries, said they had nearly as many employes as passengers, while the coal bills would make a railroad man ill.

"It was erroneously reported yesterday, Mr. Bannard said, "that I am opposed to municipal ownership. That is not true. What I said was that I was in favor of municipal ownership, but opposed to municipal operation."

BANNARD PRODS TAMMANY.

Thinks the Wigwam Cares Not for Children, as They Do Not Vote.

Otto T. Bannard launched the Fusion speaking campaign on the North River front yesterday, when he addressed a noonday meeting in a vacant store at Eleventh Avenue and Fifty-fifth Street. This is in the heart of a heavily Democratic district. Mr. Bannard was heartily cheered. He spoke briefly, saying in part:

"Tammany Hall, six months before the election, tried to put cinder concrete out of business by the new Building Code—15,000 men with families probably would have been affected. Is Tammany the poor man's friend?

"I have been one of the first in the fight against tuberculosis and for the improvement of the conditions and the better education of children. I think Tammany doesn't care much for the children because they can't vote. And I see that [illegible] Eleventh Avenue, [illegible] Senator Saxe's fault."

BUSINESS MEN BEGIN WORK FOR BANNARD

THE MERCHANTS BEHIND IT

Their Employes Have 80,000 Votes and Its Influence in Campaign Is Expected to be Large.

The Business Men's Municipal Association took the field yesterday for Otto T. Bannard and his associates on the Fusion ticket, actively co-operating with the Committee of One Hundred, the Republican organizations, and the Cleveland Democracy.

The new organization represents the most extensive and important movement of business men ever enlisted in a municipal campaign. It may eventually become the central column in the phalanx of forces now advancing on Tammany Hall. This full list of officers was announced yesterday: John Claflin, head of the H. B. Claflin Company, President; Active Vice Presidents—Cornelius N. Bliss, ex-Mayor Charles A. Schieren of Brooklyn, Marcus M. Marks, Charles S. Brown, and William B. Fuller; Treasurer—Clarence Whitman; Secretary—Andrew Jacobs. The Executive Committee, of which Lloyd C. Griscom is Chairman, is composed of W. B. Fuller, W. E. Webb, A. E. Marling, Seymour Hyde, Elbridge G. Snow, J. Anderson Hawes, A. L. Everett, J. Beaumont Spencer.

Besides these the list of Honorary Vice Presidents, not yet completed, will comprise 300 names in a few days. Here are the names of some business men who have signified their intention of serving in that capacity: Henry Sloan, E. W. Bloomingdale, E. J. Berwind, W. Bayard Cutting, Clement A. Griscom, Jr., Bronson Winthrop, James G. Cannon, E. H. Outerbridge, Gen. Horace Porter, Seth Low, Gen. Stewart L. Woodford, Gen. Joseph W. Congdon, George R. Reed, Alfred E. Marling, Lowell Lincoln, August Montant, Henry L. Stimson, Charles Stewart Smith, William Barbour, A. D. Juillard, James Talcott, Seth M. Milliken, J. Edgar Leycraft, and Woodbury Langdon.

John Claflin's Indorsement.

The association will maintain permanent headquarters at 412 Broadway. Besides the mass meeting planned for Durland's Riding Academy, noonday meetings will be held at the headquarters every week day from now until the end of the campaign, and an active propaganda will be carried on by the sending out of literature and letters to registered voters impressing them with the desirability of having Mr. Bannard for the next Mayor of New York City.

Mr. Claflin himself has written this letter to the Chairman of the Committee of One Hundred:

> New York, Oct. 14, 1909.
>
> Dear Mr. Outerbridge: You did well to nominate Mr. Bannard. In business life he has made his own way to a position of great responsibility, and has demonstrated his trustworthiness, his sound judgment, and his executive ability. If elected, I believe he will give the city a broad-minded, businesslike, and economical administration.
>
> Very truly yours, JOHN CLAFLIN.
>

Business Men for a Business Man.

While the Business Men's Municipal Association will work in harmony with the Republican organizations and the other forces in the field to promote the election of the Fusion ticket and Mr. Bannard, it will occupy a position of strategic advantage over these. No consideration of campaign ethics need prevent the association from training its heavy artillery on William R. Hearst if at any time he should be considered a really dangerous competitor with Mr. Bannard in the fight.

"We are for the entire Fusion ticket, but we are for Bannard first," said ex-Ambassador Lloyd C. Griscom to a TIMES reporter yesterday. "This is a business men's campaign for a business man. The organization is a direct outgrowth of the strong sentiment for Mr. Bannard in the wholesale business district. We are not recruiting this organization from Wall Street. It is a business men's organization pure and simple."

W. B. Fuller, who is connected with the great Claflin interests, said that the new movement would have the effect of arousing business men in the city to the tremendous importance of having a business man at the head of the City Government during the critical four years to come, when the most important plans of municipal betterment must be developed and other business problems successfully solved if the city's impaired credit is to be restored to what it should be.

"I am told by those conducting the fight for the Fusion candidates that the campaign is progressing satisfactorily in every respect except among the business men," he added. "Yet everybody down here and every business man I meet is a pronounced advocate of Mr. Bannard's election. From now on this sentiment, as expressed through this organization, will be brought to bear in the campaign."

Represents 80,000 Votes.

The Business Men's Municipal Association, it was said by Mr. Griscom, represents, if the number of empolyes of those interested in the movement are taken into account, in round numbers 80,000 votes. Within the next few days some members of the association who are connected with the Allied Trades will take steps to bring that organization actively into the field for Mr. Bannard. The Allied Trades were instrumental in setting afoot the Business Men's Taft and Sherman parade in the last campaign, in which 91,000 men took part

Mrs. Thaw Engages New Lawyers.

Supreme Court Justice Bischoff signed an order of substitution yesterday in the suit brought by Dr. Allen McLane Hamilton, the alienist, against Mrs. Mary C. Thaw, mother of Harry K. Thaw, for services in the Thaw trial. The order substitutes Kellogg & Rose as attorneys for the defendant in place of Morschauser & Hoys, who have acted in that capacity for some time. It was said yesterday that Mr. Kellogg was at White Plains in consultation with Mrs. Thaw about the case, which is said to involve a fee of $50,000.

GAYNOR LASHES OUT AT HEARST AGAIN

REFERS TO THAT "PLEDGE"

Says the Editor Pleaded with Croker to Send Him to Congress, Then Neglected Duties.

The Kings County Democratic organization had a ratification of the Tammany candidates at the Academy of Music, Brooklyn, last night. William J. Gaynor, Tammany's candidate for Mayor, was the principal speaker. Although several other speakers were down on the programme Mr. Gaynor talked so long—nearly three hours—that only one besides himself, John F. Galvin, candidate for President of the Board of Aldermen, had a chance to talk.

Considering the fact that the meeting was a ratification, and that it was held in a strong McCarren district, the reception Mr. Gaynor received was not over-enthusiastic. Although there were about 2,500 persons present, the theatre could easily have accommodated a thousand more. Nearly a third of the audience, also, were women.

When Mr. Gaynor appeared he was cheered a little less than two minutes. Former Supreme Court Justice Augustus Van Wyck, the Chairman, introduced him. He said in part:

Gaynor the Unafraid.

"After a strenuous day, I scarcely know what to say to you this evening. I spoke here only a few days ago, and had no expectation of returning so soon, but I speak to-night under different auspices. I spoke the other night with a Republican presiding at a citizens' meeting; but now, having visited the tiger on the other side of the river, I am made wholly unafraid of anything on this earth.

"If I ever was afraid of anything heretofore I am entirely prepared, and even glad, to speak under the auspices of the Democratic organization of this county, perhaps I should say of this Borough of Brooklyn, because Mr. Hearst, who is going about the city trying to prevent the election of those who will be in a position to do something for the city during the next four years, as he well knows, seems to be under the impression that there is only one borough in the whole city.

"Wherever he goes, in the far-off Bronx or in the remote Richmond, you will find him bellowing all the time about the Tammany ticket. He doesn't seem to know—and a man who has never even read the Charter of the city is probably unable to understand—that there is a city ticket in the field; that my two associates, Mr. Moore for Controller, Mr. Galvin for President of the Board of Aldermen, and myself, make up the city ticket, the ticket for the whole city, and there isn't a soul on it except we three.

"But Mr. Hearst all the same bellows about the Tammany ticket. But I wish you would all go and look at him and look at that face and hear him talk over here about the Tammany ticket, not knowing that this is the Borough of Brooklyn and that there is a borough ticket over here entirely separate from the city ticket, and that there is a ticket over in Manhattan, local to Manhattan, entirely seperate from the city ticket, and voted on only by the people of Manhattan. So in the Bronx, and so in Queens, and so in Richmond, each having a local self-government of its own.

His Estimate of Hearst.

"When he came on here from California, for reasons well known to a great many people, about the first thing he approached Mr. Croker, the leader of Tammany Hall, to be sent to Congress, and he was sent to Congress and he was sent again. You must all well remember it. You will remember it, if from nothing else, from the awful holocaust in one of the squares of the city, where people were killed and maimed by the explosion of his bombs and Greek fire and his rockets, without which he can do nothing, because he thinks everybody to be a fool, only to be deceived by fury and by noise.

"The surroundings and the habiliments and methods of the demagogue are with him wherever he goes, and during the two years that he served under Mr. Croker in Congress I think the roll-call shows that he was there five times—the other times he was peaking out from behind the door, probably, or more likely down here in New York neglecting his duties and building up the rag-bag newspapers we would do well for our own intellectual growth and integrity to entirely eschew.

"Not content with his own newspapers during this canvass he has hired columns in another paper.

"What would you think of me if I were to hire a paper in this great city and then hire a man at the rate of $50,000 a year to slobber over me, just as though I were a patent medicine or a pain killer of some kind, or a fool killer?

That Hearst Promise.

"I will say nothing about the promise that he made to me, which he cannot and really does not deny, for it is on record here in his own newspapers and in every newspaper in the Greater New York that after swinging to and fro between conscience—if I may properly say that—and something else that I cannot name at all, he finally came out and said—huh! I should be pleased about it—that I was a good man and that he was going to vote for me, and he advised all members of the Independence League to vote for me.

"Mind you, the Independence League primaries had gone in my favor already, but he would not allow the convention to assemble to nominate me. He said his ballot boxes were stuffed. Every time he does not win it is the same yellow cry—fraud, ballot boxes stuffed; Murphy did it, Tammany did it.

"I speak here under this regular organization, but there is one who is absent. Even those who have differed with him miss him and give him our sympathy in this hour.

"It seems to me that in this great city the Mayor should be somewhat closer to the people of the city than he has been since the Greater New York was created.

"The Mayor ought to be the vision of the community; he should see everything, hear everything, and what he doesn't see or hear he ought to be able to smell. He ought to have the sense of mental smell; to know everything and to know every pin that falls—to look out for the community."

Tribute to McCarren.

Mr. Gaynor referred to Mr. Ivins only once, and that was to say that like Mr. Hearst he had broken his promise. He paid a tribute to Senator McCarren which called forth a full minute's applause.

A great deal of the candidate's speech was taken up with a recital of the Manhattan traction conditions. He gave a full history of the recent receivership proceedings, but it was almost word for word the speech he delivered at the Clermont Avenue Rink and at Tammany Hall on Tuesday night.

He made an attack upon Bingham and linked his name with that of Devery. Asking that the people be allowed to govern themselves, he declared that the first thing he would do if he were elected Mayor would be to release the police force from all tyranny. For the first time during the present campaign he also mentioned Mr. Jerome's name when he said that the people did not want "any Jeromes with sledge hammers knocking in doors."

In beginning his speech he got a laugh when he said that, having visited the tiger on the other side of the river, he supposed he was made wholly unafraid of anything on earth.

SAYS GAYNOR WAS POSING.

Or If He Didn't Know Where Tammany Hall Was He's Unfit for Mayor.

Brooklyn politicians were wondering yesterday whether Judge Gaynor, if elected Mayor, would have to be taken around in a "rubberneck wagon" to learn something of the city of which he wishes to be the chief officer. Their wonder was inspired by the Tammany candidate's statement at the Tuesday night ratification meeting that he did not know where Tammany Hall was and had to inquire his way there. In the comments this was coupled with Mr. Gaynor's recent discovery that Brooklyn had a larger population than Manhattan as an exhibit of his knowledge of the town of which he aspires to be Mayor.

Speaking yesterday afternoon at a meeting at 180 Montague Street, Brooklyn, Thomas P. Peters, the Fusion candidate for Register of Kings County, ridiculed Judge Gaynor's statement that he knew not where Tammany Hall was.

"I regard that," said Mr. Peters, "as another one of the political poses of the learned Judge. He knew where Tammany Hall was. We all know where it is. If he didn't know where Tammany Hall was, he was and is too ignorant of the city to be its Mayor."

In view of the candidate's expressed ignorance as to the lair of the striped beast, it was asked yesterday whether he would know a graft paw of the Tiger if he should fall upon it while Mayor.

FOR THE BROOKLYN SUBWAY.

Two Candidates Announce That They Are in Favor of It.

Support of the Fourth Avenue, Brooklyn, subway project was promised yesterday by two of the candidates for municipal office. John Purroy Mitchel, Fusion candidate for President of the Aldermen, writing to Thomas E. Clark, President of the Allied Civic Bodies of South Brooklyn, said:

"I advocate the immediate building of subways. I advocate the building of subways with municipal funds. I advocate also the building of the Brooklyn subways, and in particular the Fourth Avenue subway."

John M. McCooey, on the Democratic ticket for Borough President of Brooklyn, wrote to Peter J. Collins of Collins & Norton, New Utrecht Avenue and Forty-ninth Street, Brooklyn:

"I am in favor of building the Fourth Avenue subway at once. I am in favor of building it as a four-track line equipped for an express and local service equal to the Manhattan Subway, to connect Coney Island, Fort Hamilton, and the intermediate sections of South Brooklyn with the business centres of the city. I shall vote for it in the Board of Estimate if I become a member of that board, and I shall consider it my duty to insist on its construction without delay for any reason."

Saks Dress Trunks

More often than not, purchase of a trunk is left to the helter-skelter getting-ready-to-go-away period. At such a time one's selection is apt to be made with more thought to present need than future usefulness. Under such conditions it is best to buy where every item that goes to make up the stock conforms with a high standard such as distinguishes our department of Travelers' Requisites.

A special value:

Saks Dress Trunks—whether purchased in a hurry or selected at leisure will prove to be all that a Trunk should be. They are compact in inner construction, strong, sightly and durable. Made of basswood, with leather binding, brassed trimmings—all points of wear hand riveted. Two sole leather body straps, cloth lining; 2 trays.

Sizes: 32, 34, 36 in., 10.75; 38, 40 in., 11.75

The
Pease Petite Grand
Price $600.

We announce the change in price of this piano from $550 to $600; this price is a cash one, but if desired the amount can be paid on our three year plan for the simple interest extra upon the unpaid part; we take old instruments in trade at a liberal valuation.

We invite comparison of this little grand with those of other makes, equal in standing and quality to the Pease; our price at $600 gives a larger amount of real piano value than any of the other small grands.

The Pease Petite Grand is but 5 feet 2 inches long and has a tone that is deep, rich and powerful. It contains the non-shifting keyboard, the latest improvement to a grand action.

GAYNOR'S VIEW OF SUBWAY FINANCING

What the Candidate Does Not Know About It Surprises Commissioner Eustis.

NO ONE PER CENT. RENTAL

Judge Seems to Have Had Amortization Payments in Mind—City Advanced No Cash.

Public Service Commissioner John E. Eustis consented yesterday to comment on the discussion of Subway construction and the financing underlying it in which Judge Gaynor has been indulging in his recent speeches. Judge Gaynor has argued that the city, having spent $47,000,000 in the construction of the existing Subway, is receiving by way of return or "rental" only 1 per cent. on that sum.

The 1 per cent. paid to the city by the operating company of the present Subway—the Interborough Rapid Transit Company—is not rental, but the annual installment upon the amortization fund. The operating company pays this just as it does the interest on the bonds out of the proceeds of which the Subway was built.

"I am rather surprised," said Commissioner Eustis yesterday, "to find a man who has been so long in public life, who has entered so frequently into the discussion of public questions, and now believes himself qualified for such an office as that of Mayor, so ill-informed as to the elementary principle underlying the relations of the city to the present Subway. It ought to be too well known to need any statement after all the time that has been spent in the consideration of rapid-transit questions, but since Judge Gaynor has gone so far afield it may be well to state the facts once more.

"The present Subway was built with the proceds of bonds which the City of New York issued and sold to investors. These bonds are, of course, an obligation of the city as to principal and interest, like any of its other obligations, but under the operating contract, providing the Interborough Company remains solvent, the city will never be called upon to pay a cent for either principal or interest, for both the interest payments and the amortization charges are met by the Interborough.

"In this particular the situation is just the same as in the case of a man who indorsed a note, guaranteeing by the indorsement both principal and interest to the lender or investor. The investor in the Subway case is the man who buys the city's bonds. Thus the city lends, not its money, but its credit, and the successive payments on account of amortization are no more payments of rental in fact, whatever any one may call them in theory, than are the interest payments. Both are made pursuant to the lease and operating contract, and are a part of the consideration agreed to by the lessee, but cannot even be considered to represent the return to the city on any supposed "investment" of money taken from its Treasury, because the city did not take any money from its Treasury to build the present Subway.

"In return for the use of its credit, the city gets the Subway free of all expense at the end of the leasehold. In the case of the existing Subway that is seventy-five years from the date of making the lease, whereas the amortization plan agreed upon will provide for the retirement of the bonds in about forty-seven years. For the balance of the period in which the lease is in effect, the Interborough will have no payments to make to the city, as it will have paid the entire cost of the Subway, and it will then be able to turn its attention to the capital represented by equipment.

"The lease of the Brooklyn extension of the Subway runs for sixty-five years from the date of making, and therefore that branch will revert to the city somewhat sooner than the Manhattan branch. Under the law as amended last Spring, where the city builds subways with the proceeds of its bonds, the period of the lease is to be adjusted to the time required to amortize the bonds issued for construction, so that subways hereafter to be built will revent to the city immediately on the retirement of the bonds issued on their account. In addition, the principle of profit sharing and of the indeterminate franchise as regards the operating contract on city-built subways, have been incorporated for the city's further protection."

GAYNOR PRAISES THE JEWS.

Tells a Delegation That the Entire World Is Indebted to Them.

Ex-Justice Gaynor received a delegation of prominent Jews yesterday at his home in Brooklyn. In a brief speech of welcome the Democratic candidate explained that he was in favor of wide personal liberty in the city.

After assuring his visitors of his pleasure at their visit and the expression of good will to him Mr. Gaynor praised the Jewish people as a race, saying:

"You are of a race and lineage which extends back even into the beginning of history, I might really say to the twilight of fable, to that border line where fable hardly ceases and history hardly begins. You belong to a race and lineage that stood in the halls of kings when the Saxon and the Celt, and I had almost said the Latin, were still running naked in the woods and living in holes in the ground.

"Christianity has much to be proud of, but it remembers that it took entire your Scriptures and appropriated them to itself, no doubt with your absolute good will. The new Scriptures that came in afterward were written entirely, or almost entirely—for that may be to some extent a matter of dispute—by men of your race.

"The whole world owes you much. First of all in religion, in the knowledge of the one true God, from which you have never wavered and which has come down to us by and through your race in an unbroken line. We owe much to you also in literature and in statesmanship, and I cannot stop here to mention the names of those members of your race whose greatness has been manifested to the world; in music, in art, in all that goes to make up the enlightenment and welfare and civilization of the present day. Your contribution to all these from the beginning has been uniform and great.

"The Christian never had any reason for ill-will against you. Such ill-will grew out of ignorance; grew up in ages of ignorance, in ages of misunderstanding, and lingers now nowhere in the world except in nations which are still ignorant, below par, and need the uplifting influences of civilization.

"This is a great cosmopolitan city made up of all sorts of people, of the races and religions and the nationalities of the whole world. Some of you left places where thought was not free, where your persons and your property were not free, left there to escape oppression, and came here for freedom and for advancement. A great city like this should be ruled with that in view. A great ruler has said that the first duty of those put in rulership over others is to consult the affections of the people over whom they rule.

"The aggregate will of the community should be reasonably conformed to in government. We do not all think alike about many things. We live together as neighbors and in peace, but nevertheless there are things in which we differ with regard to social matters and observances. The degree of freedom, the degree of personal liberty, which should extend throughout the community, is a matter not difficult to settle on a broad and charitable basis.

"I have in the past often said, and I have maintained it as well as I could and now expect that after the first of January I shall be able to maintain it in full that in all the social life of the city those who rule the city should not be meddlers, but should consult the aggregate will and wish of the community, made up of the minds of reverend gentlemen like you, and of all other good and reasonable people.

"I am glad to say that from my acquaintance, which is a very wide one, with the clergymen of your denomination and of all the Christian denominations, there is a very liberal and just spirit pervading them all. They very well understand that if our children, as they grow up, cannot have some little freedom on Sunday to go out, to go to places of recreation outdoors, and to healthfully occupy themselves, they will go to other places where we do not wish them to go.

"People will not be mistreated, people will not be meddled with, people will not be oppressed, and of all things money should not be extorted from them by oppression and meddling. That I purpose stopping."

The delegation was headed by thirteen rabbis. They were Dr. Philip Klein of the Congregation Ohab Zedek, Rudolph Grossman of Temple Rodolf Sholom, Dr. M. Krauskopf of Temple Adereth Israel, Dr. Samuel Greenfield of Temple Hand in Hand, Dr. H. Lissman of Tabernacle Temple, Dr. Seidel of the Bohemian-American Congregation, Solomon Baum of Temple Beth Israel, Dr. I. Reichert of Temple Hand in Hand, Dr. I. Katchmaroff of Harlem Temple, Dr. H. Fried of the Hungarian Congregation, Dr. J. Abeles of the East Fourth Street Temple, G. Taubenhaus of Temple Adereth Israel, and the Rev. S. Tyer, Chaplain of Mount Sinai Hospital.

MANY FLOATERS IN QUEENS.

Cassidy's Opponents Accuse Tammany—Gresser Ousted from Headquarters.

Reports that more than 1,500 floaters have been colonized in the Borough of Queens by Tammany Hall to aid the ticket headed by Joseph Cassidy for President yesterday created a stir in the Republican and independent camps. Many of these floaters, it is alleged, were sent to Queens previous to registration. When they registered they are said to have given as their former addresses well-known Tammany strongholds in Manhattan.

As a result of the mixed tickets in the field Alderman Martin Carter of Jamaica, who, failing of a regular renomination, took a nomination from the Gresser Independent Democrats, has been expelled from the Fourth Assembly District Republican Committee, as has also Frederick A. Storm, Jr., son of ex-Congressman Storm, who accepted a nomination for Assemblyman on the Gresser ticket.

Alfred Denton, who was Commissioner of Public Works in the Gresser Cabinet, ousted his former chief from a joint headquarters in the Unity Club, in Myrtle Avenue, Glendale, yesterday. Denton is a candidate for Municipal Magistrate on the Cassidy ticket. Mr. Gresser took possession of a vacant store three blocks below.

STREET BAITS SOCIALISTS.

Extra Police Needed for Candidate for Mayor in the Enemy's Country.

The Socialist candidate for Mayor, Edward F. Cassidy, and a corps of his party's spellbinders had a hard time getting a hearing in the financial district yesterday. It was not until the reserves from the John Street Station had been called out, after half an hour of ineffectual effort on the part of the first speaker to hold his ground in the jostling mob of messengers and clerks, that the meeting went on.

In his first attempts to make himself heard August Klenke, who opened the meeting, was jostled off his packing-box platform. Reinforced by two mounted men of the Traffic Squad and nine patrolmen from the John Street Station, the police got some semblance of order.

Klenke, who had been fighting for about half an hour to get attention, was applauded when he got well into his speech, introducing Candidate Cassidy.

The Socialist Mayoralty candidate received pretty close attention when his turn came. He has a clear voice, which helped, and a sharp tongue which was effective in quieting the crowd. He paid his compliments to the crowd, which he said was the most disorderly he had ever tried to talk to anywhere. What galled him about the proceedings, he said, was that the interference did not come from the capitalists, whose offices were all about, but from members of his own class.

"When I see members of my own class, young men working for wages, attempting to break up a Socialist meeting," he said, "it makes my heart sink."

He went on to explain the platform of the party, and wasn't interrupted again.

ROESCH CALLED UNFIT BY BAR ASSOCIATION

Justices Lynn, Hoyer, and Hoffman, Candidates Rinehart and Snitkin Also Disapproved.

TRUAX HIGHLY COMMENDED

And the Failure of All Parties to Indorse Him Deplored—Association Favors Pendleton, Page, Delany.

The Bar Association has placed the stamp of its disapproval on several candidates for judicial office, and has heartily indorsed several of the judicial candidates nominated for election or re-election. At a meeting of the association on Tuesday night a report of the Committee on Judicial Nominations for 1909, embodying these indorsements and disapprovals, was adopted.

Among those whom the Bar Association disapproves is George F. Roesch (Tammany) for Justice of the City Court. Other Tammany candidates who meet with disapproval of the association are Wauhope Lynn and John Hoyer, who are up for re-election as Municipal Court Justices. J. B. Rinehart, Republican nominee for Municipal Court Justice, is also disapproved.

At the meeting a resolution was adopted "cordially approving" the candidacy of Justice Charles H. Truax for re-election to the Supreme Court. The resolution added "that this association deplores the failure of all parties to indorse his candidacy."

The report of the Judicial Nominations Committee, which was adopted as read, was as follows:

> To the Association of the Bar of the City of New York.
>
> Your Committee on Judicial Nominations has carefully investigated the qualifications of the candidates for the judicial offices to be filled at the approaching election, and respectfully reports as follows:
>
> Mr. Justice Charles H. Truax, by long judicial service, has demonstrated that he is qualified to discharge the duties of a Justice of the Supreme Court.
>
> Messrs. Francis K. Pendleton, Alfred R. Page, and John J. Delany, in professional attainments and personal character, are fit candidates for Justices of the Supreme Court, and entitled to receive the indorsement of the association.
>
> Mr. Nathan Bijur, by reason of his professional experience, we deem qualified to discharge the duties of a Justice of the Supreme Court.
>
>
> Municipal Court Justices Joseph P. Fallon and William F. Moore have demonstrated their fitness for the office to which they have been renominated, and are entitled to the indorsement of the association.
>
> Municipal Court Justice Herman Joseph, by his service as Municipal Court Justice, has shown that he is qualified to discharge the duties of that position.
>
> Mr. Thomas E. Murray, by long judicial service, has demonstrated his fitness to discharge the duties of a Justice of the Municipal Court, notwithstanding general criticism as to his punctuality.
>
> Mr. Wauhope Lynn and Mr. John Hoyer are not deserving of re-election as Municipal Court Justices, and Mr. J. B. Gordon Rinehart is not qualified for that position.
>
> Because of his retention of a political leadership while on the bench, Municipal Court Justice Benjamin Hoffman is, in the opinion of your committee, not a fit candidate for the office of Justice of the Municipal Court.
>
> Mr. Leonard A. Snitkin is wholly unfit for the office of Justice of the Municipal Court.
>
>
> In respect of other candidates who have been nominated for the several judicial positions to be filled at the approaching election your committee has not been able, after diligent investigation, to obtain sufficient information to enable it to make any recommendation.
>

> JOHN H. ISELIN, Secretary;

CANNON DEFENDS HIMSELF.

Denies Deal with Tammany and Attacks Insurgents Bitterly.

ELGIN, Ill., Oct. 20.—Speaker Cannon assailed the Republican insurgents in Congress and defended himself against various attacks in a vehement two-hour address last night before the Illinois Mayors' Association.

Mr. Cannon vigorously denied that his election as Speaker was brought about through a deal with Tammany Hall. The Speaker also asserted that Representative Fowler of New Jersey was dropped as Chairman of the House Currency and Banking Committee because of his refusal to report to the House the emergency currency measure.

"I was over in Iowa last week," said Speaker Cannon, "and found that it is an open secret there that Senator Cummins not only purposes to join hands with Bryan, but that he says that the agitation will not stop and that he will appeal to the people until the tariff is revised according to his notions.

"In this campaign to be waged by Senator Cummins the issue appears to be whether the seven Senators and the twenty members of the House who voted against the Tariff bill constitute the Republican Party or whether the majority of the Republican members of the Congress and the President make up the Republican Party.

"These people under the leadership of Senators Cummins and La Follette call themselves Republicans, but if they are, then I am something else."

GAYNOR OFFENDS MEN'S CLUB.

Won't Speak at Calvary Methodist Church Folk Because Bingham Did.

The 200 or 300 members of the Men's Club of the Calvary Methodist Episcopal Church, at 129th Street and Seventh Avenue, are exercised over the refusal of Justice William J. Gaynor to address them. Mr. Gaynor's refusal, as he has made clear in three letters to the club's President, Sidney Millington of 227 West 129th Street, is because the club listened to an address by ex-Police Commissioner Theodore Bingham some three weeks ago. Those who heard Gen. Bingham's remarks recalled that several of them were aimed at the Democratic Mayoralty candidate.

It has been the custom of the club for years past to invite addresses by the various political candidates in the city, and their invitations have seldom been refused. Mr. Millington received Justice Gaynor's first letter, written on Appellate Division paper, on Oct. 7, in which he said:

> I am not able to fix any time to address your people. The fact that Bingham has spoken before them would rather deter me from going there, considering things which I know of his conduct.

Mr. Millington replied urging Justice Gaynor to address the club anyway, and on Oct. 9 received a note stating:

> I certainly do not want to speak anywhere where Bingham will be tolerated.

In reply to a third letter Justice Gaynor wrote on Oct. 11:

> The truth is there are a great many people who will think that the less the church has to do with practical politics the better. I saw that a young man was laughed at in some church for pointing out that one of the tickets was agreed upon at a disreputable saloon in what is called the Tenderloin district at 4 o'clock in the morning, with surroundings of men and women drinking. That might be a good text for a sermon.

The club feels that it has a secondary grievance against Justice Gaynor in the fact that the members believe that he was instrumental in causing George Gordon Battle to decline an invitation extended by the club. Mr. Battle first accepted the invitation, then declined on the ground that he had overlooked a previous engagement, and finally offered to speak if the meeting could be postponed. In reply to a telephone message a clerk in Mr. Battle's office told Mr. Millington that it would be impossible for Mr. Battle to speak, as he had been "advised not to do so by the head of the ticket."

The meeting at which it had been hoped Justice Gaynor and Mr. Battle would speak is scheduled for to-night, and it will be addressed by Clarence Shearn and William A. De Ford.

Later the club hopes to hear Mr. Hearst and some of his adherents.

PROMISE BY BATTLE.

If Elected He'd Establish a Branch Office in the Bronx.

At a Tammany mass meeting held at Mueller's Casino, 154th Street and Third Avenue, last night, George Gordon Battle announced that if he were elected he would establish a branch of the District Attorney's office in the Bronx. The speaker reiterated his declaration that he will conduct his office without the interference of any outside influences.

"I have made no pledge to any man or any body of men," said he, "and if elected I will administer the duties of the office according to my oath and my conscience. No District Attorney can conduct the duties of that office fairly and impartially if he is swayed or influenced in any degree by politics, sympathy, or friendship."

THURSDAY, OCT. 21ST we will offer one thousand misses' and children's solid 14-k. Gold rings set with a genuine regular cut diamond (no chip) at $2.98 each, with the understanding that if one of equal value can be purchased elsewhere for less than $5 the money will be refunded. How we happen to have them at the price is this, they are made from tops and ends of larger diamonds and cut the same way. They are pure white and very brilliant. We are the only actual diamond cutters in this or any other country, buying rough diamonds from the London syndicate and selling them direct to the public; hence the low prices. Here are also a few larger diamond rings. There are no duplicates.

GERMANY WATCHING NICARAGUAN REVOLT

Navy Department, However, Denies That Warships Will Be Sent to Scene.

CORINTO HAS NOT FALLEN

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Oct. 20.—Developments in Nicaragua are being carefully watched in Germany, which has extensive commercial interests there. The Nicaraguan Consul General at Hamburg announces the receipt of a message from his Government stating that all the Atlantic harbors have been closed on account of the rebellion.

It has been intimated in the German press that the warships that participated in the Hudson-Fulton Celebration are within call if it becomes necessary to dispatch the vessels for the protection of German interests. The Navy Department informs THE NEW YORK TIMES's correspondent to-night that nothing is known there of any such intention on the part of the Kaiser's Government.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—A dispatch has been received at the State Department from Corinto, Nicaragua, to the effect that that city is still in the control of the Zelaya Government, and that there has been no fighting there. The dispatch adds that every able-bodied native over 16 years of age is under arms at night. The gunboat Momotombo is at Corinto, but is expected to sail at any time. Minister Espinoza received a dispatch from his Government to-day declaring that it is strong enough to suppress the revolution.

The question of mail communication between the United States and the eastern ports of Nicaragua, which have been closed as ports of entry by the Government, is giving the officials here some concern. According to the provisons of the International Postal Union, the American Government is under obligations to deliver the mails to the nearest European port with reverse obligations pertaining to Nicaragua. The eastern ports being in the hands of the insurgents, this Government finds it impracticable to turn the mail over to any representative of President Zelaya. Until conditions are changed it looks as though the Nicaraguan mails would have to be detained at New Orleans.

HOPES TO AVERT TARIFFF WAR

Taft Will Interpret Law Generously, Aldrich Tells French Government.

PARIS, Oct. 20.—The exact assurances given by United States Senator Nelson W. Aldrich during his recent talks with Government officials regarding Franco-American tariff relations and with particular reference to the interpretation of Section 2 of the new American tariff law are revealed in a book just published. M. Cruppi, former Minister of Commerce, who favors active French commercial expansion, in this book quotes Senator Aldrich as saying that President Taft's interpretation of "undue discrimination" did not mean that France must necessarily grant all her minimums, but only that the treatment of American products "must be reciprocally just and reasonable" and that naturally it was expected that France would give the United States the same treatment as other active competitors in the matter of French trade.

M. Cruppi adds that Senator Aldrich's conciliatory assurances are extremely welcome, but that, after all, France must first consider her own interests. He insists that industrial and commercial developments are now of primary importance to every country and warns France that if these questions continue to be politically eclipsed as heretofore by social questions France will soon fall to the fourth rank.

M. Cruppi contends that the policy of negotiation is the commercial policy of the future and expresses regret that the United States, in her "splendid isolation," snaps her fingers at the world.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—Drastic measures, including the exclusion of importations from any country unjustly discriminating against this country, might be found necessary by the President in the event that it should be regarded as necessary for this country to adopt retaliatory tariff measures against France. While so far this Government has received no official information of the intention of France to operate a maximum tariff against this country upon the termination, on Oct. 31, of the commercial agreement, officials here are willing to admit that there is some danger of the two countries, for a time at least, applying their maximum rates against each other.

The exclusion power, which President Taft might find it necessary to invoke during the period until March 31 next, when the maximum tariff law could be brought into operation, is furnished in Section 5 of the Tariff act of Aug. 30, 1890. This section empowers the President, in case American goods are unjustly discriminated against by any country, absolutely to prohibit the importation into the United States from that country of any article he may see fit to name.

COLD HINDERS WRIGHT FLIGHT

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—A cold night that left a heavy frost on the ground this morning so affected the gasoline engine on the Wright machine at College Park, Md., to-day, that two false starts were made before sufficient energy was developed to lift the wide planes into the air. Wilbur Wright does not think that the failure of the engine to "warm up" is significant, as under a low temperature any gasoline engine might be similarly affected.

At 7:29 o'clock, with Lieut. Humphreys as a passenger, Mr. Wright lifted the airship skyward. No sooner was the craft clear of the monorail than the steering and control levers were passed to the Signal Corps officer and under his unaided guidance the machine circled the field for three minutes. It was bitterly cold, the two men said afterward, and going at a speed of forty miles an hour it was painful work holding the levers. Mr. Wright took the helm again just before coming to earth and landed near the derrick.

In the next flight Lieut. Lahm continued his lessons for a short seven minutes, and he went up again for two minutes after breakfast.

A flight lasting for nearly half an hour was made later in the day by Mr. Wright and Lieut. Humphreys. The student officer handled the machine throughout most of the flight and for the first time made a landing without Mr. Wright's assistance.

The flight, which was for twenty-seven minutes and ten seconds, was the longest ever made at the Government aerodrome.

Mr. Wright reports favorably of both his pupils, and says that in a week or so they will be perfectly able to launch the craft, steer her, and bring her to earth alone. When that point is reached Mr. Wright's contract with the Government will have ended.

WRIGHTS SUE RIVAL FLIER.

Seek to Enjoin Exhibitions of Bleriot's Machine—Charge Infringement.

Orville and Wilbur Wright have begun in the United States Circuit Court here a suit against Ralph Saulnier of this city for infringement of the Wright patents covering the construction of heavier-than-air flying machines. They ask for an accounting of profits on the machines of which they complain as a violation of their rights, and an injunction restraining the further use of their patented devices pending the trial of the case.

Saulnier came here recently from France and brought with him a Blériot aeroplane. The Wrights make against him the fundamental claim that they were "the first to produce flying machines wherein a heavier-than-air machine was within the will and control of the operator and could successfully fly."

The Wrights assert that Saulnier purposes to give flying exhibitions, to which admission will be charged, "thereby depriving the complainants of large sums and profits which they would make if it were not for these unlawful acts of the defendant."

The Wright brothers have already brought suit against Glenn H. Curtiss on similar grounds.

POPE SEES ARMY BALLOON.

Italian Dirigible Passes Over the Vatican Gardens.

ROME, Oct. 20.—One of the Italian military dirigible balloons came from Gracciano to Rome, a distance of 19 miles, in 30 minutes to-day.

The dirigible executed evolutions over the city, and passing over the gardens of the Vatican was seen by the Pope, who was taking his daily walk at the time. He stopped to watch the evolutions.

The balloon flew so low that its occupants could be clearly distinguished.

FARMAN MAKES FINE FLIGHT.

BLACKPOOL, England, Oct. 20.—Henry Farman made the finest flight to-day that has been seen in this country. He covered 47 miles, 1,184 yards in 1 hour 32 minutes 16 4-5 seconds. In the first hour he made 30 miles 1,577 yards, and the spectators shouted that he had established a world's record.

This was a mistake, however, as Paulhan flew 34 7-10 miles in 60 minutes at Rheims.

REVOLUTIONARY LEADER GONE

Russian Police Connect His Disappearance with Recent Murders.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 20.—The police have received a dispatch from Paris informing them of the disappearance from that city of one of the principal agents of the Central Committee of Social Revolutionists.

The police think this disappearance may have some connection with two mysterious murders recently committed in this city. In each case the body of a man was found decapitated and otherwise mutilated beyond recognition. The theory of the police is that the victims were revolutionists whose good faith had been suspected by their associates.

BUCHANAN'S DEATH NATURAL.

Autopsy Shows Heart Failure, Not Apoplexy, Was Cause.

LONDON, Oct. 20.—The verdict of the inquest into the death of William I. Buchanan, the American diplomat whose body was found in the street late Saturday night, was returned to-day and was to the effect that "death was due to natural causes." The autopsy showed that heart failure, not apoplexy, was the cause.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

KOENIGSBERG, Germany, Oct. 20.—It is officially confirmed that two persons have died of cholera this week in the district of Niederung, East Prussia.

BOGOTA, Colombia, Oct. 20.—The political situation continues confused. The House of Representatives to-day voted down a motion asking for the resignation of the Cabinet.

GUYAQUIL, Ecuador, Oct. 20.—During the first fortnight of October there were fifty-six new cases of bubonic plague officially reported here, with sixteen deaths. Thirteen new cases of yellow fever were reported in the same period, of which four proved fatal.

PERFECT SPECIMENS SENT BY ROOSEVELT

HE ALONE ESCAPES FEVER

Other Members of Party Have All Been Ill—Heller Climbs 10,000 Feet Up Mount Kenia.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—The work of examining the Roosevelt trophies has been begun by the experts of the Smithsonian Institution and probably will be continued throughout the week.

The skins that have arrived in Washington are all packed in brine in heavy casks. The unpacking is being done now to discover the condition of the trophies and throw out any that might show the effects of the trip. Up to date the examiners have not found a single skin to be thrown out, nor has there been a single skin that is in any way damaged or that has deteriorated. This is a wonderful record, according to the experts, as it has seldom, if ever, happened that skins packed in the tropics have all come through in perfect shape.

Along with the skins came a complete set of bones of the hippopotamus, and the skin will be mounted on the bones. The bones of a number of other animals are also among the trophies, and will be used in mounting the hides. In that way the mount will be correct from the point of view of the scientist, as the skeleton is an aid to the taxidermist in getting the animal lifelike both in respect to size and form.

ALL SICK BUT ROOSEVELT.

NAIVASHA, British East Africa, Oct. 20.—Col. Roosevelt, accompanied by R. J. Cunninghame, the hunter and guide, arrived here to-day. All the members of the expedition are well.

With the exception of Col. Roosevelt, all the members of the expedition have at one time or another experienced slight attacks of fever as the result of frequent changes of temperature. All are now in good health.

Edmond Heller, the zoologist of the party, returned last night, having ascended Mount Kenia to a height of 10,000 feet, or within 300 feet of the timber line. Mr. Heller said that Major Edgar A. Mearns was continuing the ascent, hoping to reach a height of 15,000 feet. Mount Kenia is an extinct volcano rising 17,200 feet, and Mr. Heller said it was impossible for the climbers to reach the peak.

SPANISH CORTES RIOTOUS.

Deputies Shout Down Minister of Interior, Who Forbids Protesting Demonstrations.

MADRID, Oct. 20.—The session of the Chamber of Deputies to-day was exceptionally violent, the position of the Government being further shaken. Señor Moret y Prendergast, the former Premier, who Monday made a severe arraignment of Premier Maura and his Ministers, redoubled his attacks. Minister of the Interior Lacierva tried to reply. He managed to shout: "We do not fear threats of violence. We will remain, for to resign would be cowardly."

The rest of his speech was drowned in the deafening uproar, the opposition shouting and slamming desks. The President of the Chamber broke several bells trying to quell the disturbance and finally was forced to adjourn the sitting.

MELILLA, Morocco, Oct. 20.—Under cover of darkness and during a torrential downpour, the Moors furiously attacked the Spanish positions at 3 o'clock this morning. The fighting continued until daylight, when the enemy retired.

Yesterday a force of Riffs attacked and scattered a detachment of Spaniards, but subsequently were routed and pursued by a column under the command of the Infante Don Carlos. The Spanish lost twelve killed, including one officer. The Moorish loss was heavy.

TYPHOON IN PHILIPPINES.

Great Damage Done and Heavy Loss of Life Is Feared.

MANILA, Oct. 20.—A typhoon of unusual severity swept across Northern and Central Luzon on Sunday night. Wire communication with all points beyond Dagupan, Luzon, was cut off.

One message brought to Dagupan from San Fabian says that the loss of life was considerable and the damage to property heavy. Torrential rains accompanied the storm, and an extensive area was flooded. The railroad bed was washed out at several points, and one railway station was swept away.

The famous Benguet Road, extending fifty miles from Dagupan to Baguio, where the Government has established a Summer capital and health resort, has been so damaged that probably $250,000 will be required for its repair. It is reported that two suspension bridges over gorges have been carried away.

No reports have yet been received from the Provinces of La Union and Ilocos, which were in the path of the storm. There is no information on which to base an estimate of the possible loss of life.

Supply and Demand

It is still a controversy, which, Supply or Demand, regulates the other.

But it is a certainty that Supply has its work cut out to meet the Demand for building space in New York City.

Half the building improvements are leased before the roof is on—and some before the plans are dry.

We are erecting a number of buildings which were practically leased throughout before we secured the contracts.

It is a fact that several of the leading hotels in this city find their accommodations inadequate at all seasons.

Again the industrial interests, home and foreign, which seek representation here, require office and factory facilities

MRS. BATONYI WINS HER DIVORCE SUIT

EXONERATED ON ONE COUNT

Found Guilty as Regards Lillian Allen, Otherwise Mrs. Henry Lawrence—May Still Contest.

Mrs. Frances Burke-Roche Batonyi has won her suit for divorce from Aurel Batonyi, the horseman, whom she secretly married in August, 1905, the jury handing in a sealed verdict to Supreme Court Justice O'Gorman yesterday morning. Neither Mrs. Batonyi nor Batonyi was in court when the verdict was announced.

Mrs. Batonyi originally charged desertion on her husband's part, and misconduct with five women. The latter allegations, except those in connection with Lucille Brabant, sometimes called "the fencing girl," and Margaret Allen of 226 Central Park West, known there as "Mrs. Henry Lawrence," were eliminated and the jury was asked to find only on the charges as relating to these two women. The findings exonerated Batonyi of the charge of misconduct with Lucille Brabant in a taxicab ride in March, 1908, but found him guilty so far as his relations with Margaret Allen, or Mrs. Lawrence, were concerned.

Mrs. Lawrence could not be induced to appear at the trial, and her testimony was in the form of a deposition taken in Connecticut.

Within the next two weeks Justice Dowling in special term will be asked to confirm the finding of the jury and grant Mrs. Batonyi an interlocutory decree. It was said yesterday that when this application is made it will be strenuously opposed by Batonyi's attorneys.

Mrs. Batonyi is a daughter of Frank Work. Her first husband was James Burke Roche, M. P. She first sued Batonyi for divorce a year ago, charging him with seventeen specific acts of misconduct, but this suit was abandoned.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Oct. 20.—Aurel Batonyi returned from New York this morning accompanied by his Newport attorney, Newton Adams. He learned at his Middletown home that his wife's divorce petition had been granted. He gave out a statement in which he said:

"I don't know the persons mentioned in the divorce. This is only the beginning of the biggest sensation ever heard of in the legal world. I am wholly innocent of the allegations, but the truth has to come out some time.

"It is strange that my divorce papers were served on me in October, 1907, while the allegations happened in December, 1907. I leave the entire matter in the hands of the courts. But I am positive that some time the most powerful institution of our modern days, the press, will bring to light facts that will tell the truth.

"The world at large does not know that in 1907 the greatest pressure was made to get my wife and myself to close our Newport home and go to Europe. An offer of $24,000 a year was made to induce us to do so.

"I certainly would not accept exile, and my wife refused the offer flatly. Then more pressure was brought about by Frank Work during August and September of 1907 to separate my wife from her two sons. The pressure was so terrible that my wife and myself were forced to part, and we parted as sweethearts and the best of friends.

"To please my father-in-law my poor wife was dragged to the court with her sons for two days. He threatened to disinherit her and her sons unless they did exactly as he wished them to do."

JUDGMENT AGAINST BATONYI

Entered in Newport in Suit Over $500 Check, Stopped at the Bank.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Oct. 20.—To-day in the Superior Court, the case of R. F. Nolan, this city, against Aurel Batonyi of Middletown was defaulted and judgment entered for the plaintiff for $500. On Aug. 22, 1908, Batonyi gave Nolan a check for $500 payable to bearer and drawn on the Riverside Bank of New York. Payment was refused by the bank. Report has it that the check was given for a gambling debt at Narragansett Pier. Newton Adams, attorney for Batonyi, said he would make an effort to have the case reopened, as the defendant and his attorney were not in Newport when the case was called.

KAHN ON AMERICA'S FUTURE.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 20.—Otto H. Kahn and his family will sail on the Mauretania Saturday after a holiday trip which has lasted since the middle of June. When Mr. Kahn was seen to-day by the correspondent of THE NEW YORK TIMES he broke his usual rule with regard to interviews and said that the future for America looked extremely brilliant.

"The centre of financial strength is moving to America," he said, "and art is following in the wake of finance as it has always done in history. I am anxious to get into harness again, and also to be present at the opening of the New Theatre on Nov. 8."

Mr. Kahn has become greatly interested in aviation. While he was in Frankfort he went for an hour's trip in Count Zeppelin's airship.

"I enjoyed it immensely," he declared. "When I went up with Zeppelin the experience was perfectly agreeable, with an absolute sense of stability and security. I was in the air for over an hour. Mrs. Kahn did not accompany me, but she saw the start and return. Aviation is making giant strides."

LIABILITY LAW CHANGES.

Insurance Men Told Employers Should Not Bear the Whole Burden.

George M. Gillette, Vice President of the Minneapolis Steel and Machinery Company, speaking to the Liability Insurance Association at its third annual session yesterday at the Hotel Astor, strongly advocated legislation under which damages paid to employes for injury would be chargeable to the industry itself and ultimately be paid by the consumer instead of by the employer.

Mr. Gillette declared that the present system was an incentive to perjury and a menace to friendly and co-operative relations between employer and employe. He said that America was alone among the great civilized countries of the world in retaining the old form of employers' liability. He thought the general principle as advocated by Presidents Roosevelt and Taft of a form of liability which should be assessed on an equitable basis against the business was the true one. The chief problem, he said, was the framing of uniform legislation in all the forty-eight States.

One of the most obvious difficulties in the way of National legislation, he said, was the justly guarded States rights. It would be necessary for each State to act individually.

He declared that not more than 30 per cent. of the total amount paid out by the employer for accidents reached the true beneficiary owing to the usual expensive litigation.

Mr. Gillette suggested that when an employe was killed a fair sum to be paid would be the aggregate of the employe's earnings for three years, or in the event of injury, 60 per cent. of the employe's earning power. It would be better, he thought, to pay the beneficiaries in installments, as otherwise they might run through the money.

James G. Cannon, Vice President of the Fourth National Bank of this city, spoke on the work of the National Association of Credit Men. Mr. Cannon said that no lobbyist had even been employed by the association, but that great results had been accomplished by a direct appeal in all sections of the country to the members of the various Legislatures or to the members of Congress.

Dr. William H. Tolman spoke on safety devices.

SUES FOR $30,000 BOARD.

Crager Says His Bachelor Brother-in-Law Owes Him for Twenty-six Years.

For twenty-six years Joseph Crager and Joseph Cohen, brothers-in-law, lived under the same roof. They thought highly of each other. Crager when quite young married Cohen's sister. He was a silk salesman, and made a comfortable income. Cohen was a bachelor. He made money in real estate and retired.

During the twenty-six years he lived with Crager and his family Cohen was under the impression, so he says, that he was a guest in the house. But it appears that Crager had other views of the matter. He and Cohen do not speak to each other now, and Crager has asked the Supreme Court to collect a $30,000 board bill for him from Cohen. He has filed voluminous papers which set forth that Cohen is delinquent in his board bill for just twenty-six years.

Just what Cohen's answer will be has not come out, for the time has not yet elapsed in which his answer must be made. He is at present living with another brother-in-law in Mount Vernon. Crager and his family live at 508 West 108th Street, where they moved recently after relations between Crager and Cohen had become unpleasant.

FIND ALBANY SLAYER HERE BY A CHANCE

CLUE IN OLD STYLE WEAPON

Police Described Prisoner to Albany Authorities—He Had Tattoo Marks They Recognized.

"See if he has tattooed on his right arm an Austrian flag, the figure of a woman seated on a stool, and a girl's head," came the reply from the police of Albany last night to a query from Inspector McCafferty of the Detective Bureau.

Detectives Beck and Gilkerson bared the right arm of their prisoner, a young Italian, and there revealed were the figures which the Albany telegram mentioned. At this proof of his identity the young man broke down and confessed, according to the police, that he was Lester Sellici, the murderer of John La Chappelle, an eighty-year-old farmer with a place on the Loudenville Road, near Albany. La Chappelle was killed some time on Monday night, so that Sellici was at liberty less than forty-eight hours. Except for his carelessness in giving the police his right name he might never have been associated with the Albany murderer.

Sellici was arrested at Bayard and Elizabeth Street for carrying a concealed weapon. Beck and Gilkerson were told by a "stool-pigeon" that he had exhibited an old-fashioned Derringer pistol in the neighborhood.

They took Sellici to Headquarters on no more serious charge than that of carrying concealed weapons. When he gave his name, however, the detectives realized that they had seen or heard the name before, and finally one of them recalled that a man named Felici, according to stories in yesterday's newspapers, had worked as a farm hand for the murdered Albany farmer. They taxed their prisoner with being this man, who, Albany dispatches said, had disappared after the farmer's murder. He denied that he had been in Albany, but the discovery of the tattooing robbed him of his last bit of nerve.

According to the police, Sellici, which is the man's right name, confessed that he had worked for La Chapelle and that he had quarreled with him on Monday night, finally striking him and leaving the place. When he learned that La Chapelle was dead he collapsed. A policeman was sent to a near-by drug store for ammonia, and this was given to Sellici before he could be revived.

At last he said that La Chapelle, who was living in a carriage house while his homestead was undergoing alterations, had picked up a hammer and attacked him in the midst of the quarrel, and that only then had he seized some instrument and dealt the aged farmer a blow on the head. It was dark in the carriage house, Sellici said, and he did not know what weapon his hand had grasped.

The news that La Chapelle was dead so overcame Sellici that he collapsed several times and finally threatened to kill himself. Inspector McCafferty was so impressed with the young man's determination to end his life that he arranged a series of two-hour details by which a policeman will sit with Sellici in his cell all night.

According to the police, Sellici was formerly a resident of this city, but was implicated in a robbery in Twenty-second Street some time ago and fled to Albany.

ART BOARD ANGERS MAYOR.

He Threatens to Withdraw Consideration of Some Buildings from It.

The municipal Art Commission was criticised severely yesterday at the meeting of the Sinking Fund Commission. Last June Controller Metz brought before the members plans and specifications for a new Leonard Street Police Station. Since then they have been submitted to the Municipal Art Commission. Yesterday Chief Engineer Worthington of the Department of Finance reported that the Art Commission had suggested that the facade should be made of stone instead of brick. This would involve an additional expenditure of $20,000.

"Are the Art Commissioners going to pay the additional cost?" asked the Mayor.

He went on to declare that the Art Commission could reject plans submitted to it, but to make recommendations as to the material employed was out of its province. He spoke of his power to withdraw from the Art Commission all buildings that will cost less than $250,000, and he said that he might avail himself of it.

Hunting With Roosevelt in East Africa

Illustrated with 30 Exclusive Photographs by Warrington Dawson, a Member of the Roosevelt Expedition

Theodore Roosevelt was not accompanied into the hunting grounds of East Africa by the army of journalists and photographers who followed him to Mombasa. Several hardy news gatherers attempted to follow the party, but were firmly turned back. So that only one writer, Mr. Warrington Dawson, had the good fortune to go farther than Nairoba.

The only photographs of the Roosevelt expedition in the hunting grounds—with the exception of those taken by Kermit Roosevelt—are the photographs taken by Mr. Dawson. HAMPTON'S MAGAZINE has secured the exclusive right to publish these photographs. The first of them appear in

Talks on Teeth

By G. GORDON MARTIN
(Incorporated)

A Message to the Toothless

This is a message of hope and good cheer. No longer need you seek to hide the fact that your teeth are gone.

We restore teeth.

How? Not by partial plates; not by an unsanitary, unscientific "bridge" which destroys teeth, but by a process near to the great original supplied by nature herself. The teeth we place in the mouth are as close rivals to nature's as it is possible to supply and not grow them in the jaws again.

Our great discovery is known as the Martinolar Method, and with this method we restore all the teeth that have been lost through disease or ignorant dentistry, and give you a set of teeth that are not only beautiful to look at, but fine and serviceable to eat with.

They have none of the look of false teeth. When they are in place it would be a difficult matter for any person, dentist or layman, to say that they were not natural teeth.

That is what you want.

It is the greatest stride in the science of dentistry that has been taken in the past fifty years, and has been the means by which this company has grown until to-day it occupies the commanding position of being the largest dental concern in the world.

Such a growth only comes through merit, and promises fulfilled.

Are you a partial plate or "bridge" victim?

If so, why not do away with these makeshifts and let us instal a set of real teeth in your mouth by the Martinolar Method?

It is worth a visit of inquiry, isn't it?

We examine your mouth free of any charge and tell you in advance what the cost of the work will be. It is not expensive, and not at all painful at any stage.

If you cannot call at once, send for our free book, which gives full and complete details with testimonials.

THE VOICE IN THE WILDERNESS.

"Mr. EVARTS," said Judge MARTIN GROVER once, interrupting the argument of the great lawyer, "as there ain't no jury here, would you mind tellin' the court whether you believe that 'ere proposition of law that you have just stated?" We should like to ask Judge GAYNOR if he expects anybody to believe his assertion that he did not know where Tammany Hall was, and actually had to inquire his way on the evening on which he was to appear in that edifice and address his constituents? But after all, what difference does it make whether or not he knew where Tammany Hall was? He was at that moment speaking in Tammany Hall, speaking as the candidate of Tammany Hall, as a candidate who had accepted its nomination, although during all those years when he said his was the voice crying in the wilderness he had denounced Tammany as a sink of corruption. His ignorance of the situation of Tammany Hall, if anybody believes the story, might be construed as creditable. His present acquiescence, his consenting co-operation in the endeavors of that wicked and tough old organization to grasp the power of the purse and the police in this community, are deeply discreditable. That he cannot palliate or explain away.

What class in this community, if it be not the criminal class, is Judge GAYNOR talking to when he uses such language as this:

> We cannot substitute in this great city for the orderly and even administration of justice which prevails all over the English-speaking world the club and the crowbar in the hands of any Police Commissioner or any Mayor.

Who besides Judge GAYNOR and the criminals are complaining of the tyranny, the savagery, or the brutality of the police in this city? What does he mean by the "crowbar in the hands of any Police Commissioner"? Obviously the allusion is to the forcible breaking and entering of gambling houses where the law was notoriously being violated, and where forcible entry was the only means under the then existing law of getting evidence. Is gambling one of those "pleasure" and "social inclinations of the people" with which he so deeply sympathizes that he would tolerate no interference therewith? He did by injunction once forbid the police to interfere with the business of a disorderly resort, a place which on evidence procured had its hotel license revoked shortly after because of violations of law. Does Mr. GAYNOR's heart really beat so warmly for the gamblers and divekeepers that he would have the law leniently enforced in their interest?

Mr. GAYNOR's extraordinary appeals in behalf of what he calls the pleasures of the people move us to inquire what kind of Police Commissioner he would appoint if he were elected Mayor. Would he name a Commissioner who would look with lenient indulgence upon the side door, the red light, the gamblers' barricaded stronghold, and the divekeeper's vile resort? The matter of police tyranny is so little an issue in this campaign, so little in the thoughts of the people, that it is impossible to interpret his utterances in any other way than as an appeal to the classes who want just that kind of Police Commissioner.

Since Mr. GAYNOR's nomination it has been a common saying that he is the most dangerous man ever named for Mayor in this city. His speeches confirm that belief. It would be well for Judge GAYNOR's reputation if, in fact, his were a voice in the wilderness. He says so many things that are not so, and so many others that ought not to be said in the hearing of men, that it would be very much better for him if he were speaking in the solitude of the wilderness.

BANNARD AND GAYNOR.

Judge GAYNOR, like Mr. BANNARD, comes out strongly for the candidates on his ticket, whatever the fate of himself personally. But "oh, the dishonesty of it," as the Judge says. In Mr. BANNARD's case his associates are pledged to the same principle as himself. But the Judge's associates are pledged against all that he holds holy. If there is a shred of honesty in his candidacy he ought to pray for his election with the gentlemen below Mr. BANNARD on the Fusion ticket. Then indeed would the Judge's professed hostility to Tammany find room for good works in undoing all that Tammany has done, and in doing what it has left undone.

To make the Judge's position plain it is only necessary to imagine Mr. BANNARD asking for election with the Judge's colleagues, Tammany nominees. It would instantly be seen that such a wish was inconsistent with any desire to oppose Tammany and all its works. In coming out for Tammany's nominees Judge GAYNOR has forfeited all claim to the respectable vote, if he ever possessed it.

MR. CANNON'S "PARTY."

Mr. CANNON is very angry at the movement in Iowa to make the Tariff bill an issue in the nomination of Congressmen in that State. He says:

> On that appeal, in the State of Iowa, it is to be determined whether seven Senators and twenty Congressmen calling themselves Republicans constitute the Republican Party, or whether a majority of the Republicans and a Republican President who signed the bill constitute the party.

But suppose we go a little further back. Even a majority of the members of the House of Representatives and of the Senate, with the President, do not "constitute the party." Nor can they always assume to speak for the party. The party is constituted by all its members. The most authoritative expression of the party's purpose is through the National Convention. In 1908 the National Convention of the Republican Party promised that there should be a revision of the tariff of such a nature as to make the duties only equivalent to the difference in the foreign and domestic cost of manufacture, with a fair profit to the home producer. That promise was betrayed by the Congress, and the President accepted the betrayal. The party is thereby discredited. Its own agents and representatives have played it false.

The Senators and Members of the House who refused to join in this betrayal have a perfect right, according to all the conventions of party politics, to appeal to the party at the approaching elections to pass judgment on their conduct and on that of the majority who made the betrayal. In doing so they are not acting against, but for, their party. They are not acting as Democrats—a name that inspires Mr. CANNON with uncontrollable rage—but as true and loyal Republicans. And in reality that is the point that awakens the wrath of CANNON.

HOW JUDGE GAYNOR WOULD BUILD SUBWAYS.

Judge GAYNOR in the speech reported in Wednesday's newspapers repeated his statement that the present Subway was built with the city's money, and told how he would improve upon the plan which will after seventy-five years make the Subway a free gift to the city. Of course there can be no dispute that the Subway was built with the city's credit, but that is not the Tammany candidate's statement. His words are: "Every dollar that went into the building of it [the Subway] came out of the city's Treasury. Nobody ever put a dollar into the building of the present Subway except the city." The city has only one source of getting money of its own—taxation. When were taxes ever levied which gave the city free cash of the amount spent on the Subway? The operation was that the city issued its obligation upon receipt of a contract of indemnity, and the pledge of specific property of ample worth. The Subway is financed entirely from fares collected, and will come to the city eventually with its cost entirely paid. It takes time to get back so considerable a capital outlay, in addition to earning interest concurrently. Judge GAYNOR thinks seventy-five years is too long. It is a matter of judgment and opinion.

Judge GAYNOR proceeds to tell us his better way, which seems to be similar to the way untruly alleged of the present Subway. He proposes to build subways either from tax money or from money borrowed and spent by the city, without any extortionate contract of indemnity, which gave the city valuable services for nothing. Judge GAYNOR sneers at the value of those services. Their worth can be estimated by comparison with work done by and for the city on Mr. GAYNOR's plan. The bridges and docks were built in that way. The bridges earn about 1 per cent., some more, some less. This is not net earnings, but total earnings. Clearly the interest is not earned, and there is no provision for amortization. The taxpayers bear the burden, and the fare payers get the benefit which is not absorbed by the traction companies which the Judge so abominates. The docks used to earn 8 per cent. They earn now perhaps 4 per cent., and trade is leaving the city because the burden of dock rentals is so great. If Judge GAYNOR will visit the Chamber of Horrors he can find a statement, never questioned so far as we know, that nine piers which cost $22,000,000 were leased for thirty years at $565,000. The cost to the city is $2,316 daily above the income. How long would it take for these docks to become a free gift to the city, being amortized from the proceeds of the lease? The amortization is going on, but the taxpayers are providing the funds.

But Judge GAYNOR would manage better. He would make a "lean" lease. It takes two to make a lease. The city can make a lease and lose money, but private parties will not do so. The proof is that the city now has a subway for which it lacks a bidder. Many millions have been put into a subway looping the bridges, and the prospective tenant obstinately refuses to bid anything whatever. He has even declared he would not use the subway as a gift, for nothing. Would seventy-five years be too long to earn the capital sunk in this unfortunate undertaking? The city is spending the taxes it collects from Richmond in operating the Staten Island ferries. Would seventy-five years be too long to get back the capital outlay, with interest meanwhile? Judge GAYNOR seems to make it plain that he has no idea of finance except to sink capital. That is the object of Tammany's existence, and he is its candidate. Are the voters—the taxpayers at least—willing that such a candidate shall have the expenditure of millions of dollars in revenue, and the use of a borrowing power without any constitutional limitation?

DESTRUCTIVE ECONOMY.

Can this city afford to permit the death of several thousands of its people each year from tuberculosis in order to save $150,000? What will be done with the relatively small amount of money thus saved? Will it be spent for something of greater importance than these thousands of lives? Will it go for the stupid extravagance or worse that has been shown to prevail in a large part of the city's business?

The Department of Health has asked for increased appropriations to the amount of $256,000. At the taxpayers' hearing on the budget on the 18th it was announced that the Finance Department had decided to allow only $110,000 of that amount. The decision, in the light of known facts, is quite inapplicable. There is not the slightest question of the need of more money to save lives and to save health, which, without it, will be hopelessly sacrificed. There is not the slightest doubt that the work of rescue is practicable, that the Department of Health is able to perform it with intelligence, fidelity, and efficiency. These are not a matter of theory, or conjecture, or vague speculation. They are facts scientifically ascertained, well thought out, and provided for by careful and business-like plans, which will just as surely be carried out as a contract for building a sewer, if only the money is allotted.

The death rate from tuberculosis remains about the same from year to year, and has done so for the past seven years, though the death rate from other contagious diseases has very greatly diminished. It is the most insidious foe. Its infection is easily and almost, under conditions prevailing where the disease is frequent, inevitably spread. Yet with vigilance, with careful tracing of cases that can be supervised, with instruction to victims and to those with whom they are brought in contact, with regulation of tenements and adequate provision of clinics and hospitals, it is perfectly certain that the spread of the disease can greatly be reduced and that a very large proportion of those attacked by it can be saved. Some 10,000 deaths from tuberculosis occur every year. There are 44,000 known cases in the city, of whom 28,000 have no medical attendance and remain uncared for in tenement houses. If 3,000 lives could be saved each year by the money asked for, the mere economic saving would be at least twenty times the sum that is denied to the Health Department. We are almost ashamed to make such a calculation, it implies so sordid a view of a subject that arouses, or should arouse, only feelings of humanity in every rational mind. But the figures show what an immense blunder this parsimony is, measured by even the lowest standard that in decency can be applied to it.

DESERTING HUSBANDS.

The "divorce evil" in this country is not divorce. The statistics of divorce in the United States, gathered from various sources, differ strangely, but the most vehement outcries over the situation were made before any really trustworthy records were available. It is well known that in the case of all vital statistics the bare figures may be misleading and that certain details are necessary to a clear understanding. Recently the Census Bureau at Washington presented facts collected with some care which seem to refute the notion that Americans are the least moral of civilized peoples; that divorce is so frequent among all groups of our society as to constitute the most appalling evil of the time. The record is serious enough, but it is by no means as depressing as many assume it to be. The facts are that in the forty years from 1867 to 1906 divorces increased at three times the rate of population growth; that the divorce wave was highest between 1870 and 1880; that at the present time there is an average of one divorce to every twelve marriages; and that wives obtain twice as many decrees as do husbands.

On its face this is truly shocking. However, we are not called on to limit our knowledge to the figures alone. The most prevalent cause of divorce, as noted by the Census Bureau and by charity boards, is desertion. Decrees on this ground are not necessarily an evil from the secular point of view. In every community here and abroad are dissolute, improvident husbands, who depend for a living mainly on the meagre earnings of the industrious wife. In time in this country most of such men float away or are driven out to take care of themselves. A divorce in such a case leaves the toiling wife free to use her earnings for the benefit of her children, and often it is only through divorce that she can do this. There are other husbands who, especially in times of business depression, weary of the burden of maintaining a family, and quietly vanish, cruelly abandoning those whose support is their first duty.

Doubtless the hard times following the panic of 1873 had much to do with the dismal record of 1870-80. A Chicago charity official asserts that there are at any time more than 20,000 deserted wives in that community, and that in a single year 11,000 runaway husbands were reported to his bureau. So frequent is desertion that it has been made a penal offense in most States, so that the deserters may be apprehended and extradited wherever found.

The opinion is unwarranted that divorce has invaded the society of respectable and representative Americans to such an extent as to menace our civilization. At the other end of our social pyramid, among the immensely rich, divorces are undoubtedly frequent and so conspicuous as to challenge general interest. The rapid accumulation of enormous wealth and the pursuit of folly easily account for it.

In the official bulletin of the Census Bureau it is stated that the marriage rate is higher in America than in any other country; also, that illegal unions are fewer than anywhere else in the world. These facts are clearly inconsistent with such a state of morals as an appalling divorce evil would indicate.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

"Above All You Must Be Womanly."

When Mr. WILLIAM IVINS, addressing certain women who had met in his house to nominate district delegates to the suffrage convention, which is to be held in Carnegie Hall on the 29th inst., told them that "the political game is largely a confidence game," they were probably only strengthened in their determination to get into that game and change its character. When, however, he added the exhortation, "Above all, you must always be womanly," the wonder is that they did not instantly assail with loud but of course musical cries of "Definition! Definition!" Had they done so the chances are that even the ingenious and ready-witted Mr. IVINS would for once have been forced to confess himself stumped, for of all words hard to define "womanly" is probably the hardest—unless it be "manly." The trouble with both of them is that there are or might be at least as many definitions of each as there are definers and definees, while such vague standards as exist are constantly suffering slight variations. The women generally admitted to be "womanly" to-day differ widely in different countries and in different parts of the same country, and still more widely do they differ from the women who received the characterization in other days. As a matter of stern fact and undeniable truth, every woman is womanly, but nobody would admit that, since the admission would instantly terminate an interesting controversy. We all know what we mean when we say "womanly," or at least we mean to say something when we use the word. Perhaps what we do mean is that the women are, and especially the woman is, womanly whom we like, and unwomanly are all those of whom, for any one of a thousand reasons, we disapprove. That is what the decision really comes to in the ordering of practical life. A scientific person, with an eye out for the welfare of the human race, might with some show of sense insist "womanly," like "manly," as essentially an expression of relation and incapable of even an approach to exact definition, since both women and men are only variable fractions of the real human unit, which is, of course, not a man or a woman, but a man and a woman—with some children tagging along close to them. So when Mr. IVINS told the suffrage ladies above all to be womanly, he told them, from one point of view, to be something they cannot help being, while from another he left them quite in the dark as to what he did mean or as to whether he meant anything at all and wasn't—well, just talking. And that wasn't like Mr. IVINS.

Mr. Wright Gets Careless.

That WILBUR WRIGHT should have gone up into the air in one of his machines without taking what would seem to be the very first of precautions—that of seeing to it that he had more than enough of gasoline aboard to keep his motor going for as long as he intended to remain aloft—is a striking illustration of how absurdly and amazingly careless a careful man can be.

That Mr. WRIGHT is a careful man, and as cautious as he is brave, is proved by everything that has been seen or read of him since he came into public view. Never does he attempt a flight until he has examined and tested every part of his air chariot, and while willing to take the necessary risks of his business as an aviator, his determination to take none that is unnecessary has been a subject of frequent and varied comment. Yet for once that meticulous mind of his forgot the rule of his life, and he took it for granted that somebody else had done something. As it happened, the somebody else hadn't done it, and the motor stopped in midair.

As the aeroplane, by a combination of good luck and skill, had been guided safely to the ground the cause of the motor's stopping was investigated. Curiously enough, it proved a long search through all the multiplied excuses which explosion engines have for going on strike, and it was not until three hours of useless questioning of innocent parts of the machine had been done that the emptiness of the tank was discovered. What Mr. WRIGHT said on finding where the blame lay is not recorded. Perhaps, as his father is a Bishop, Mr. WRIGHT contented himself with thinking, but any one of the innumerable automobilists who have had the same or a like experience could have taught him the eloquent though inadequate remarks which are usually delivered on such occasions.

His only real consolation is the knowledge that we all make just such mistakes. It is easy to call them stupid, but hard to prove it, since every human mind is capable of them, and intelligence can only diminish their number. If nobody laughed at Mr. WRIGHT's mishap except those who have never done things as bad or worse he would not have to suffer the erosion of a single derisive smile.

Cities Do Outlive Governments.

For saying, as Judge GAYNOR did in one of his speeches, this week, that New York's municipal bonds are a safer investment than those issued by the Federal Government he has a certain purely academic justification. Financiers will laugh at him, but it is a fact that cities are vastly more durable than national governments.

Cities, and big ones, have, indeed, died and disappeared, or left of themselves only crumbling ruins, but for one that has done so a hundred or a thousand firmly established governments have passed utterly away from everything except the pages of history. As a rule, cities are not much or long affected by these governmental mutations. They go on forever, mortally speaking, because they are in convenient places, and rarely can anything except great climatic changes endanger their existence.

But that comparatively recent invention, the bond, is quite another matter, and apparently bonds, municipal and other, are among the rather numerous things about which Judge GAYNOR talks with more of volubility and emphasis than of accurate knowledge.

DR. COOK'S PEAK.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The guide says that in the photograph of himself waving the American flag, which figures in Dr. Cook's book, "The Top of the World," he is standing not on top of Mount McKinley, but on top of a peak about 8,000 feet high near where they camped on a certain date. Let the guide take a party to that locality, mount that subordinate peak, point out where Dr. Cook stood, and from that spot let another photograph be taken. The top of Mount McKinley many parties may fail to reach—the 8,000-foot peak any reasonably efficient expedition can attain.

If a reproduction of the picture be brought back with testimony that it is not the top of Mount McKinley we shall be quite resolved on the issue. If, on the other hand, there be no such subordinate peak pointed out then indeed it is at least likely that the summit shown in the picture is that of the main peak. D.

One of the Immortals.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

May I venture the suggestion that when Carnegie and his libraries and Rockefeller and his universities are forgotten, and when Theodore Roosevelt has only one line on history's page reading, "President, 1902-1909," Peary's fame will be secure, with that of Magellan, the Cabots, and Christopher Columbus? FRENCH WINES.

Is Not the Pure Food Law Enforced Upon Them?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I read in a communication from your correspondent in Washington in your issue of this date:

> In case the French persist in their apparent determination to impose their maximum tariff rates on imports from the United States, there is a likelihood that this country will retaliate by subjecting French wines and spirits to a rigorous test under the pure food law.
>
> A further statement is made that the reason for the contemplated action is that otherwise we should have no weapon against France until April 1, when the maximum provisions of the Payne tariff law become effective.

I infer from this that our pure food law is not enforced in respect of French wines. I have always supposed the pure food law designed to protect the people of the United States against adulterations, and its enforcement not dependent on any action of foreign countries. It is bad enough to have the just enforcement of the law by governmental officials checked by pronouncements of unofficial so-called "experts" in our country.

New York, Oct. 20, 1909. SUBSCRIBER.

Mr. George McAneny.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Without disparagement of the other Fusion candidates, what a splendid opportunity of doing a "great good thing" for the city lies in the candidacy of a man like Mr. George McAneny for President of the Borough of Manhattan! Thoroughly trained in public affairs, a man of remarkable judgment, of untiring industry, and of patriotic devotion—he would serve the city as few have been fitted to serve it, and his election would be an inspiration to our public-spirited young men.

Would that Carl Schurz were still with us that his eloquent voice might be raised in advocacy of the election of this, his young and greatly trusted friend, and of a Mayor of the character and capacity of Bannard, and in thrilling opposition to the new attempt of a corrupt organization to seize the purse strings of the city.

The Flying Mind.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It may seem bold for one who has gotten his training in life rather than within the walls of a university to oppose such a mind as that of Prof. Hugo Munsterberg of Harvard University; but I should like to ask him, through your valued publication, one or two questions.

Will the good professor deny the existence on the most natural plane of consciousness of the wireless telegraph?

Will he deny those delicate feelings that permit us to know the real attitude of friend or foe?

Will he deny that the present age has entered on the business of conquering the air, an element never dreamed of in the old learning and scholarship as possible to use for man's comfort or advantage?

So powerful is the human mind that it can project itself into a flying machine and make it fly despite all opposition of the disbelievers.

"Malicious Animal Magnetism."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Taking the esteemed "Christian Scientists" at their word, with reference to the deadly character of "M. A. M.," should there not be some legal regulation of the cult? If, as they claim, they can project death thoughts—can by taking thought make an enemy jump into the river or gulp down a carbolic cocktail—why are they not fit subjects for surveillance and possible prosecution for manslaughter at least?

THE ULTIMATE CONSUMER.

Was jokingly discussed
By various tariff persons
Whose sentiments were trust.

They thought it was a good one
On that unhappy soul
That he should bear the burden
Of prices for the whole.

They laughed, did these producers,
And chuckled at the thought
Of prices this consumer
Must pay for what he bought.

Then as they laughed, a stranger
Gloomed darkly in the hall,
And, wholly uninvited,
Stood there among them all.

"Who are you?" cried the jokers
In one concerted shout
Against the bold intruder,
And rose to put him out.

They smelled the fumes of brimstone
As soft the Devil spoke:
"I'm the ultimate consumer,
And you'll find that I'm no joke."

W. J. LAMPTON.

$60 FOR A FULTON BOOK.

The fine copy of the rare little work, published in this city in 1810 by Robert Fulton and entitled "Torpedo War and Submarine Explosions," fetched $60 in the second day's sale at Merwin-Clayton's in East Twentieth Street, of the library of Charles M. Wallace of Richmond, Va. The book was described and its history given in THE TIMES a few days ago.

A record price, $145, was obtained for the "Natural and Aboriginal History of Tennessee Up to the First Settlements Therein by the White People in 1768," by John Haywood; 8vo, original calf leather label. This work was described more than thirty years ago by Thomas W. Field, the well-known authority on Americana, as "excessively rare and highly prized." The present copy contains the commentaries which were lacking in the Field copy.

Henry R. Schoolcraft's "History, Condition, and Prospects of the Indian Tribes of the United States," 4to, cloth; Philadelphia, 1851-7, $64.50.

M. Joutel's "Journal of the Last Voyage to America of M. de la Salle," 12mo; Paris, 1713, $35, and an English translation of the same, London, 1714, $45.

An early account of Princeton College. 12mo, sewn, "Woodbridge in New Jersey, 1764," with plate by H. Dawkins of the President's house, $28. It contains such statements as that at the commons table there was meat every day "and sometimes pyes."

"The Trial of Col. Aaron Burr for Treason in the United States Circuit Court in Richmond, Va., May Term," reported in shorthand by T. Carpenter and published at Washington City, (sic,) 1807-8, $37.50.

The Richmond Times, April 21-June 10, 1865, in one folio volume, publication suppressed, and a rare Confederate item, $40.

The sale of Part I. of the library will be concluded to-day.

SALARY EATS HER PROFITS.

Therefore Mrs. Pyle Asks Court to Remove Her Brother-in-Law as Trustee.

Supreme Court Justice Dowling reserved decision yesterday on the application of Mary V. Pyle to have her brother-in-law, James T. Pyle, President of James Pyle & Sons, makers of a patented washing powder, removed as trustee of her share of the business. The concern is capitalized at $400,000.

Mrs. Pyle's husband, William S. Pyle, died on Jan. 1, 1906, leaving his half share in the concern to his wife, and appointing James T. Pyle trustee of her share. The first year after William Pyle's death the profits were more than $42,000, and it is alleged that his brother took $36,000 of this amount as a salary for himself. The widow protested, and in the following year, it is asserted, James T. Pyle reduced his salary to $25,000.

Mrs. Pyle now contends that this is exorbitant and seeks to have him removed as her trustee.

MORSE TO FIGHT ON.

His Wife Annoyed by Reports That Authorities Fear Self-Destruction.

Charles W. Morse in his cell in the Tombs yesterday emphatically denied a report that he had abandoned the idea of carrying his case further. Martin W. Littleton, his counsel, consulted with him yesterday morning concerning his brief for the appeal.

"We do not give up the ship so easily," said Mr. Morse.

His wife was with him all day. She has been annoyed by the credence given to the rumors that Mr. Morse was being carefully watched lest he commit suicide.

"It is as silly as it is untrue," Mrs. Morse said. "They say that I am searched every day when I come in here for fear that I may be bringing him something with which he could kill himself. Any one who has seen the attitude he has kept up during all this trouble must see the absurdity of any such story. Besides, we have by no means given up hope."

TOWN NOTE SCANDAL GROWS.

Total of Alleged Spurious Paper of Framingham Reaches $155,000.

FRAMINGHAM, Mass., Oct. 20.—Three more town notes of which Town Clerk Frank E. Hemenway could find no trace on the Selectmens' records of approval were presented to Mr. Hemenway late to-day. They were for $10,000 each and bore the signatures of Treasurer John B. Lombard and Selectmen William H. Walsh and F. P. Stockwell. They also bore the certification of Clerk Hemenway to the fact that the town had authorized the Treasurer to borrow money by the issue of town notes to anticipate the payment of taxes.

Mr. Hemenway explained that at the request of Treasurer Lombard he often had signed such certifications on blank notes in advance as a matter of convenience.

This brings the total amount represented by alleged spurious notes to $155,000.

A number of holders of notes communicated with the officials to-day, but in each case the writing was pronounced genuine. Former Treasurer Lombard remains ill at his home.

COLGATE'S NEW PRESIDENT.

Elmer Burritt Bryan Inaugurated and Honorary Degrees Conferred.

HAMILTON, N. Y., Oct. 20.—Elmer Burritt Bryan, LL. D., was inaugurated as President of Colgate University here to-day. The ceremony occurred in the Baptist Church, where the Rev. William Mangen Lawrence, D. D., President of the university corporation, presented Dr. Bryan with the charter and key of the institution.

Congratulatory addresses were delivered by President M. W. Stryker of Hamilton College and representatives of the alumni, Faculty, and students.

The following honorary degrees were conferred: Frederick Towne, Master of Arts; John Mason Clark and Frederick Carlos Ferry, Williams College, Doctor of Science; H. C. G. Brandt, Hamilton College, and Albert Granger Hartners, Brown, Doctor of Humane Letters; Frank Smalley, Dean of Syracuse College of Arts; Frank Albert Fetter, Cornell University; George E. Mather Forbes, University of Rochester, and James Albert Woodburn of Indiana University, Doctor of Laws.

70,000,000 LINCOLN PENNIES.

Mint Coining Them So Fast Indian Head Type Will Soon Vanish.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 20.—So great has been the demand for the new Lincoln pennies that nothing else has been coined at the mint in this city since the end of June. The coinage of the copper coins in the three and a half months has reached the total of 70,000,000 pennies, which is equivalent to the average annual output for the last decade.

The Lincoln pennies, it is believed, will in a comparatively short time completely supersede the old-fashioned Indian head type, as those now in circulation are, in increasing numbers, returned to the mint for recoinage.

CANNON USED TO CHECK FIRE.

Lightning Strikes Big Oil Tanks and Flames Cause $150,000 Loss.

VINCENNES, Ind., Oct. 20.—Lightning struck two 37,000-barrel steel oil tanks near Bridgeport, Ill., to-day and caused a loss estimated at $150,000.

Several wooden tanks in the vicinity caught fire, and late to-night the flames still were unconquered. Cannon was discharged into the tanks with little effect.

STOPS NOT AT WAR TO FREE THE CONGO

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle Bids England and America and Other Powers Break Belgian Rule.

WRITES BOOK FOR CAUSE

He Would Like America to Lead the Way, She Being in His View the Innocent Source of Evil.

Partition and war, if that be necessary to reform conditions in the African Congo State, now administered by Belgium, is the advice of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle in "The Crime of the Congo," a small book of about 130 pages, which will be issued both in England and America in the next few days. Doubleday, Page & Co. will publish the book here. Neither the author nor the publishers will make a cent of profit on the book. All money realized will be contributed to the Congo Reform Association.

"Sherlock Holmes" has gathered what he believes to be damning evidence against the Belgian rule in the Congo State. In his book he not only analyzes the evidence against the Belgian rule, but comes out strong as an advocate for a combined interference in the affairs of the Congo, or, if that be impracticable, an effective interference by England alone, whatever the costs.

After picturing really horrible conditions in the Congo State, as now administered, he writes a chapter entitled "Solutions," in which he says:

Possible Solutions.

But what can be done? What course should we pursue? Let us consider a few possible solutions and the reasons which bear upon them.

There is one cardinal fact which dominates everything. It is that any change must be for the better.

Can a solution be found through Belgium? No, it is impossible, and that should be recognized from the outset. The Belgians have been given their chance. They have had nearly twenty-five years of undisturbed possession, and they have made it a hell upon earth. They cannot dissociate themselves from this work or pretend that it was done by a separate State. It was done by a Belgian King, Belgian soldiers, Belgian financiers, Belgian lawyers, Belgian capital, and was indorsed and defended by Belgian Governments. It is out of the question that Belgium should remain on the Congo.

What, then, should be done? That is for the statesmen of Europe and America to determine. America hastened before all the rest of the world in 1884 to recognize this new State, and her recognition caused the rest of the world to follow suit. But since then she has done nothing to control what she created. American citizens have suffered as much as British, and American commerce has met with the same impediments, in spite of the shrewd attempt of King Leopold to bribe American complicity by allowing some of her citizens to form a concessionaire company and so to share in the unholy spoils. But America has a high moral sense. It was in crushing pirates that America made her first international appearance upon the world's stage. May it be a precedent.

No Time for Delay.

But to bring the matter to a head the British Government should surely act with no further delay. The obvious course would appear to be that, having prepared the ground by sounding each of the great powers, they should then lay before each of them the whole evidence.

Let us suppose, however, that the powers refuse to convene a meeting, and that we are deserted even by America. Then it is our duty, as it has often been in the world's history, to grapple single-handed with that which should be a common task. War with Belgium? On them must rest the responsibility for that. Our measures must be directed against the Congo State, which has not yet been recognized by us as being a possession of Belgium. If Belgium take up the quarrel, then so be it.

Yet another solution. Let a large trading caravan start into the Congoland from Northern Rhodesia. We claim that we have a right to free trade by the Berlin Treaty. We will enforce our claim. To do so would cut at the very roots of the Congo system. If the caravan be opposed, then again Boma and a conference.

Many solutions could be devised, but there is one which will come of itself, and may bring about a very sudden end of the Congo power. Northern Rhodesia is slowly filling up. The rail head is advancing. The nomad South African population, half Boers, half English, adventurers and lion hunters, are trekking toward the Katanga border. They are not men who will take less than those rights of free entry and free commerce which are, in fact, guaranteed them.

America the Innocent Cause.

Doubleday, Page & Co. have just received from Sir Arthur Conan Doyle a special preface he wrote for the American edition of his book. In it he says that America being first to give official recognition to King Leopold's enterprise, "has the responsibility of having actually put him in that position which he has so dreadfully abused. She has been the indirect and innocent cause of the whole tragedy."

On the other hand, the author declares, England and all the other European powers signed the treaty of 1885, by which each and all of them pledged themselves to be responsible for the condition of the native races. England was beginning to feel the prick of its conscience, though the rest of the powers seemed to be unwilling to attempt anything in the matter. "England is rousing herself to act," he goes on, "will America be behind?

The Americans on Trial.

"At this moment two American citizens, Shepherd and that noble Virginian, Morrison, are about to be tried at Boma for telling the truth about the scoundrels. Morrison in the dock makes a finer Statue of Liberty than Bartholdi's in New York Harbor.

"Attempts will be made in America (for the Congo has its paid apologists everywhere) to pretend that England wants to oust Belgium from her colony and take it for herself. Such accusations are folly. Attempts have been made, too, (for there is considerable ingenuity and unlimited money on the other side,) to pretend that it is a question of Protestant missions against Catholic. Any one who thinks this should read the book 'La Question Kongolaise' of the eloquent and holy Jesuit Father Vermersch. He lived in the country, and, as he says, it was the sight of the 'immeasurable misery' which drove him to write.

"We English who are earnest over this matter look eagerly to the westward to see some sign of moral support of material leading. It would be a grand sight to see the banner of humanity and civilization carried forward in such a cause by the two great English-speaking nations."

ICE JURY COMPLETED.

Rejected Talesman Says He Once Owned Ice Stock and "Got Stung."

After three days of examination and the drawing of two special panels, the jury box was filled yesterday afternoon for the trial of the American Ice Company, charged with attempting to effect a monopoly of a common commodity. Justice Wheeler then adjourned the court to this morning. The two men accepted to complete the jury were Charles W. Schmidt, a retired merchant, of 112 West 118th Street, and William O. C. Kiene, a manufacturer of 33 West Sixty-eighth Street.

"I like that jury," said Deputy Attorney General Roger Clark. "They are strong and sober men of business sense."

Each day of the proceedings Wesley T. Oler, President of the American Ice Company, has eagerly scrutinized each talesman as he has taken the stand. Every one in court, except Mr. Oler, laughed outright yesterday when from one of these a new answer came.

"Did you ever own any American Ice stock?" asked Mr. Osborne for the prosecution.

"I did," the talesman answered, with some asperity, "and I got stung."

He was excused.

"THE BOHEMIAN GIRL," MANHATTAN REVIVAL

60-Year-Old Opera Retains Its Power to Please—Big Audience Enthusiastic.

IS PRESENTED IN ENGLISH

Arline	Mlle. Lalla Miranda
Gypsy Queen	Mme. Duchene
Buda	Miss Coombs
Thaddeus	M. Domenico Russo
Count Arnheim	M. Henri Scott
Florestein	Harry Davies
Devilshoof	George Shields
Captain of the Guard	Mr. Chapman
An Officer	Mr. Dauche

Musical Director, M. Carlo Nicosia.

Mr. Hammerstein produced "The Bohemian Girl" at the Manhattan Opera House last evening before an audience which crowded every part of the theatre and which greeted the finish of every air with expressions of approval. It was the first time that this work has been given at this theatre, and it was also the first time that that opera has been sung in English there.

However the size of the audience and its enthusiasm must not be construed as a popular demonstration in favor of English opera any more than similar occurrences at a performance of "Paul et Virginie" would prove that an audience was firmly devoted to French opera.

As a matter of fact this work of Balfe's, which has been treated more or less flippantly by serious-minded critics since it was first produced, sixty-odd years ago, still retains its power to please an audience, and probably will continue to have a certain appeal for several years to come. There were certainly many in the audience last night who had not been in an opera house since a previous performance of "The Bohemian Girl," and there were probably many more of this sort who will find the Balfe opera attractive at subsequent performances.

No point can be made of the fact that the opera was sung in English. The audience evidently came to hear the music, and the work might as well have been sung in Hungarian as far as a general understanding of its text went.

To be thoroughly in keeping with the spirit of their work the singers should put more belief in it than those engaged in singing last night did. Mme. Duchene seemed to be the only member of the cast who took the opera whole-heartedly. She acted the rôle of the Queen of the Gypsies as seriously as if it had been Azucena or even Braugarne. She sang it well, but her English was seldom understood.

The parts were generally well sung. Mme Miranda was an excellent Arline, and of course she had to repeat the famous "I Dreamt I Dwelt in Marble Halls." Mr. Scott did some praiseworthy singing in the part of Count Arnheim. Mr. Russo made the part of Thaddeus seem less important than usual. Mr. Nicosia conducted and the chorus sang with spirit.

"The Bohemian Girl" seems to have taken another lease of life, and in it Mr. Hammerstein seems to have found, at the very end, the greatest popular success of his preliminary season.

MRS. HENDERSON'S FORTUNE.

Almost $150,000 for Her Two Sons—$5,000 to Actors' Fund.

The will of Mrs. Ettie Henderson, who died at Long Branch on Oct. 7, was proved before Deputy Surrogate William J. Flanagan at the Hudson County Court House, Jersey City, yesterday. Her estate is said to be worth $150,000 and includes the new Majestic Theatre and the Academy of Music in Jersey City.

A bequest of $5,000 is given to the Actors' Fund of America to maintain a bed in a New York hospital to be used by actors or actresses and to be known as the Henderson Memorial Bed.

Three grandchildren are to receive $5,000 each. A few smaller bequests are to be made, and the remainder of the estate is to be divided between the sons, William J. H. Henderson and Francis Edwin Henderson, the latter receiving the Academy of Music and half of the remainder of the estate.

ON THE ATLANTIC HIGHWAY.

Countess Ludolf Among Passengers Sailing To-day for Naples.

Miss S. L. Austin, Mrs. H. E. Bundy, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore N. Boalt, Mrs. Albert W. Barnum, Mrs. Edward C. Decker, Mrs. E. A. Elmer, Mrs. Sarah Fabbri, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Frederick, Lieut. William H. Faust, Mrs. Faust, James Hamilton, Countess Ernestine Ludolf, Mrs. W. L. Montgomery, Edward Payson, Mr. and Mrs. Paul J. Stern, and Mrs. A. P. Wescott.

Among those who arrived last night from Southampton on the steamship Oceanic were:

Loring Andrews, Charles T. W. Ague, Mr. and Mrs. St. Clair Baddeley, Rear Admiral and Mrs. George W. Baird, Mr. and Mrs. Irving T. Bush, Andreas S. de Silveria, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Collier, the Most Right Rev. J. Duhig of Australia, Mr. and Mrs. Milford J. Florence, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Stewart Hall, Ralph S. Rainsford, Miss Dorothy Wade, and Mrs. C. W. Wilmeroth.

MISS JACKSON A BRIDE.

Gen. Jackson's Daughter Is Wedded to Martin S. Watts.

Miss Elizabeth Huntington Wolcott Jackson, a daughter of Gen. Joseph C. Jackson and Mrs. Jackson, and Martin Sheeler Watts, a son of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Watts of Baltimore, were married yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the Protestant Episcopal Church of the Epiphany. Bishop David H. Greer, assisted by the rector, the Rev. William T. Crocker, performed the ceremony, which was followed by a reception at the residence of the bride's parents, 128 East Thirty-fourth Street.

Mr. Jackson gave his daughter in marriage. Miss Katharine Seymour Jackson, the bride's sister, was a maid of honor and only attendant.

CULLAM—HOUSER.

Miss Winnifred Houser, the daughter of Mrs. G. P. Houser of 7 Park Avenue, Mount Vernon, became the bride last night of Lieut. Ernest R. Cullam of the Fourth Cavalry, stationed at Fort Meade, South Dakota. The decorations in the bride's home, where the ceremony was performed by the Rev. Charles S. Lane, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, were the yellow cavalry colors. The maid of honor was Miss Dorothy Ball of Wilmington, Del., and the best man was Lieut. William Fitz Maurice of the Tenth Infantry. The bride is a graduate of Wilson College, Chambersburg, Penn.

GRAFF—BRANDON.

The wedding of Leslie Graff of New York City to Miss Irene Brandon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Brandon of 300 Central Park West, took place yesterday evening in the Louis XV. marble ballroom of the Hotel St. Regis and was followed by a dinner and dance. There were about 150 guests. The decorations were of chrysanthemums, American Beauty roses, white bride roses, and lilies of the valley.

The bride's father gave her in marriage, and the latter was attended by Miss Estelle Asiel, who acted as maid of honor. There were no bridesmaids. G. Stanley Graff, brother of the bridegroom, was best man, and the ushers were Julius H. Baer, Vivian Brandon, Arthur Ernst, De Witt H. Stern, Dr. Clarence J. Brandon, and G. Brandon. The Rev. Henry P. Mendes officiated at the ceremony.

MORRIS—CARNEY.

The marriage of Miss Bessie M. Carney, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James S. Carney of New York City, to Frank P. Morris, a son of Mr. and Mrs. James N. Morris, took place yesterday in the Church of Our Lady of Lourdes, near Convent Avenue. The Rev. Father Francis L. Carney, an uncle of the bride, who officiated at the wedding of Miss Carney's parents, twenty-four years ago, came down from Frederickton, N. B., to officiate. He was assisted by the Rev. Dr. Joseph H. McMahon, pastor, and by the Rev. John J. Hughes.

Mr. Carney gave his daughter in marriage, and the latter had for her only attendant her sister, Miss Helen F. Carney. Arthur J. Morris was best man, and the ushers were Dudley Field Malone, Walter J. Donovan, George Morris, and William J. Murray.

KNOWLES—MARION.

The marriage of Miss Alice Pearl Marion, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred P. Marion, and Harry C. Knowles, all of Arlington, N. J., occurred last evening at the bride's home. The officiating clergyman was the Rev. James I. Vance of the North Reformed Church, Newark. About 200 guests were present from New York, Newark, Brooklyn, and other cities. Miss Grace Hamilton of Brooklyn was maid of honor, and Alexander Mitchell was best man. Mr. and Mrs. Knowles left for a tour of the South. They will reside in Brooklyn.

Social Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Dana are at the Maplewood in Pittsfield, Mass., for a fortnight.

Mrs. Hamilton McK. Twombly gave a luncheon yesterday at Florham, her country home, at Convent Station, N. J.

Mr. and Mrs. Ten Eyck Wendell with their son, Ten Eyck Wendell, Jr., are at the Gotham, where they will pass the week before leaving for Washington to open their house on Connecticut Avenue for the Winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Oswald C. Hering will be at 104 East Seventy-third Street for the Winter.

Mr. and Mrs. William Beach Lawrence announce the birth of a daughter. Mr. Lawrence is the son of Isaac Lawrence of East Ninetieth Street and Mrs. Lawrence is the daughter of Arthur Dawson, the landscape painter.

The Misses Jewett of Washington, daughters of Major R. D. Jewett, are at Atlantic City with their grandparents, Consul General and Mrs. Leopold Schmidt of New York.

Mrs. J. Ditmars Remsen has taken an apartment at 120 East Thirty-fourth Street for the Winter. Her mother, Mrs. Mary Minot Plympton, will remain with her till the Spring, when she sails for Europe.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

The first performance of Charles Klein's latest play, "The Next of Kin," under the direction of Henry B. Harris, will take place at Powers's Theatre, Chicago, on Dec. 6.

The opening of Madame Nazimova in "The Passion Flower" will occurr in Albany next Monday, instead of on Saturday, as previously announced.

Nannette Flack, prima donna at the Hippodrome, was out of the performance yesterday afternoon and evening on account of the death of her mother, which occurred early yesterday morning.

Henry B. Harris purchased yesterday from Paul Armstrong a new play called "Whom the Gods Love." The locale of the play is a small island in the Mediterranean. The hero is a young man of Italian-American parentage.

Charles Frohman has obtained the English and American rights to "La Papillon," ("The Butterfly,") recently produced at the Theatre Antoine, Paris. Cyril Maude will play the principal role in the London production.

Marie Tempest has sent Charles Frohman a message expressing her willingness to take part in a special performance for the benefit of the Actors' Fund of America, to be given this Winter. Miss Tempest will sing a number of songs for the first time since she abandoned musical comedy.

"The Man From Home" will end its run at the Astor Theatre on Nov. 6, after a stay of seventy weeks, or 560 performances. It is the assertion of the management that this play has played before more people than any other attraction ever in New York, not excepting "The Music Master," "Adonis," and "A Trip to Chinatown." These three plays were in theatres with much smaller capacity than the Astor.

HINTS FOR MOTHERS FROM MRS. BELMONT

As a Mother She Is Writing for Those Who Don't Know How to Rear Children.

A DUCHESS'S GOVERNESSES

Her Present Grace of Marlborough Had Three—Mrs. Belmont Herself Looked After Her Education.

Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont has entered the literary field, being busily engaged in writing a book. The work has been delayed somewhat by her suffrage engagements, but it is expected that the volume will be ready for the publishers before many months. It was originally intended that it should have been out by Christmas, but the manuscript could not be finished in time.

The book is to be a history of the lives of her three children—Consuelo, Duchess of Marlborough; W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., and Harold Sterling Vanderbilt, covering the period of their youth. It will bring in many New York society members who were wont to play with the little Vanderbilts.

The book found its beginning in a series of tales told to the children of the Duchess of Marlborough, the grandchildren of Mrs. Belmont—the little Marquis of Blandford and Lord Ivor Spencer Churchill. It was intended at first that they should be put in book form merely for the little noblemen. But as the idea developed Mrs. Belmont decided to give it a broader scope.

The writer will have many things to say to parents as to the rearing of children, and she hopes the book will prove interesting not only to children but grown-ups as well. It will be fully illustrated, showing the children who figure in it and their little friends at work and at play at the Vanderbilt Summer home on Long Island, with their ponies and pet animals, all photographs taken from life. It is in the educational part of her book in which Mrs. Belmont takes the greatest interest.

"There are a great many parents who wish to bring their children up properly, but they do not always know how to do it," she said, speaking of it yesterday afternoon. "Until my daughter was grown I never took a luncheon away from home. Every one in New York knows that I stayed at home, and my children came to the table and I made a home for them and looked after them in every way.

"That is not the way in which most children are brought up. They are put up on the third floor with a nurse, but I never put mine on the third floor. I kept them on the second floor with me. They were not put away to sleep in a room with the nurse; they slept in my room.

"The nursery was next to my room, and when they were older they slept there, but with the door open so that I could look after them, and the smallest one slept in my room. I nursed all of my children, though I don't know that any one is interested in that.

"I looked after my daughter's education particularly. She was educated entirely at home. There were three governesses, although it was a great nuisance to have them around.

"The book begins by bringing the three children into a story of family life when the youngest is about five. They will be under assumed names, but those who know them will readily recognize them. The story will interest many people besides children, for many who were associated with the children when they were small will be brought in. Mrs. Mackay will be as much interested as any one, for she naturally will be brought in."

Mortgage on Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont's New House.

Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont has mortgaged her new residence at the northeast corner of Madison Avenue and Fifty-first Street to the Title Guarantee and Trust Company for $100,000. The house stands on a plot fronting 100.5 feet on Madison Avenue and 55 feet on the street.

Herbert Scoville's Bachelor Dinner.

Herbert Scoville gave his bachelor dinner last night at Delmonico's. Mr. Scoville's marriage to Miss Orlena Zabriskie, daughter of Mrs. Cornelius Zabriskie, will take place next Saturday at the country home of Mrs. Zabriskie, in Stamford, Conn. Miss Zabriskie's attendants will be the Misses Margaret Greenhalgh, Mollie, Edith, and Lois Scoville, and Dauchy and Katharine Whitlin.

POSTMASTER BARNES DEAD.

While Assistant Secretary to Roosevelt Figured in Mrs. Morris's Ejectment.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—While sitting playing pinochle with his father-in-law, Jacob Frech, at the home of the latter, and with the remark that he "was feeling fine" scarcely off his lips, Benjamin F. Barnes, Postmaster of this city, and who served first as Executive clerk under President McKinley and later as assistant secretary to President Roosevelt, dropped dead here to-night of heart disease. Although everything was done to save his life, restoratives being immediately applied, Mr. Barnes died without regaining consciousness.

During the game Mr. Frech asked Mr. Barnes a question, but received no response. Looking up he saw Mr. Barnes with his head bent forward.

Mr. Barnes had been in particularly good humor to-night over the fact that he had to-day been admitted to practice before the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia.

Benjamin F. Barnes was born in Yarmouth, Nova Scotia, on Dec. 3, 1868. He moved to New Jersey when quite a young man and later received his education at Georgetown College in Maryland. Under competitive examination he was appointed a clerk in the United States Post Office in 1887, and by his work became so popular in that department that two years later he was appointed private secretary to the First Assistant Postmaster General.

After serving as secretary to several other persons prominent in the Post Office Department and various statesmen in Washington, Mr. Barnes was appointed stenographer at the White House in 1898. Two years later he was appointed Assistant Secretary to the President by President McKinley. He served in this capacity until the death of Mr. McKinley, and was again appointed to the same post when Theodore Roosevelt took office. He held that position until 1906, when he was appointed Postmaster of Washington.

Mr. Barnes, when Assistant Secretary to President Roosevelt, figured extensively in the newspapers for having ordered the forcible ejection from the White House of Mrs. Miner Morris, a Washington woman, who had called to see the President. What attracted attention to the case was not the ejection itself, but the violence with which it was performed. She had been talking to Mr. Barnes when she was seized by two policemen and a negro and in the excitement her dress was torn and trampled on.

Mr. Barnes was denounced by Mrs. Morris, various newspapers, and Mr. Tillman in the United States Senate. President Roosevelt, however, soon after this incident sent his name to the United States Senate for the Postmastership of Washington. This was taken to be the President's way of expressing confidence in Mr. Barnes and paying him for the pains he had suffered as a result of the criticisms which were thrown at him because of the incident.

Francis Lathrop.

Francis Lathrop, artist and decorator, died on Monday at his home at Woodcliff, N. J. He had been ill for two years, and during that time had suffered two strokes of paralysis. Mr. Lathrop was born at sea near the Hawaiian Islands in 1849. He was a son of Dr. George Lathrop and a brother of George Parsons Lathrop, the author, who married Miss Rose Hawthorne, daughter of Nathaniel Hawthorne. Beginning his artistic career in this city in 1860 under T. C. Farrer he went to Dresden and then to London, where he completed his studies under Burne-Jones and Madox Brown. He was an associate of the National Academy of Design and a member of the National Society of Mural Painters, the Century Association, the Architectural League, and the National Institute of Arts and Letters. He received gold and silver medals at Philadelphia in 1899 and at the Pan-American Exposition in Buffalo. The finest specimen of Mr. Lathrop's work in this city is the decoration of the sanctuary of St. Bartholomew's Episcopal Church, Madison Avenue and Forty-fourth Street. It is one of the largest mural paintings in America, and required five years' work to complete at a cost of $65,000. He also made the decorations for Trinity Church, Boston.

Funeral Services in Railroad Station.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Oct 20.—Surrounded by members of the Freedman's Aid Society Bishop John M. Walden of the Methodist Episcopal Church, held brief funeral services over the body of his son, Prof. Elisha Walden, in the Central Union Railroad Station on its arrival here from Chattanooga, Tenn., to-day. The Bishop's son, who was Professor of Science in the University of Chattanooga, died Tuesday morning immediately after an operation for intestinal trouble, and the body was brought north for burial. When the body arrived it was taken to the waiting room, where the Bishop conducted the services and told of the life work of his son.

Memorial Services for Prof. Stratford.

Memorial services for Prof. William Stratford of the Department of Natural History were held yesterday in the Great Hall of City College. Prof. Stratford was the man to whom the college owes its athletic association and to a great extent its gymnasium. Dr. Andrew T. Storey presented a life size portrait of Prof. Stratford to the athletic association at the services.

Obituary Notes.

THOMAS F. ADAMS, a retired Lieutenant of Police, died at his home, 3,147 Hull Avenue, Bedford Park, Brooklyn, on Monday. He was in the Police Department for thirty-seven years. For breaking up a band of burglars in Tarrytown in 1880, Adams received a gold medal from the residents of that place. He was one of the organizers of the Police Athletic Club and inventor of a cabinet for the filing of photographs of criminals, which is in use in nearly every police department in the world.

Mrs. JOHN H. JONES, philanthropist and California pioneer, died Tuesday night at her home in Los Angeles, Cal. Mrs. Jones left an estate estimated at $4,000,000.

Mrs. HENRIETTA MORGAN DUKE, wife of Gen. Basil W. Duke, known in history as "Morgan's right hand man," was found dead in bed at the Duke residence in Louisville, Ky., yesterday. Heart failure is thought to have caused death.

JULES E. SOULE died, after a long illness, at his residence, 153 Washington Street, Mount Vernon, N. Y., on Wednesday. He was born in Paris, France, Dec. 30, 1860. He was connected with the dry goods form of D. H. Holmes & Co., Ltd., of New Orleans, La., for thirty-two years. He had been for many years the New York buyer. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mary L. Soule.

Dr. WILLIAM JOSEPH DODD, 80 years old, died yesterday at his home, 101 Grand Street, Jersey City, from old age. He was a bachelor. During the civil war Dr. Dodd was surgeon aboard the United States Army hospital steamer Ben Deford. He was graduated from the College of Physicians and Surgeons, and for several years was a surgeon in Bellevue Hospital.

JOHN H. STOWESAND, 38 years old, who died in Brooklyn Tuesday, was the son of the late Diedrich and Sophia M. Stowesand. Mr. Stowesand was a member of a retail grocery establishment in West Broadway which has been conducted by members of the Stowesand family since 1863. He is survived by his brother, D. William Stowesand, of 260 Ridgewood Avenue, Brooklyn.

A cable dispatch from China yesterday told Pittsburg relatives of the death of Mrs. FANNIE WILFORD STEWART of Trenton, N. J., who was at Wushi visiting her daughter. Mrs. Stewart was 62 years old, and was the granddaughter of Samuel L. Southard, once Governor of New Jersey.

Rioting at the Tomb of Christ

JAMES CREELMAN'S astonishing story of the desecration of the Saviour's tomb—desecration not by Turks, but by Christians—will appear in the first installment to be published next Sunday.

The Sunday Times,

After leaving the scene of the Turkish outrages on Christians in Armenia, Mr. Creelman turned to Jerusalem, where he found a condition even more discouraging. The attacks on Christians in Armenia were made by unbelievers, but the disgraceful scenes at the tomb of Christ were chargeable only to believers, and the disgrace was deepened by the fact that Turkish soldiers—the soldiers of unbelief—were stationed there to keep order among the followers of Christ.

No more amazing story has ever been told. For centuries the Turk and the heathen have been held up to opprobrium as the desecrators of the Holy Sepulchre, and at one time all Europe united, in the Crusades, to save the holy spot from their polluting touch. But from Mr. Creelman's investigations, made on the spot, it appears that it is the Christians who profane the sacred place, and that the Turks are there to maintain order among the warring sects.

"If we were not here the Christians would kill each other," said one of the Turkish soldiers to Mr. Creelman, and a guard of soldiers is kept there continually to save the sanctity of the Tomb.

The story that Mr. Creelman has to tell, which will appear in successive issues of

The Sunday Times,

is such as to challenge the attention of the Christian world. It calls for action to remove a scandal.

WOMEN COMPETE FOR GOLF HONORS

MRS. DONOHUE BEST PUTTER

More Than Fifty Fair Contestants of Eastern Golf Association Participate in One-Day Tourney.

Close finishes marked the one-day golf tournament open to members of the Women's Eastern Golf Association held over the Montclair Golf Club links yesterday. More than fifty teed up in the eighteen-hole medal play handicap, which was won by Miss Frances Cooper of the home club, with a card of 107-24-83. Miss Elizabeth Hurry of Englewood got second prize with 89-2-87, while her clubmate, Miss Julia R. Mix, the metropolitan champion, won gross score honors with a round of 88. Miss Mix's card, one of the best ever returned by a woman at Montclair, read as follows:

Out .... 6 5 5 7 4 6 4 5 4—46
In .... 5 4 5 4 4 6 3 6 5—42—88

Mrs. F. E. Donohue, the Montclair woman who had been instrumental in arranging this affair, won the putting competition with a score of 37 for eighteen holes. Mrs. W. G. Bird of Dunwoodie was second with 38, while Mrs. T. Nielson of Hackensack and Mrs. William Benson of Yountakah tied for third prize with thirty-nine each. The scores in handicap play were:

COLLEGE GRADS ON LINKS.

Frank Enos, Princeton, Captures First Net Score Honors.

One of the best turnouts in years assembled at St. Andrew's yesterday for the seventeenth semi-annual handicap tournament of the University Club Golf Association. College graduates from various localities tried their luck, and it remained for Frank Enos, formerly of Princeton but now an Englewood regular, to win the first net prize with 147 for thirty-six holes. He had a 32-stroke allowance. J. S. Wood of Yale, 186—36—150, and R. L. Tarlton, Johns Hopkins, 182—28—154, won second and third prizes, respectively, while John Reid, Jr., who when a student at Yale won the intercollegiate title, won gross score honors with 165. He started from scratch and had consistent rounds of 82 and 83.

The ball sweepstakes in the afternoon was won by J. T. Gillespie of Yale, 88—15—73. C. W. Pierson, another New Haven graduate, got the second share with 86—11—75. The scores were:

PRINCETON FALL GAMES.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 20.—With a large crowd of spectators present and the weather all that could be desired, the annual Fall track games of the Princeton classes were held this afternoon. The largest number of points was scored by the freshman class, winning with a total of 49. The sophomores scored 39 points, seniors 18 points, and juniors 11 points. The best showing was made by Pendleton, quarter back on the freshman team, who was stiff and sore from football bruises, yet he had no trouble in winning the 100 and 220 yard dashes in 0:10 2-5 and 0:22 4-5 respectively.

One interesting feature of the meet was the fact that over 170 men were entered. Heretofore the number has never been over 100. Credit is due the new track coach, Charles H. Wilson, for his efforts in stirring up enthusiasm in track work.

A surprise of the afternoon was the defeat of J. P. McKinney of last year's freshman relay team, which won the intercollegiate championship, by F. D. Close, a freshman. A senior, Cadwell, who is a novice at pole vaulting, won that event with a vault of 11 feet 2 inches, but failed in a try at the record, 11 feet 4 inches. The summary:

440-Yard Run.—Won by Close, 1913; McKinney, 1912, second; McLean, 1913, third. Time—0:54 2-5.

880-Yard Run.—Won by Connor, 1913; Wallace, 1913, second; Stickney, 1913, third. Time—2:06 3-5.

Mile Run.—Won by Valentine, 1911; Hoyt, 1912, second; Paine, 1912, third. Time—4:56.

Two-Mile Run.—Won by Curtiss, 1913; Koehler, 1912, second; Kirkpatrick, 1910, third. Time—10:34.

120-Yard Hurdles.—Won by Baldwin, 1910; Mulford, 1913, second; Maires, 1911, third. Time—0:19 4-5.

220-Yard Hurdles.—Won by Breingan, 1912; Dusenberry, 1910, second; Maires, 1911, third. Time—0:29.

High Jump.—Won by Irwin, 1913; De La Rensille, 1913, second; Terry, 1912, third. Height—5 feet 6 inches.

Hammer Throw.—Won by Speers, 1912; Critchlow, 1910, second; Riggs, 1912, third. Distance—135 feet.

Columbia Seniors Beat Sophs.

Seniors.	Position.	Sophomores.
Giegerich	Centre	Spaethoff
Osterhout	Right guard	Lordley
Schnepp	Right tackle	Pyne
McConnell	Right end	Diederich
Selvage	Quarter back	Mullin
Murphy	Right half back	Barrett
Saunders	Full back	Moore, Edmunds

Touchdowns—Saunders, Keator. Goal from touchdown—Keator. Safety—Mullin. Referee—B. J. Wefers. Umpire—W. Kinney. Timekeeper—J. C. Rice. Substitutes—Tallant for McConnell, Kear for Diederich, Edmunds for Moore. Time of halves—Twenty minutes.

Pennington Makes Big Score.

Special to The New York Times.

PENNINGTON, N. J., Oct. 20.—The Pennington Seminary football team defeated the State School's team of Trenton to-day by the score of [illegible] to 0. Harrison, Hart, Bills, and Duffy were enabled to make runs of from 45 to 85 yards with little trouble, using the forward pass.

AUTO DRIVERS NOT LIKELY TO STRIKE

PRACTICE BEGINS ON COURSE

Chalmers-Detroit Cars the First to be Tried Out—Big Crowd Sees Fast Time Made on Long Island.

The threatened strike of the drivers in the Vanderbilt Cup race will probably fall through lack of support. The prime movers are George Robertson and Frank Lescault, but as nearly all the other drivers of prominence have signed to drive in the contest it is improbable that the protest will assume serious proportions. The demand for cash prizes in the race has fallen upon unheeding ears, and there seems to be no serious obstacle to the manufacturers securing all the competent drivers they may need. Robertson and Lescault will lack the support of Ralph De Palmer and Herbert Lytle. The former is recuperating from his recent smash on the half-mile track at Danbury, Conn., and the latter is at Dr. Rorr's sanitarium at Brentwood, L. I. Without these two drivers the movement is not likely to gather much strength.

The big cash prizes offered at Savannah, Indianapolis, Lowell, and Philadelphia are largely responsible for the threatened hold-up of the manufacturers. Manager Pardington is of the opinion that the manufacturers should be willing to pay substantial bonuses in the event of their drivers being successful. He said the Motor Cups Holding Company had decided not to pay prize money for the Vanderbilt classes, and ridiculed the report that the drivers objected to risking their lives for empty honor.

With several of the drivers in the race on the course the greatest automobile event of the year is coming more and more to the fore. The first practice took place yesterday, when the turns and the dangerous corners of the Vanderbilt Cup course were crowded with spectators, and the event assumed its old-time picturesque appearance. From now on until the day of the race, a week from Saturday, these impromptu daylight tryouts will furnish a line for the experts to figure out the ultimate winner of the race. Four cars were sent over the course yesterday, including three Chalmers-Detroits and one Apperson.

The Chalmers cars were driven by Dingley, Knipper, and Matson, while Hugh Harding, whose racing car is not yet ready, drove around in an Apperson touring car.

Harry Knipper in a Chalmers "30" made the best time of the day, 12 minutes 30 seconds for the 12.64 mile circuit or better than sixty-two miles an hour for the first time out. Dingley and Matson were a trifle slower, but as the former was driving a thirty horse power car and not the forty horse power car which he will use in the race, the result was not surprising.

Matson had tire trouble and was ditched shortly after his start. Knipper ran out of gasoline on his second circuit of the course near the grand stand, while Dingley's car had some trifling trouble. No other times were taken.

All four of the Chalmers and some other cars are expected on the course this morning, but it will probably be Monday before all the cars get going. Two National cars, with Charles Merz and Jack Aiken as drivers, joined the camp yesterday.

Crown Point Course Abandoned.

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—Crown Point's grand stand for automobile races, erected at the time of the Cobe and Indiana Trophy events, with a seating capacity of 10,000, is now in the hands of a wrecking crew. Although lacking official confirmation from the Chicago Automobile Club, which faced a deficit of some $30,000 in promoting the races, the Crown Point-Lowell course is now believed to be abandoned so far as big automobile races are concerned.

Schoolboys in Cross-Country Runs.

Beginning Saturday afternoon, Oct. 23, and continuing every Saturday until Nov. 27, the Public Schools Athletic League will introduce cross-country running for the season of 1909 to the high school boys of Greater New York. The boys will be led by prominent distance runners of the Amateur Athletic Union, who have volunteered their services in the hopes of advancing distance running by the youths of America. The boys from Brooklyn, Richmond, and Queens Boroughs will start from the Brooklyn Athletic Field, Avenue L and East Seventeenth Street, and will be led by Eddie Carr and Jim Clark of the Xavier Athletic Club, and George Obermeyer of the National Athletic Club. Manhattan and the Bronx boys will start from Crotona Field, Crotona Park North, opposite Prospect Avenue, Bronx, and led by William Rozett of the Pastime Athletic Club, Dick Devlin and William Foran of the Mott Haven Athletic Club. The run will start promptly at 3 P. M., and the distance will be about three miles.

Basket Ball at Barnard College.

Mr. E. Fauver of Columbia University will again coach the basket ball team at Barnard College. Of course the girls are delighted, but they don't dare make too much of a fuss for fear of scaring him away. Yesterday the first practice of the season was held in the Thompson Gymnasium. There were about fifty girls out, among them nearly all of the veterans besides a number of promising freshmen. The 'Varsity team will play its first game with Teachers' College, and just as soon as the freshman team is in trim it will challenge the freshmen of the Horace Mann School. Besides, there is going to be an alumnae team, composed of all ex-'Varsity players. The Smithers twins, formerly Barnard's best athletes, will play forward and guard, respectively, on the team.

St. Francis Teams in Basketball.

St. Francis's College defeated the 'Varsity of St. Francis Xavier in basket ball at the latter's "gym" by the score of 29 to 9. This was the opening game of St. Francis's (Brooklyn) basket ball season, and it is confident of having one of the fastest quintets in college basket ball.

St. George A. C. Wins at Basket Ball.

The basket ball team of the St. George Athletic Club last night on its own court, 207 East Sixteenth Street, defeated the five of the Bethany Athletic Club by a total of 22 to 9.

Crack Harvard Runner Disabled.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 20.—Herbert Jacques, the fast Harvard runner, will not compete for the Crimson next Spring. During the Summer in the Maine woods an axe fell on one of Jacques's feet, nearly severing a toe. During training he stubbed the injured toe and reopened the old wound. His physician says he will not be able to do any athletic work for at least six months. Jacques is the fastest miler and two-miler that has ever trod the cinder path at Harvard.

Baseball Scandal at Atlanta.

MEMPHIS, Oct. 20.—Former Manager M. A. Smith of Atlanta's pennant-winning Southern League baseball team has been cited to appear before the Directors at the annual meeting here Nov. 8 to sustain charges he is alleged to have made to the effect that Atlanta baseball officials dismissed him because he would not "draw a fine finish on the pennant race the past season." Smith is at his home in Springfield, Ohio.

Women Ride in Drag Hunt.

Special to The New York Times.

LONG BRANCH, N. J., Oct. 20.—Ten riders followed the pack of the Monmouth County Hunt Club in an interesting drag this afternoon from Elberon to Wolf Hill, on the Eatontown drive, a distance of five miles. Howard Borden of the Rumson Country Club, under whose auspices the hunts are being held, rode as master. Much of the going was in the open, and there was little high jumping until near the end of the hunt. Mrs. Louis White of New York and Miss Jones of Rumson were among the riders.

YALE SCRUBS SCORE TWICE.

Brooks, Second Team Man, Takes Ted Coy's Measure in Scrimmaging.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 20.—A blocked kick and a fumble by Ted Coy this afternoon gave the Yale scrubs a chance to make two touch-downs. They have not scored more than once on the regulars since the season opened until to-day. When they scored before they beat the first eleven in the afternoon's play. They were not so fortunate to-day, for the regulars sent four scores across the line before practice closed, making it four touch-downs to two for the first team.

Two playing periods were ordered, the first of 25 minutes and the next 15 minutes. It was the longest scrimmaging of the year, and was in spots the loosest. Capt. Coy seemed to have played himself out in his brilliant performance of yesterday. Springer Brooks of the second team was his nightmare this afternoon. Coy faltered in handling a punt, which he received from the second team, and Brooks snatched the ball away from him. Brooks sprinted 70 yards for the touch-down. Another 70-yard run by Brooks made the second touch-down possible. He dashed through the line and blocked a punt which Coy got off rather late. Brooks grabbed the ball and raced down the field, chased by Howe, the 'Varsity quarter back. Howe overhauled his man at the 10-yard line and threw him. The scrubs, however, had an effective forward pass in reserve. Merritt dipped one ahead to Buck Freeman, who took the ball over the line. Lilley, Francis, and Daly shared the scoring honors for the 'Varsity.

Old-fashioned line-bucking was ordered from the centre of the field for the next touch-down. Daly plunged through tackle for the score. Lilley took another onside kick, chased to the 25-yard line, and Potter was pushed over for the fourth score.

Most of the 'Varsity veterans were again absent from the line-up. Hobbs, Andrus, Goebel, Philbin, and Field have not played since the West Point game last Saturday. It was learned to-day that Andrus's back was wrenched during the game. He will be able to play part of next Saturday's game with Colgate.

It developed to-day that Hyde, centre rush, whose rib was bruised in the scrimmage yesterday, will be laid up several days. He is not expected to be in the line-up Saturday. Deming and Logan, who have been on the hospital list nearly a week, were in the scrimmaging part of the time this afternoon, although Deming limped badly.

TIGER SCRUBS ACTIVE.

Princeton Second String Makes First Team Men Hustle in Practice.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 20.—Football practice was again open to the undergraduates this afternoon and a large number were in the bleachers to watch the work of the squad. The practice was hard and fast, and the coaches were well satisfied. The forward pass was tried several times, and not once did it fail. In fact, the first touchdown the 'Varsity made was on a forward pass, Bergen to Grainger. Another touchdown was made when Matthews took the ball over in the second of the fifteen-minute halves.

Notwithstanding the improvement in the 'Varsity, however, the scrub team made its second touchdown of the season against the 'Varsity to-day, when Musser of the scrubs dashed through the line and blocked Cunningham's kick. Vandyke, the scrub end, picked up the ball and ran from midfield for the 'Varsity's goal.

Harvard in Ten-Minute Scrimmage.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 20.—With several substitutes in line the Harvard 'Varsity faced the second eleven this afternoon for two ten-minute scrimmages. Corbett and McKay did not report. Corbett is getting along nicely, but Dr. Nichols does not expect him out for work until next week. McKay was a bit out of sorts, but is expected to be ready for the Brown game on Saturday. Frothingham took Corbett's place at half back, but failed to show his usual brilliancy. On several of his attempts the opposing ends refused to be boxed, and, circling his interference, threw the wiry half back for a loss. Hooper, substitute for McKay, bore the brunt of the enemy's attack, and found the road hard traveling. The "subs" plowed through him so heavily that the secondary defence had its hands full trying to prevent further gains. Rogers, who relieved Houston at left end, played a gilt-edge game. He fitted in the interference nicely, and twice beat the punted ball down the field, downing its receiver in his tracks. L. Withington, at left guard, looks like a fixture. Some fine points in the "subs'" play rattled the youngsters somewhat, but experience will soon wear this away. Minot's work was almost flawless. He is a very difficult man to tackle. The 'Varsity scored twice, once in each session. The line worked more aggressively than heretofore, although the "subs'" trick plays had them guessing at the start. In the second half Perkins relieved P. Withington at centre, and Blodgett went in for Fisher at right guard.

Five Army Cadets Hurt in Practice.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 20.—In the first scrimmage of the week the best the 'Varsity could do to-day against the strong scrubs was a single touchdown. The score was made a couple of minutes after the game began. Dean had gotten off a beautiful punt for sixty-five yards to the scrubs' five-yard mark, where Cramer fumbled, and Wood recovered for the 'Varsity. Dean circled the end, and as he was about to be tackled passed the ball to Byrne, who scored the touchdown. More men retired with injuries than at any practice this year. Shortly after the 'Varsity had scored Surles, who was playing full back, injured his shoulder and was forced to retire. Hyatt had been doing some pretty end running and was dodging through a broken field when a hard tackle made him take the count with a twisted ankle. Wood, the Army speedy end, followed next with a wrenched shoulder. Byrne made a hard tackle to stop a line plunge, and his knee suffered an injury that sent him to the side lines. Brown had recovered a fumble from a kick formation and was speeding around the end when he injured his head. Weir got in the scrimmage to-day for the first time in weeks and showed up well.

Cornell Blues Beat 'Varsity Team.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 20.—The Blues and the Reds had it out in a snappy game at Percy Field this afternoon, and the Blues won, 18 to 6. The Blues, the second team, with Simson at full back, Monk, O'Rourke, Stude, and Farrington playing tackles and a fast back field opened up a series of new football plays on the 'Varsity, and had the big fellows guessing most of the time. The tackling of both teams was an improvement, and the plays worked with greater smoothness. Stevenson, Teagle, and Crosby were tried out at ends on the 'Varsity, Leventry and Morton on the second team.

Officials for Army-Navy Game.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 20.—Mindful of the delays and trouble experienced in agreeing upon the men who were to officiate at the big football game at Philadelphia last year, the Athletic Council at West Point and the Executive Committee of the Navy Athletic Association have already settled this question for this year. The two bodies, after some correspondence, have selected the following officials: A. L. Sharp of Yale, referee; E. K. Hall of Dartmouth, umpire; W. S. Langford of Trinity, field judge, and Ed Smith, present field coach at Pennsylvania, head linesman.

N. Y. U. Plays High School Boys.

New York University played a practice game of football with High School of Commerce on Ohio Field yesterday afternoon. Neither team was allowed to score, but the university boys easily showed their superiority, carrying the ball down the field repeatedly. The high school team, however, made a few pretty plays. Their gains were chiefly due to the clever work of Full Back Herschman. Although not heavy, Herschman is fast, and plays a very heady game.

High School Players Under Ban.

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 20.—Because they were back in their studies, nine men on the Ithaca High School eleven were told by Vice Principal J. S. Dubois to-day to quit football, and his action practically cancels the balance of the season's schedule, for the nine men are the best of the eleven.

THOMAS WON TWICE; LOST BOTH WINNERS

BEAUCOUP BEAT THE SQUIRE

Pretend, at Long Odds On, Had a Hard Task to Take the Meadow Creek Stakes at Jamaica.

To win two races in an afternoon and lose both his winning horses was a freak of fortune that befell R. L. Thomas, a Western horseman, at the Jamaica track yesterday, and lent novelty to the happenings at the race course. In both cases the Thomas horses upset well-backed public favorites, and Thomas was credited with big profits from his own ventures in the betting, but the races he won were selling races, and in both cases his horses were bid up and bought by owners of beaten horses.

The Thomas part of the proceedings came as the wind up of a fairly interesting programme, witnessed by the best patronage of the week, and began when in a race reduced to three starters the Thomas entry, County Clerk, beat the odds on favorite, Belleview, in the selling mile and a half.

County Clerk was entered to sell for $500, and Henry McDaniel, trainer of the Thomas horses, seemed really pleased when D. Woodford, trainer of Belleview, bid $700 and got the horse. McDaniel was not so nonchalant when the second Thomas winner, Sir Ashton, was offered after his hard fight to get home for the closing race. Thomas had two entries in the race, a selling handicap sprint for two-year-olds, and while either of them looked able to win, the stable sent out Sir Ashton and scratched Flying Squirrel. Sir Ashton, entered to sell for $800, won well off in front of Sou, which closed from far back in the crowd, Calypte finishing third. The stable protected Sir Ashton against the bids of R. F. Carman, owner of Calypte, up to $1,300, at which price the colt went to Carman.

In the handicap at a mile and a furlong, Beaucoup added one more to the list of upsets that the Montpelier Stable's horses have caused at the meeting by beating The Squire, the top weight and favorite.

The nominal feature of the card, the Meadow Creek Stakes, for two-year-olds, was reduced by scratches to three runners, and Pretend started at prohibitive odds on against two very ordinary horses, and had the hardest sort of a task to win from St. Dunstan. The summaries:

FIRST RACE.—For three-year-olds and upward; selling allowances; six furlongs.

F. A. Forsythe's Twilight Queens, b. f., 3, by Oddfellow-Ferral, 100, (Glass,) 4 to 1 and 6 to 5 .... 1^{h}

World's Trotting Record to Wagon.

HORSES FALL; RIDERS HURT.

H. N. Potter and Thomas Crimmins Injured While Riding to Hounds.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Oct. 20.—It became known to-day that two members of the Westchester County Hunt Club, which has a clubhouse between White Plains and Purchase, were seriously injured while following the hounds yesterday afternoon. It was the weekly hunt of the club, and the field was made up of a dozen members of the club. The run covered a course of ten miles, and the hunters were on their return to the clubhouse when the accident happened.

Howard N. Potter, a New York architect, who resides on North Street at White Plains, was riding rapidly, and while taking the jump over a stone fence his horse made a misstep and fell, throwing Mr. Potter about twenty feet. He broke two of his ribs and fractured another, while a stone penetrated the brain of his horse and killed it instantly.

Thomas Crimmins, son of Contractor John D. Crimmins, was also riding to the hounds at a fast clip when his horse stumbled and took a header on the turf. Mr. Crimmins struck on his right shoulder, which was dislocated. Dr. Elbert W. Page of White Plains attended the injured man. Mr. Potter was able to go to his home in an automobile. Mr. Crimmins spent last night at the club and returned to New York to-day.

ROAD DRIVERS' MATINEE.

The lover of light harness racing was in his element yesterday afternoon when the Road Drivers' Association of New York held its second Fall matinée over the half-mile course on the Speedway. Weather conditions were ideal.

The race for Class A, pacers, brought out one of the most representative fields, and three heats were necessary to determine the winner. S. B. Wolff's bay mare, Minnie Albert, took the honors in the event, winning the first and third heats.

Christopher Hackett's Who Knows was too fast for Coast Marie, driven by J. A. Murphy, in an exhibition race, the former winning easily in straight heats. In the first half mile Coast Marie was beaten by a length, and the second heat showed a slightly greater margin in favor of the Hackett entry. The summary:

Race Horses at Low Prices.

A combination sale of race horses in training, comprising everything from steeplechasers down to yearlings that had been broken, tried, and weeded out by the big stables, was held at the Jamaica race course before the races yesterday afternoon. A dozen stables were represented, with the most important consignment by August Belmont. Of the Belmont lot, Dullcare, a two-year-old winner in the Spring, brought the top price, going to J. R. Fleischmann for $2,130. Among the Belmont horses sold were several yearlings by the $125,000 stallion Rocksand, of which Quicksand, a bay colt from Queen's Bower, went to R. F. Little for $500, the others being modest figures. Among the consignors to the sale were Thomas Monahan, J. W. Colt, A. L. Aste, M. M. Allen, the Silver Brook Stud, Samuel Emery, and H. B. Duryea, the Duryea offering being to close out Mr. Duryea's establishment in the United States, as he will confine his racing next season to France and England. With the trained horses there also were sold a small consignment of yearlings bred by A. L. Aste, most of them the produce of Jack Point, small prices ruling.

WIRELESS FROM JEFFRIES.

On Board Lusitania at Sea Says He Is Feeling Fine.

"To the Associated Press,

"New York:

"I am feeling fine, and shall be glad to get home. I can say nothing definite before reaching America. I expect my fight with Johnson to take place before a responsible club offering the largest purse.

"JAMES J. JEFFRIES."

The foregoing wireless message came from Jeffries last night. He will reach New York on the Lusitania late to-night or early to-morrow morning. Jeffries is returning from the Continent after taking the waters at Carlsbad, Bohemia, and a brief course of preliminary training at Neuilly, near Paris. His arrival here is awaited with a great deal of interest in sporting circles, as it is confidently believed that the details of a match with Jack Johnson, the champion, will be arranged here within the next few days. Tuesday night of next week has been set for a meeting between Jeffries, his manager, San Berger; George Little, manager of Johnson, and James Coffroth, the San Francisco fight promoter. Coffroth, it is said, will come prepared to make an offer of a large purse for the fight to take place in San Francisco.

Problems for Navy Coaches.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 20.—The Naval Academy coaches have determined to give the team more actual work, and this afternoon a large part of the practice was devoted to a spirited line-up, the places on the regular team being changed rapidly. The injury to Wilson having reduced the available quarter back material, the coaches are paying special attention to developing a suitable man for the place. The possibilities are Battle, Nason, Byrd, Irwin, and Shaw. Of these, Nason and Byrd are not quite in the best physical shape, and Battle is regarded as the most promising, owing to his experience and ability in handling kicks and running through a broken field. Capt. Meyer, Richardson, and Reifsnider composed the hospital squad this afternoon, but otherwise the squad is in fair shape. The continued disability of Meyer is making it doubtful whether he will be of much use to the team this season. Brand is acting Captain. Brand has been substitute centre for three seasons, and played parts of several games.

Walker Pack Win Match Hunt.

BARRE, Mass., Oct. 20.—A match pack fox-hunt between the Walker foxhounds of Kentucky strain and the July pack of Georgia strain was won in the third day's running to-day by the Walker pack. Samuel L. Woodridge of Versailles, Ky., was master of the winning pack, and George J. Garrett of Baltimore was master of the July hounds. The packs numbered ten hounds each.

White Sox Gets Blackburn.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 20.—Application by the Pittsburg National League Club for a rehearing in the controversy with the American League Club of Chicago regarding title to the services of Shortstop Blackburn of the Providence Club was overruled to-night by Chairman Herrmann of the National Baseball Commission. As a result of this decision the former award of the player to the Chicago Club is affirmed.

Duffy to Manage White Sox.

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—Hugh Duffy, part owner and manager of the Providence team in the Eastern League and formerly member of Comiskey's and Anson's teams, will succeed Billy Sullivan as leader of the Chicago Americans next year.

OUR BORROWINGS ABROAD.

Mr. Schiff Says Indebtedness to Europe Has Been Exaggerated.

Jacob H. Schiff, who was at his office yesterday, following his return on Tuesday from a month in Europe, expressed the belief that the amount of our indebtedness to Europe in the shape of finance bills drawn by our bankers has been much exaggerated, and that, moreover, a large part of what we have to borrow abroad has already been cared for. Mr. Schiff also told of the confidence felt abroad in the continued growth of this country. He said:

"I am sure that our borrowings have been largely cared for—that is to say, a large portion of our bankers' indebtedness to Europe has been, I think, paid off. These payments have been heavier than many have supposed, so that the present volume outstanding is relatively small.

"I found the greatest confidence abroad in the future of this country and the prospects for continued improvement here. Germany takes the keenest interest in the United States. The Germans have made a great deal of money in our securities.

"They keep in close touch with what happens here. Money is worth more in Germany to-day than anywhere else in the world. There is not enough money in Germany to finance German prosperity. I do not believe that the Germans have made large advances to this market. The great German banks are always more or less interested here, but I do not think that they have large investments here at the moment.

"In Germany the speculation has been largely confined to the colonial and industrial stocks.

"This has been going on for some time, and the banks that brought out their issues have been able to market a very large part of their holdings. The result is that the banks there have made large profits. I think that the hardest speculation in Germany is now about over. The movement has, in other words, largely subsided."

LARGER WHISKY CONSUMPTION

The annual report of the Distillers' Securities Corporation for the year ended June 30 shows a large recovery from the slump in business which hit the company hard after the panic, and the figures furnished comparing the withdrawals of all kinds of distilled spirits from bond for consumption last year with those each year for a decade indicate that notwithstanding the widespread temperance movement the consumption of whisky and other hard liquors is materially increasing.

The figures given, which are taken from the returns of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, show, however, that the manufacture of distilled spirits is still well below the high rate established in 1907, when 168,573,913 gallons were produced. Last year's production was 128,634,025. The withdrawals from bond last year totaled 134,901,408 gallons, which is the heaviest on record, and compares with 1907's withdrawals of 134,031,066 gallons.

The company's gross profits for the year were $2,683,236, which compares with $2,454,390 in 1907-08, and with the high record established in 1906-07 of $4,541,696. Net profits were $734,206, compared with $343,330 in the panic year and $2,558,767 in 1906-07. The surplus at the end of the year was $5,730,398. President Curley summarizes general conditions as follows:

"Every department of the company's business shows a material increase in profits over the same period of the preceding year, and while the improvement has been gradual it has been constantly maintained.

New Business on Steel Books Heavy—Supply of Raw Material Scarce.

Commenting on the situation in the steel trade, The Iron Age says:

> New business going on the books of the large steel companies is very heavy and the problem of securing a sufficient supply of raw materials to take care of it is still present. Partly, no doubt, because the trade is growing used to the pace, there is less excitement than was apparent in September. Yet with some producers of pig iron, sales for the first half of October have been greater than for that portion of September, when fear of a runaway market was greatest.
>
> Satisfaction is expressed that the talk of pig iron importations—and it is largely talk thus far—has acted as a check upon the advance. Offers of English hematite have been made to steel makers in this country. It is figured that with the drawback on exported steel made from this iron it would cost $18.17 net, Pittsburg. Even with Bessemer iron now at $19.90, Pittsburg, there is no likelihood of importations of such iron.
>
> The buying of pig iron has kept up in the past week, and has included some liberal orders from foundries, chiefly for delivery in the first quarter and first half of 1910.
>
> A sale of 12,000 tons and one of 5,000 tons of basic iron were made for Eastern Pennsylvania delivery in the first quarter of 1910, the former at $18.50, but $19 is now asked.
>
>
> The scarcity of billets is even more acute. Considerably higher prices are named for delivery next year.

The Iron Trade Review says:

> The American Bridge Company, a subsidiary of the Steel Corporation, announces that it will begin immediately the construction at Gary, Ind., of a plant with a capacity to fabricate 10,000 tons of structural material monthly. The plans contemplate an increase of capacity to 20,000 tons monthly.
>
> Heavy ordering of cars and locomotives by the New York Central and other lines have been a leading feature of the week. More than 8,000 cars have been ordered, including 4,000 by the New York Central lines, and about 60,000 tons of steel will be required in the construction.

LINOTYPE CO.'S BIG PROFITS.

During the year ended Sept. 30 the Mergenthaler Linotype Company made a net gain over the previous year, President Dodge told stockholders yesterday, of $2,642,468. In 1907-8 the net gain was $2,426,716.

No income account was furnished, but the assets reported in the balance sheet show a gain of $2,727,022, largely due to the increase in stocks and bonds held since their advance from $240,412 to $3,096,617. At the same time open accounts increased from $860,989 to $1,191,680. During the year machines were introduced into 662 offices.

At the annual meeting Sir Joseph Lawrence, Chairman of the Linotype Machinery Company, Ltd., of London was elected a Director to succeed the late Andrew Devine.

New Publicity Agent for Pennsylvania.

The Pennsylvania Railroad announced yesterday the resignation of Ivy Lee from his place as head of the road's Publicity Bureau, and the appointment of his assistant, J. W. Lee, Jr., as his successor. Mr. Lee has resigned to take charge of the European business of the banking house of Harris, Winthrop & Co., which is about to open branch offices in London and Paris. He will sail on the Cedric on Oct. 30.

Results of Billiard Games.

In the three-cushion carrom billiard tournament, in progress at Doyle's Billiard Parlors, Broadway and Forty-second Street, Alec Smith last night defeated Frank Tannehill in a thirty-nine-inning game by a score of 25 to 18. The high run of 5 was made by Smith. To-night Ora Morningstar will play William Woods a 300-point exhibition game at 18.2 balkline.

Two games were played yesterday in the amateur billiard tournament at Daly's Billiard Academy, Broadway and Forty-ninth Street. In the afternoon Cutler defeated Lewis by a total of 300 to 81 at 18.2 balk line. The average of the winner was 15 15-9, with the high run of 103. Lewis averaged 4 5-19 and made a high run of 17. The evening game also went to the credit of Cutler, who defeated Fishel by a score og 200 to 73. Cutler's average was 13 5-15, and his high run 79. The average made by Fischel was 4 13-15, with his best turn at the table netting him 16.

At the Morningside Billiard Academy, 290 Lenox Avenue, last night H. Hoffman defeated Robinson by a score of 200 to 140 in a forty-eight-inning match at 18.2 balk line. To-night the contestants in the tournament will be F. Reed and E. Barnes.

EXTENDING PUMP CO. PLANTS.

On Inspection Tour President Guggenheim Finds Orders Beyond Capacity.

President Benjamin Guggenheim of the International Steam Pump Company, who has just returned from a tour of inspection of the company's Eastern plants, issued a statement yesterday, saying that nearly all of the factories were running at full capacity and that it would require extra efforts to fill orders in hand.

Hawley in Another Directorate.

Edwin Hawley, who has been rapidly extending his railroad connections since the death of E. H. Harriman and only a week ago acquired control, in conjunction with B. F. Yoakum, of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas, was elected to the Directorate of the Mercantile Trust Company yesterday. At the same time Thomas De Witt Cuyler was elected a Director.

SHAKE-UP IN LA ROSE.

Election of New Managers Confirms Rumors of Internal Dissension.

After the annual meeting of the La Rose Consolidated Mines Company yesterday changes were made in the Directors and officers at a special meeting of the board, which threw light on the rumors of dissention in the management that have been current since the stock made a sensational slump on the Curb two weeks ago. It then dropped from around 8 to 5⅝, but has since recovered to around 7.

D. Lorne McGiggon was elected to succeed John McMartin as President. He explained the situation by saying that the changes had been made at the request of a number of the largest stockholders, and that he and the other new officers and Directors had only agreed to assume responsibility for the future management of the property after a full examination of its affairs and upon being satisfied that its mines and properties were "in splendid physical shape and its prospects never brighter."

The Directors of the Nipissing Mines Company who have been in the board are retained, David Fasken of that company becoming Vice President and Richard T. Greene, Secretary. The other new Directors are: George Washington Stephens, Shirley Ogilvie, Alexander Pringle, and Victor E. Mitchell, K. C., all of Montreal.

The report shows total earnings for the year ended May 31 of $1,565,068, out of which mining and other expenses of $510,498 and dividends totalling $633,090 were paid, leaving a surplus for the year of $421,481.

METAL MARKET REPORTS.

On the Metal Exchange in London yesterday copper, for both spot and future deliveries, unchanged from the initial prices of yesterday, receded 5s from the final quotations of Tuesday. The market finished steady, closing prices ruling at: Spot, £57 10s; futures, £58 10s. Pig tin ended steady, with spot and future deliveries down 7s 6d, to £138 5s, and £139 15s, respectively. Spanish pig lead was easier at a recession of 1s 3d, to £13 5s. Spelter continued steady and unchanged, at £23 5s. Cleveland warrants were quoted at 51s 4½d.

	Wednesday.		Tuesday.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

HARRY MARTIN.—Judge Hand has appointed Hamilton M. Dawes receiver in bankruptcy for Harry Martin, dealer in dry goods at Mount Vernon. The stock, fixtures, and accounts are estimated at $3,000.

A. A. WEEKS-HOSKINS COMPANY.—Albert B. Kerr has been elected Trustee in bankruptcy for the A. A. Weeks-Hoskins Company, wholesale and retail dealers in stationery supplies at 354 Broadway, at a meeting of creditors held at the office of Macgrane Coxe, referee in bankruptcy, 50 Church Street, and his bond was fixed at $75,000. The liabilities are $160,932.

AEOLIPYLE MANUFACTURING COMPANY.—Deputy Sheriff Burnes has received an execution for $4,527 against the Aeolipyle Manufacturing Company, fuel saving apparatus and devices for smokeless chimneys, at 45 East Forty-second Street, in favor of Ralph E. Lum, John Mertens, and George W. Wise. The company was incorporated in March, 1906, with a capital stock of $25,000.

JAMPOL & MARTZ.—Judge Hand has appointed L. Hollingsworth Wood receiver in bankruptcy for Jampol & Martz, roofers of 650 German Place, the Bronx. There are contracts under way aggregating $7,469, which can be completed at a cost of $3,964; there are some outstanding accounts, and lumber and machinery worth $1,000, but they have given a chattel mortgage on the machinery to a brother of one of the partners.

MORRIS ROBINSON.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Morris Robinson, living at 56 West 118th Street, who kept the Park House at Mountaindale, Sullivan County, by these creditors: David Joslowitz, $940; Samuel Levison, $200, and Lewis Max, Jr., $400, all for money lent to him. It was alleged that he was insolvent, admitted in writing inability to pay his debts, and a constable has levied on the hotel chattels under several attachments and executions aggregating $240, and advertised a sale on Oct. 21.

GIOVANNI SAVARESE.—Giovanni Savarese, Italian banker and dealer in wines and groceries at 536 Ninth Avenue, who disappeared four months ago and returned to this city on Oct. 13, has made a settlement with creditors, and Judge Hand has dismissed the petition in bankruptcy filed against him on July 30. Under the agreement with creditors Mr. Savarese has turned over all his property to Albert M. Yuzzolino, as Trustee for creditors, who is to carry on the business until creditors receive 75 per cent. of their claims, when the business is to be returned to Mr. Savarese. The property turned over to the Trustee includes both the banking and wine and grocery business, real estate at Harrison, N. Y., and Garfield, N. J., and shares of stock in a wine company hypothecated with a wholesale liquor firm at Pittsburg. The liabilities were about $21,000.

Out of Town.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Oct. 20.—Acknowledging debts of $22,636, with no assets, Edward A. Maloon of Brookline filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy to-day. Maloon gives his occupation as a salesman. The unsecured claims total $19,199, while $3,535 is secured among three creditors.

Thomas F. McNulty, a carpenter, of Somerset, has also filed a voluntary petition, showing liabilities of $18,862, with no assets. The Enterprise Brewing Company of Fall River is an unsecured creditor for $12,000.

DIAMONDS, PEARLS
AND PRECIOUS STONES.

EXHIBITION of the most magnificent display of Jewelry ever seen in this city daily till Saturday, October 23rd, 1909, 10 a. m. to 5 p. m.
Descriptive catalogue on application.

A Personal Word.

Never before has there been an auction sale of such magnitude as the above.

In my twenty-five years' experience I have never seen such a display of diamonds and other precious stones. And as for brilliancy and purity of color and quality there is no stock under any one roof to-day that can surpass it.

Each and every piece is a distinct triumph in artistic designing and mounting.

Besides the finest quality of diamonds ever sold at auction, this stock of jewelry also includes the finest quality of emeralds, pearls, rubies, sapphires, pink topaz and other precious stones.

Correspondence and cable advice indicate that diamonds of first quality are becoming difficult to purchase in the rough, and that the finished product will go to record prices beginning with next January. This is therefore an opportunity to buy the choicest diamonds in the market at lower prices than will ever prevail again.

SHARP RISE IN EXCHANGE

Indications of Further Advance in Bank of England Rate—Our September Trade Balance.

When the fact is noted that the trading in United States Steel common supplied over one-third of yesterday's total transactions on the Stock Exchange with an accompanying fractional decline in that stock not much remains to be said of the results of yesterday's session. A majority of the day's net changes represented losses, but these were without exception confined to fractions so far as the statement is applied to the stocks which were even moderately active. It was in the monetary developments rather than in the movements on the Stock Exchange itself that interest centred yesterday, and there the changes noted were of more than passing interest. The indications from abroad were that to-day will see a further rise in the Bank of England's minimum rate of discount, the open market rates having advanced in London to 4¼ per cent., against the 4 per cent. bank rate established last week, while here sterling exchange rose 50 points, to 4.87 for demand bills. Thus at a time when the New York market is accustomed to looking forward to the prospect of gold imports, exchange has advanced to a figure close enough to that at which gold might be shipped to Europe that bankers were discussing this possibility yesterday. Even now there are indications that the gold movement to South America from New York may be resumed on a moderately large scale, one small shipment having been announced yesterday. In our own money market yesterday there was no reflection of the further hardening of rates abroad, call money not exceeding 4½ per cent., while time money continued to show the easier tone noted at the opening of the week. Interest attaches to the statement of our foreign commerce for the month of September in that the month's figures bear out the expectation that with the growth in agricultural exports in September the balance of trade against this country which had been shown for the previous three months would be converted into a balance in our favor. The record shows that in September the exports exceeded the imports by over $32,900,000, the agricultural exports for the month having amounted to over $80,600,000, against $36,100,000 in August and $76,000,000 in September, 1908. With the further movement of the season's farm products it is reasonable to expect a continuance of this favorable trade balance, which incidentally will have its bearing upon the liquidation of our European loans. Our borrowings from abroad, however, according to the best-informed banking opinion, have been liquidated to a very considerable extent, and a further rise in the Bank of England's discount rate, should one be announced to-day, would hardly be attributable to demands by New York upon foreign money markets.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

WHEAT.—Opening prices were forced down yesterday by an early break of ⅜ to ⅞d at Liverpool and large Northwest receipts, but an unexpected jump in corn led to hasty buying. Later English markets were only ⅜ to ½d lower, while Berlin closed 1⅛c down and Budapest ⅝c lower. Seaboard clearance reached 502,000 bushels of wheat and flour. The primary movement of 1,667,000 bushels, compared with 1,194,000 bushels a year ago. No fresh export business developed. Cash wheat in New York was quoted: No. 2 red, $1.21¾, elevator, domestic; No. 1 Northern Duluth, $1.14¾, and No. 2 hard Winter, $1.21⅝, free on board, afloat, nominal.

CORN.—The feature yesterday was an advance of 1¼c in December at Chicago on wet weather in the belt. Liverpool closed ⅛d higher, and primary receipts of 369,000 bushels were slightly larger than a year ago. No. 2 corn in New York was quoted at 70c, elevator; 70½c, delivered, and 70⅛c, free on board, afloat; No. 2 yellow, 71½c, all nominal.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

SEARS-ROEBUCK IS HIGHER

Curb trading was again in considerable volume yesterday, and prices were generally firm, though in the mining list there were some small losses at the close. In the industrial list Sears-Roebuck continued to mount upward under comparatively heavy trading, the price rising from the opening at 139 to 145. The close, after transactions of 2,400 shares, was at 142¾. Chicago Subway was also strong and active, the price going to 9⅛. The high levels were not maintained, however, and the close, after transactions of 7,400 shares, was at 8⅜.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

A Strong Bear Clique.

Evidence accumulates that there is at work in the stock market a strong coterie of bearish speculators. The repeated drives against prices have involved transactions surpassing in volume anything that the lone bear would think of handling, and it is incredible that the bull interests in United States Steel, for example, would attempt to liquidate their holdings upon breaks of from 1 to 3 points in a single day. The Steel people have proved so clever that Wall Street as a whole prefers to believe they would liquidate on a rising market if their plans called for the winding up of their campaign. Who the moving spirit is in the new bear party is a mystery, but there were open hints on the floor of the Stock Exchange yesterday that his identity was at least confused with that of a very daring operator, who is credited with having made a fortune on the long rise in stocks, and who has openly put a big lot of money into New York real estate recently.

***

Doubts the McCrea Interview.

A dispatch which came over the news tickers from Chicago yesterday quoting an interview with President McCrea would have given Wall Street a decidedly bad quarter of an hour if the Street could have made up its mind that the interview was entirely correct, for what the head of the Pennsylvania, who is a man noted for his conservatism in speech and action, was alleged to have said in Chicago was this:

> Anti-railroad legislation will reach its height this Fall. Every man jack politician will go to Washington with all the fool legislation he can conjure, and try to work it off on the country. I expect to see more fool legislation at the next session than has yet been passed. Capital is nervous, and if Congress does not see the danger we shall have a recurrence of the late unpleasantness in the financial world.

Whether President McCrea said anything of the kind or not, the sentiment expressed in the interview fits in so well with Wall Street's own opinion of what is apt to turn up with the resumption of legislative sessions, National and State, this Fall, that in spite of the reluctance to accept the Chicago interview, it was not without effect. The phantom of adverse legislation and generally unsettling programmes by those in authority, which was raised and seemed so substantial in the Administration preceding that of Mr. Taft, promises to plague Wall Street for a long time to come.

Auction of Burlington Stock.

In the auction room there were put up for sale yesterday twenty-five shares of Chicago, Burlington & Quincy stock, and it was taken for granted that the amount, small as it is, would eventually, like all other offerings, large or small, within recent years, find its way into the strong boxes which hold all but a small amount of outstanding Burlington stock. Of Great Northern and Northern Pacific joint 4% bonds which were issued two for one for Burlington stock, there are now outstanding $215,227,000. If the full amount of Burlington stock were pledged behind these bonds the amount standing would be larger by $6,451,200. This represents some 32,251 shares of Burlington stock still outstanding, 14,960 of which are held in the treasury of the Northern Securities Company. The last sale of Burlington on the Stock Exchange was at 225 on April 28, and 248 was the latest bid. This price represents a very large premium, which some party is apparently willing to pay for the stock over what it will bring to him when converted into the joint 4 per cent. bonds.

New Northwestern Stock Issue.

The prospect of the railroads resorting to stock issues instead of bond issues to provide for such of their requirements as will be financed in the near future was emphasized yesterday by the reports that the Chicago & Northwestern is about to authorize another issue of stock to the reported amount of $25,000,000. Some time ago the road's stockholders increased the authorized amount of stock to $200,000,000, of which about $125,000,000 is now outstanding, leaving a balance of about $75,000,000 available for issue at the discretion of the Directors. The annual meeting of the company and the organization meeting of the Directors are to be held to-day in Chicago, but in well-informed banking quarters yesterday it was not known whether the road's Directors plan any immediate action regarding a further increase in the road's stock or whether some little time longer will be allowed to elapse before additional capital is raised. Inasmuch as the Northwestern has no large amount of bonds maturing next year it was assumed yesterday that any money raised at this time would rather be for further extension work than for the paying off of outstanding obligations.

THE COFFEE MARKET.

Coffee became active and firm yesterday on reports from Brazil that new crop prospects were unfavorable, owing to the failure of the Fall flowerings. The close was steady at a net advance of 5@10 points. Sales were reported of 7,500 bags.

The market opened at a decline of 5 points. Declines of 75 reis at Rio and of 50 reis at Santos were reported. The French market closed ¼ to ½f lower, while Hamburg was unchanged to ¼ lower. Rain was reported throughout Sao Paulo. Spot coffee was steady, 8⅛c nominal for Rio No. 7, and 8¾c for Santos No. 4.

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

LONDON, Oct. 20.—Money was in moderate supply and demand on the market to-day. Discounts were firmer on prospects of further gold withdrawals.

On the Stock Exchange general depression prevailed during the greater part of the day owing to the uncertain monetary outlook, and prices drooped from sheer lack of support, consols falling another ⅝. Paris bought moderately in the afternoon, which helped certain foreign bonds, but the losses were general, and the tone heavy.

American securities opened quiet, with prices a fraction either side of parity. Little business was done during the morning session, and at noon the market was dull, ¼ higher to ⅛ lower than yesterday's New York closing. Irregular movements followed, but the New York opening steadied the market until the late trade, when offerings of United States Steel caused a general decline. Prices were inclined to harden at the close. Copper shares were easy.

Money, 2½@2¾ per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 3⅞@4 per cent; for three months' bills, 3 15-16@4 per cent.

PARIS, Oct. 20.—Prices on the Bourse to-day were irregular.

BERLIN, Oct. 20.—Prices on the Boerse to-day were weak.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Oct. 20.—Butte Coalition and Greene-Cananea were the particular features in the Boston market to-day, the former advancing to 27 and the latter being heavily bought at around 11, over 2,000 shares of each changing hands. North Butte recorded a further decline to 58, while the balance of the list shows but comparatively little change.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

Libbey & Struthers have moved their offices to the Mutual Life Building.

The Directors of the Western Union Telegraph Company met yesterday and organized by electing the retiring officers.

The Broadway Trust Company has resumed dividends on its shares. It declared yesterday a quarterly disbursement of 1½ per cent. This is at the same rate as the dividends paid before the panic, when payments were made semi-annually.

Application has been made to the Stock Exchange to list these securities: Wisconsin Central, $2,500,000 first and refunding mortgage 4 per cent. bonds, due 1959; Illinois Central, $12,000,000 purchased leins first mortgage 3½ per cent. bonds, due 1952.

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Republic Iron and Steel Company in Jersey City yesterday, John F. Harris of Harris, Winthrop & Co. was elected a Director to succeed Harry S. Black, whose term expired. Other retiring Directors were re-elected.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Wednesday.

United States Steel common figured for much more than one-third of the total business on the Consolidated Stock Exchange, its sales amounting to 41,390 shares of a grand total of 98,980. It was vigorously bid for at times. In the early afternoon it sold as high as 90⅝, compared with a New York Stock Exchange high for the day of 90¼, while it failed to go under 89¼, compared with 89⅛. Generally at the low levels the market showed relative firmness, compared with the other Exchange.

THE COTTON MARKET.

Irregular on Conflicting News—Closes 7 Points Up to 8 Down.

Cotton was nervous and unsettled yesterday, with best prices reached in the late trading. The close was firm, net 7 points higher to 8 points lower. The opening was 1@7 points lower. English spot sales were smaller, the weather unsettled, and the South reported a less urgent demand from spot shorts, but later mills were reported to have been big buyers on the decline.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 20.—Increasing agitation of the fare question in the municipal political campaign bore fruit to-day in persistent selling of Philadelphia Rapid Transit stock, partly by alarmed shareholders, but mostly by bear traders. The price receded a full point from last night's closing figure during the forenoon, but was well supported at 27.

Authorized issue, $12,000,000. Redeemable on any interest day at 103 and interest. Coupon bonds, $1,000, $500 and $100 denominations may be registered as to principal or exchanged for fully registered bonds, $1,000, $5,000 and $10,000 denominations, which may be reconverted into coupon form.

The Standard Trust Company of New York, Trustee

Principal and interest payable in New York City in U. S. Gold Coin, and abroad at the following rates of exchange: London 4.86 per pound Sterling. Paris, Frs. 5.18. Amsterdam, Fl. 2.48.

A LARGE AMOUNT OF THE ABOVE BONDS HAVING BEEN SOLD, THE UNDERSIGNED WILL RECEIVE SUBSCRIPTIONS FOR THE BALANCE AT 96½ AND ACCRUED INTEREST TO DELIVERY.

The subscription will be opened at 10 o'clock A. M., on Friday, October 22, 1909, and will be closed at 3 o'clock P. M. the same day, or earlier, without notice, the right being reserved to reject any applications or to award a smaller amount than applied for. A first payment of $50 in New York funds per $1,000 bond must accompany each subscription and the balance due will be payable in New York funds on allotment. Temporary certificates will be issued pending delivery of engraved bonds.

Benjamin Guggenheim, Esq., President of the International Steam Pump Company, under date of October 11, 1909, writes us substantially as follows:

1. First mortgage on all the properties directly owned by the International Steam Pump Co.; further secured by deposit of entire funded debt and $5,497,700 out of $5,500,000 common stock of the Henry R. Worthington Co. and by securities of other subsidiary companies.
2. Upon retirement of $3,500,000 6% Debentures, called for redemption on October 28, 1909, these bonds will constitute the only funded debt of the International Steam Pump Company. Approximately $1,000,000 bonds of subsidiaries are outstanding, provision for the retirement of which is made by sinking fund.
3. Mortgage provides sinking fund aggregating $6,000,000, sufficient to retire substantially half the total authorized issue by maturity.
4. Current assets in excess of all current liabilities, after issuance of these bonds, will equal approximately $10,000,000. Appraised value of plants, upwards of $11,600,000. Total tangible assets of combined companies over and above current liabilities, after issuance of these bonds, $28,350,000.
5. The Company agrees that the quick assets of the combined companies over and above current liabilities must be maintained or brought up to $8,000,000 before dividends may be declared on the common stock; this amount to be further increased with any addition to the amount of these bonds outstanding.
6. During the last four years, 1906-1909 inclusive, combined net income, before deducting dividends on preferred stocks of subsidiaries, averaged $1,830,000 per annum, nearly four times the full interest requirements after issuance of these bonds. Average for ten years, 1900-1909 inclusive, $1,740,000 per annum. Available earnings, fiscal year ended March 31, 1909, were three times these requirements.
7. Regular dividends, 6% per annum, have been earned and paid for ten years on the Company's preferred stock, $11,350,000 now outstanding.

Application will be made to list these bonds on the New York, London and Amsterdam Stock Exchanges.

The plants of the International Steam Pump Co. have been appraised for us by Bion J. Arnold, Esq., Consulting Engineer, of Chicago, and an independent audit of the Company's accounts made by Messrs. Marwick, Mitchell & Co., Chartered Accountants. The legality of the issue has been approved by our attorneys, Messrs. Cravath, Henderson & de Gersdorff, New York. Copies of prospectus and application blank may be obtained on request.

The subscription will be opened simultaneously

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Calder & Nassoit have sold for the Highwood Construction Company (Julius Weinstein, President) to Dr. A. C. Stem the recently finished six-story apartment house, known as the Criterion Arms, at 522 to 528 West 111th Street, on plot 108 by 92. The property has been held at $250,000.

To Improve Upper Broadway Plot.

Plans are maturing for the improvement of the Higgins estate property at the northeast corner of Broadway and Ninety-fifth Street, a plot 125.11 by 127.7, now occupied by one-story frame buildings. Whether the improvement will be undertaken by the estate itself or by a lesse of the ground could not be learned yesterday. Several of the Higgins properties on the west side have been leased during the last few years to tenants who have erected the buildings.

Jacob Levy has made a building loan of $80,000 to the Raymore Realty Company on the property, 150 by 100.11, on the south side of 106th Street, 225 feet west of Amsterdam Avenue.

West 70th Street House Sold.

F. R. Wood & Co. have sold for William C. Spaulding to John Bissell 255 West Seventieth Street, a three-story dwelling, on lot 17 by 100.5.

Mrs. L. V. Ross is reported to have sold 158 West Seventy-ninth Street, a three-story dwelling, on lot 17 by 102.2.

James K. Holly has sold for Henry Steinbach 40 West Eighty-fourth Street, a three-story dwelling, on lot 17.2 by 102, between Central Park West and Columbus Avenue.

Buyer for 50th Street Dwelling.

Cyrus Clark House at Auction.

The Cyrus Clark house at 327 West Seventy-sixth Street, offered at auction yesterday by Bryan L. Kennelly in the Vesey Street Salesroom, was bought by William Buhler for $37,750. The house is four stories high on a plot 22 by 102.2 on the north side of Seventy-sixth Street, near Riverside Drive.

New Residence for Percy R. Pyne.

Plans have been filed for a new four-story residence to be erected by Percy R. Pyne at the northwest corner of Park Avenue and Sixty-eighth Street, opposite the Normal College. It is to be of Colonial design, with façades of ornamental limestone. The main floor will be devoted to a billiard room, opening off the reception room, and on the second floor will be a large hall with the salon and dining room on one side and the library and a den on the other. The building is to cost $100,000 according to the estimate of Architects McKim, Mead & White

Middle West Side Purchases.

The Herman Arus Company has sold for Jane L. Gallon the five-story brick tenement, with stores, at 435 West Forty-ninth Street, on lot 25 by 100.5.

High Rental on Park Row.

The Charles F. Noyes Company has leased, for twenty-one years, for Eversley Childs the building 101 Park Row at an aggregate net rental of $126,000. The lessees are Louis and Alfred Schloss, who after making improvements will occupy the premises. The building is a small structure, 18 by 67, covering a plot of about 1,200 square feet, and faces the entrance to the new Municipal Building now in course of construction. The lease is on the net basis of 5 per cent. on a valuation of $120,000, showing a ground value of $100 a square foot, which is said to be a new record price for "inside" property on Park Row. Mr. Childs recently purchased the building through the same brokers with a view of holding it as an investment.

New Clubhouse for Chemists.

Architects York & Sawyer are preparing plans for the ten-story building to be erected by the Chemists' Club at 50 to 54 East Forty-first Street, on a plot 56.8 by 98.9, purchased by Morris Loeb the President of the club, last July. For several years the club has occupied leased quarters at 108 West Fifty-fifth Street. The Chemists' Building Company has been incorporated, with a capital of $200,000, to carry through the new operation.

Sale of 40th Street Tenement.

Ignatz M. Atlas has sold for L. S. Miller 336 East Fortieth Street, a five-story building, on lot 25 by 100.

Justice Bischoff has appointed Jerome A. Kohn receiver of the rents of 224 and 226 Avenue B, a six-story tenement, pending a suit brought by Joseph Larchan against Henriette Cohen and others to foreclose a mortgage of $17,250.

Tenants for New Loft Buildings.

M. & L. Hess have leased, from the plans, for the Realty Holding Company, the store and basement in the building now in the course of construction at 22 and 24 West Twenty-seventh Street, to Mautner & Ahlswede, importers of furs, and for the same company the eighth loft in the building in course of construction at 40 to 42 West Twenty-seventh Street.

Frederick Fox & Co. have leased for the Building and Engineering Company to William Eltingon & Co., fur importers, the store and basement at 45 to 51 West Twenty-fifth Street. This completes the renting of the building. The same brokers have also leased for Max Marx the northerly store and basement at 809 Broadway to Gold & Co., and for J. Cooper the top loft at 16 to 20 West Nineteenth Street to Wolf Brand.

Leonard J. Muhlfelder reports the following leases: For the Domestic Realty Company 8,000 square feet in 121 to 125 West Seventeenth Street to Bodenheimer & Merle for a long term of years; for the Middleboro Realty Company 7,500 square feet in 88 University Place to J. Sternstein; for Amdur Brothers 7,500 square feet in 13 to 17 Crosby Street to Crieger & Meyer, and for Benno Levy & Son 7,500 square feet in 88 University Place to B. Liebowitz.

Denzer Brothers have leased for Brody, Adler & Koch a loft in the building 37 to 45 West Twentieth Street; also, for the Marmac Construction Company the first loft in the building 104 to 108 West Twenty-seventh Street; for the Darling estate to the J. Fiedelbaum Company 5,000 square feet in 23-25 East Twenty-first Street; for the Acme Building Company 5,000 square feet in 129-131 West Twenty-second Street; for Edward Caldwell to Edgar S. Bibas the seventh loft in 36 West Fifteenth Street; for the Broadway Holding Company 5,000 square feet in 543 Broadway to Dalsimer Brothers, and for Berlin & Trosky a loft in the building 57 to 61 West Houston Street.

The Herman Arns Company has leased for Frank J. Cassidy for a term of years a studio on the fifth floor of 229 and 231 West Forty-second Street to Harriett Lord.

Builders Sell Bronx Houses.

Moses Weiss has sold for the Tully Construction Company 2,033 Belmont Avenue, a four-story flat, on plot 50 by 100, to William Engle; also, for the same owner to a Mrs. Zimmerman 2,037 Belmont Avenue, a similar structure; also, for Carrie Zimmerman two lots on the east side of Washington Avenue, 278 feet north of 182d Street, to a builder.

Lease of 24 Brooklyn Tenements.

By virtue of a lease just executed the Bush Terminal Company practically assumes all responsibility for the tenanting of the twenty-four tenement houses which the realty association is constructing in the vicinity of Third Avenue and Twenty-ninth Street, South Brooklyn. The lease covers the buildings now in course of construction, as well as those to be erected in the future, to the number of twenty-four, and it is understood that another row of houses will be started as soon as the first series has been completed. These buildings will accommodate eight families each, and their erection has been brought about by the rapid influx of factory hands into the section, all of whom are employed by the wholesalers and manufacturers who occupy space in the loft buildings of the Bush Terminal Company, between Thirty-fifth and Thirty-seventh Streets, and Second and Third Avenues.

Brooklyn Properties Change Hands.

Charles E. Rickerson has sold the following Brooklyn properties: East side of Vanderbilt Avenue, 56 feet south of Prospect Place, a plot 75 by 100, for Maurice E. Daly to a builder, who will erect stores immediately; also, east side of Vanderbilt Avenue, 106 feet north of Park Place, a lot 25 by 100, for E. G. Probst, and east side of Vanderbilt Avenue, 81 feet north of Park Place, a lot 25 by 100, for Mrs. Alene F. Carpenter to a builder.

Ralph Leininger has sold in Brooklyn four two-family houses on the north side of Sterling Place, 172 feet west of Kingston Avenue, for the Charles A. O'Malley Company.

E. T. Newman & Co. have sold the plot, 60 by 100, on the north side of Kings Highway, Brooklyn, for J. Adolph Muchner.

Ignatz M. Atlas has sold for Samuel Beck 145 to 149 Court Street, and 205 Pacific Street, Brooklyn, two five-story flats and stores at the northeast corner of those thoroughfares, on plot 53.6 by 86 and irregular.

Deal for Edgemere (L. I.) Parcels.

Jacob Thomas has bought from Mrs. Charles L. Waren her holdings in Edgemere, L. I., which consist of four houses on lots 80 by 115, on the west side of Grand View Avenue; two houses, on plots 80 by 115, on the east side of Beach Avenue, and two plots, each 80 by 115, on the east side of Beach Avenue. The entire deal is said to have involved $100,000.

FORCED LOT SALE AT BAYSIDE BEYOND FLUSHING.
Owing to the press of circumstances I have to sell my few remaining BAYSIDE lots at far below their value. BAYSIDE is improving every minute; its railway service will soon be perfect, but some one else must make the big profits. I cannot wait. North of Broadway is the beautiful McKnight estate, with its large and handsome residences. South of Broadway, across the street, are my lots, and these MUST BE SOLD. Free fare trains will run from Long Island City to Bayside Saturday at 1:30 P. M. and Sunday at 10:20 A. M., Oct. 23 and 24, and carriages will meet you at the Bayside station. My PRICES will be RUINOUSLY LOW—as low as $150 for some lots—and terms very easy. If you want lots for a BIG RISE and SURE PROFIT, be sure and come and bring your friends. I have arranged to have your money paid to the Title Guarantee and Trust Company, who will indorse all contracts, making you absolutely safe as to deed and title. For plans and prices address but people came from every section—from Manhattan, Brooklyn, the Bronx, New Jersey—and now we have comparatively few left. But those remaining are just the same as those which have rented so fast and proved so popular this Fall; electric lights, hardwood floors, Hill clothes dryers, wall safes, large closet space, modern refrigerators, steam heat, hot water, and above all, larger rooms than you are accustomed to. We really cannot tell you in type of all the superior points of these houses. But we are sure that should you once look into them you would be our tenant.

Suppose you just jump on a Lenox Avenue express subway train and ride to Simpson Street Station in the Bronx. There you will find our 'bus, which in two minutes will have you at the prettiest apartment houses you have seen. As you approach the houses notice our PRIVATE PARKS for the exclusive use of tenants and their friends, with their tennis and croquet courts, swings, seesaws, sand piles, etc., where grown folk can have healthful recreation and children be free from street dangers.

OUR PRIVATE 'BUS SERVICE takes tenants to and from the subway station from 7 A. M. to 1 A. M. and takes the children to the district schools.

FRAZIN & OPPENHEIM TRUSTEE IS OUSTED

U. S. Court Removes Joseph H. Wichert After Testimony About the Sale of a Store.

ROBERT C. MORRIS PUT IN

He Represents a Majority of the Creditors, but Not the Bulk of the Claims.

Judge Adams of the United States District Court has appointed Robert C. Morris, former President of the Republican County Committee, as trustee of the estate of Frazin & Oppenheim, the bankrupt shoe dealers of Sixth Avenue. Joseph H. Wichert, recently declared by William H. Willis, the referee in bankruptcy, to have been elected by the creditors, was displaced. In certain of the legal proceedings evidence was produced to show that the check with which part of the purchase money with which one of the stores involved had been bought, had been signed by Mr. Wichert himself.

At the meeting of the creditors at which Mr. Wichert was elected Mr. Morris was nominated against him, but the referee threw out thirty-two of the votes cast for the latter on the ground that the proxies had been informally worded. An appeal was taken from this ruling by some 195 other creditors.

Frazin & Oppenheim failed last February for $1,325,000. Their assets were estimated at $910,000, without taking into account the good will of their business or the leases of their stores, which were considered valuable. Congressman Montague Lessler appeared before the court as attorney for three creditors, who were classed as friendly to the bankrupts, and obtained the appointment of Mr. Wichert as receiver.

To Mr. Weichert himself the bankrupts had made a payment of $5,000 on the day of the failure, and, working with some other creditors who were well disposed to the firm, he proposed a composition whereby the firm should pay the creditors 40 cents on the dollar in cash and 35 per cent. of the stock in a new corporation which was to be formed to take over the retail stores of the firm.

Of the 602 creditors of Frazin & Oppenheim, 600 agreed to the proposal. Their claims amounted to $1,250,000, but the settlement did not meet with the approval of the Second National Bank and the American Trust and Savings Bank of Chicago. On their objection Judge Hand refused to assent to the composition.

The effort was then made to obtain the election of Weichert as Trustee of the bankrupts' property. Saul S. Myers and Leo Oppenheimer of 60 Wall Street resisted it, acting on behalf of The New York Sun, the banks, and more than 200 other creditors, whose claims in the aggregate amounted to nearly $400,000. After an exciting election, in which Mr. Morris was put up against Wichert, the latter was declared elected.

The appeal, which resulted yesterday in the displacing of Weichert in favor of Morris, turned largely on the happenings at the sale of the A. Morton Oppenheim store at Sixth Avenue and Twenty-second Street on Sept. 30. It was alleged by the supporters of Mr. Morris that there had been an agreement between the Trustee and John Hoerle, one of the appraisers appointed by Referee Willis, with the wives of Frazin & Oppenheim, whereby they should buy in the stock of goods and the lease for an amount not to exceed $40,000, and should turn them over to Frazin & Oppenheim at a profit of 10 per cent.

The matter was referred to United States Commissioner Alexander for investigation on an order to Weichert to show cause why the sale of the store should not be set aside. Hoerle was asked who bought the stock of the store, and was forced to admit that though it was knocked down to Otto Strause, his attorney, Strause bought it on equal shares with himself. They got the stock and lease for $28,350. He swore that he paid for his half in cash, but that Mr. Strause paid his by a check.

Pressed to say where this check came from, Hoerle said that Weichert, the Trustee, had written it on Sept. 30 just after the sale was completed, in payment of a note of $12,900 he owed him, which fell due on Oct. 1. In support of this Hoerle said he had written to Weichert asking him for a check for $12,937.50 in settlement of the note. He was obliged, however, to admit that this letter was written in Weichert's own office at his own request on the same day that the sale of the stock and lease of the store had been made.

Judge Adams ordered that the election of Weichert as Trustee of the Frazin & Oppenheim estate be disapproved on this evidence, and directed that the thirty-two votes cast for Mr. Morris, which had been disallowed, should be counted.

This resulted in Morris having a majority of the creditors in his favor, while a majority in the size of the claims was supporting Weichert. The court, however, held that it would be unwise to hold a new election, and in consequence appointed Mr. Morris Trustee and fixed his bond at $400,000.

"Tod" Burnett's Arrest Ordered.

Mrs. Belle Burnett, who won a separation from Charlton R. Burnett, known on Broadway as "Tod" Burnett, obtained an order in the Supreme Court yesterday adjudging him in contempt for failure to pay her $400 in back alimony. Justice Bischoff ordered Burnett's arrest.

BANKRUPTCY NOTICES.

AT A STATED TERM OF THE UNITED States District Court for the Southern District of New York, held at the Post Office Building, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 13th day of October, 1909.—Present, Hon. George C. Holt, District Judge.—In the matter of BENJAMIN ROSENBERG, Bankrupt.

Now, on reading and filing the notice of motion, dated the 3d day of August, 1909, the petition of Isaac Siegel, verified the 3d day of August, 1909, and due proof of service thereof on Nathan Greenbaum, Esq., and on Charles Firestone, Esq., respectively, attorneys and counsel for the claimant, Mollie Rosenzweig, and on reading and filing the report of the Special Master and the testimony thereunto annexed, and on all the papers and proceedings heretofore had herein,

Now, after hearing Charles Firestone, Esq., of counsel for the claimant, Mollie Rosenzweig, in opposition thereto, it is, on motion of Siegel & Siegel, attorneys for Harry Osterman, Receiver and Trustee herein,

Ordered that said report be and hereby is in all respects confirmed, and it is further

Ordered that all persons claiming ownership to the tar paper now in the possession of the Trustee are hereby required to show cause before me or one of the Justices of this court, at a Stated Term of said court, to be held in Room 66, in the Federal Building, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 1st day of November, 1909, at 10:30 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, or as soon thereafter as counsel can be heard, why an order should not be made and entered herein permitting the Trustee to sell said tar paper, and making the proceeds thereof a part of this estate.

Sufficient reason appearing therefore, it is hereby Ordered that service of this order be made by publishing notice of the same in The New York Times once a week for two consecutive weeks, the last publication to be not later than October 21st, 1909, which shall be and is hereby declared to be sufficient service thereof.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—Disturbances are centred to-night over Manitoba and the North Pacific Coast, and rainy weather has prevailed generally between the eastern and western mountains. The, although, has now cleared between the Lower Mississippi Valley and the Rockies. The tropical disturbance is now central southwest of Cuba, although its location is not definitely determined. Rainy and warmer weather will prevail east of the Mississippi River on Thursday.

Temperature has remained stationary in the Atlantic States, but has risen slightly in middle districts.

Winds along the New England Coast will be moderate, variable; Middle Atlantic Coast, moderate, southeast to south; South Atlantic Coast, moderate to brisk northeast.

Steamships departing Thursday for European ports will have moderate to brisk southeast to south winds, with fair weather, followed by showers, to the Grand Banks.

FORECAST FOR TO-DAY AND FRIDAY.

Eastern New York, New Jersey, and Eastern Pennsylvania—Increasing cloudiness, with rain Thursday and possibly Friday; warmer Thursday; moderate southeast to south winds.

3 A. M.	52	43	4 P. M.	52	51
6 A. M.	50	39	6 P. M.	51	51
9 A. M.	52	42	9 P. M.	50	49
12 M.	52	46	12 P. M.	47	49

This thermometer is 108 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 46; for the corresponding date last year it was 51; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 54.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 40; at 8 P. M. it was 49. Maximum temperature, 52 degrees at 2:30 P. M.; minimum, 39 degrees at 6 A. M. Humidity, 71 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 67 per cent. at 8 P. M.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

Application for Appointment of Commissioners.

SUPREME COURT APPELLATE DIVISION, First Department.—In the matter of the Application of the PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION FOR THE FIRST DISTRICT for the appointment of Three Commissioners to determine and report whether a Rapid Transit Railway or Railways for the Conveyance and Transportation of Persons and Property, as determined by the Commission, ought to be constructed and operated.—Modification of Lexington Avenue Route and General Plan.—Double decking.

Public notice is hereby given that pursuant to the provisions of the Rapid Transit Act, being Chapter 4 of the Laws of 1891, as amended the Public Service Commission for the First District will apply to the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court of the State of New York, in and for the First Judicial Department, at a term thereof to be held at the Appellate Division Court House, Madison Avenue and East 25th Street, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 5th day of November, 1909, at 10:30 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, or as soon thereafter as counsel can be heard, for the appointment of three commissioners in the above entitled matter to determine and report, after due hearing, whether the modified portions of the railway in the said city for the conveyance and transportation of persons and property, known as the Lexington Avenue Route, ought to be constructed and operated in accordance with the modification adopted by the said Commission to the routes and general plan of construction of said railway on May 21, 1909. The papers upon which the aforesaid application will be made are the petition of the said Commission, dated the 7th day of October, 1909, and the affidavits and papers accompanying the same, all which were filed in the office of the Clerk of the said Appellate Division on the 8th day of October 1909, and in addition thereto such other papers as shall be presented to the Court by the said Commission. A description of the modification of the routes and general plan of construction of the said railway or railways forms a part of the papers filed as aforesaid with the said Clerk of the said Appellate Division. The following is a brief and substantial synopsis of the modification of the said route and general plan of construction: The tracks upon the portion of the routes beginning at or near Houston Street and thence extending northerly under Broadway to a point near East Ninth Street, thence in a general northeasterly direction through several cross streets and private property to Irving Place, and thence northerly under Irving Place, Gramercy Park, and Lexington Avenue to 103d Street, and from 113th Street to the Harlem River shall be placed upon different levels, (instead of being placed as at present provided, on substantially the same level,)—one set of tracks being constructed substantially on the same level near the surface and the other set of tracks being constructed substantially on the same level and at such distance below the first set of tracks as may be deemed most practicable and convenient.

The object of the aforesaid application is to obtain the appointment of commissioners who shall determine, after public hearing of all parties interested, whether the modified portions of such railway ought to be constructed and operated in accordance with the said modification, and shall report the evidence taken to said Appellate Division, together with a report of their determination, which report and determination, if in favor of the construction and operation of the modified portions of such railway or railways in accordance with said modification (as this Commission will ask that it shall be) shall, when confirmed by said Court, be taken in lieu of the consent of the property owners along the line of the modified portions of said railway or railways.

Dated New York, October 8th, 1909.

CLOSER TO IDENTITY OF THE ISLIP VICTIM

Half Effaced Writing and Print on Trade Bills Lead to a Merchant in Germany.

CONSULATE TAKES UP CASE

Theory That the Woman Had Been a Nurse at the Nearby Asylum Abandoned After Investigation.

Although no clue developed yesterday to the identification of the dead woman clad in fashionable dress and jeweled ornaments found in the woods between Islip and Brentwood Sunday, and believed to have been slain, it is believed that through the co-operation of the authorities in Germany her identity may be established. From one or two rain-soaked and weather-worn trade bills found in her clothes it was discovered at the German Consulate that the woman had purchased or received a lot of household articles from a firm of hardware dealers and plumbers in Altona, Schleswig-Holstein, Germany, on Feb. 24, 1908.

A bill, which had before been believed to disclose the dealers' names, "Koche & Verrot," proved instead to have been sent out by the J. Weck Refrigerating Company of Oeflingen, Baden, probably for use as bills by some retailer, for whose name a blank was left below. Under the name of the Weck firm were the words "Koche auf Vorrat," meaning "Cook for storage or future use," and there were several small cuts of the Weck apparatus and cans at the right. A line for a retailer's name remained blank. In tiny letters was the name of the printers of the bill: "Worms & Luthgen, Krefeld, Rhein-Preussen." The body of the bill contained, in faded German script, an enumeration of articles bought, with the German prices: One blanket, two tea trays, one plate, a corkscrew, a potato peeler, a platter, and a bread basket. The bill totaled 16 marks and 95 pfennige.

Over the face of the bill was stamped in dim blue ink a scarcely legible receipt. The paper was torn and weather-beaten, but the following words could be made out: "Altoona—erhalten—24 Feb., 1908," and beneath this, "Otto Schommer."

The Dealer Located.

Looking up the city of Altona in Schleswig-Holstein in the Consular records it was found to have one Otto Schommer, a dealer in gas fixtures and bath apparatus at 150 Konigstrasse. Here, it is believed, the articles were purchased, the word "erhalten" being the German for "received payment."

On another bill, found with the body, there could be made out dimly: "3 mark —Grimmaischestrasse 14—Leipzig." Both bills will be forwarded to the authorities in the German cities named, for further search as to the purchaser. At the Consulate it was thought that the fine quality of clothing worn precluded the likelihood that the wearer was a servant who had purchased goods for her mistress.

County Detectives Furman and Biggs, attached to the office of District Attorney Furman of Suffolk County, made a canvass of all the hotels in the vicinity of Islip, but were unable to find that the dead woman had been at any of them. They trust to find some trace of her among New York jewelers, through the lettering on the woman's gold watch of Swiss manufacture, on which were the initials "A. L."

It was thought for a while that the woman might have been some strayed inmate or attendant of the Manhattan State Hospital for the Insane, less than two miles across the brushwood from the spot where the body was found. She wore rubber-heeled shoes, and such are worn by the nurses of the hospital. Assistant Supt. Hyman of the hospital, however, said that he had made a thorough search of the records of the institution, and had found that every inmate bearing the initials "A. L." since 1902, had been accounted for.

Many Theories But No Proof.

Various rumors tending to identify the dead woman spread yesterday, but proved unfounded. The mention of several missing Misses Schwartz as possibly the murdered woman is thought to have been due to the erroneous report at first circulated that that name was found embroidered on the tan auto veil of the corpse. The police of this city found that one woman reported missing on April 18 of this year had initials corresponding to those on the watch case. She was Annie Ledger of Lawrence, Mass., and is described as 5 feet 6 inches in height, with light brown hair and eyes. When last seen she wore a long green coat and dress.

Theories were plentiful, but equally hard of proof or disproof. A theory that robbery was the motive for the crime was maintained by some, who pointed out that the leaving of jewelry upon the body was but a ruse to conceal the theft of greater wealth or valuables which the woman might have carried. Others held that the jewelry might have been left in fright at the approach of strangers.

A rigid search of the brushwood yesterday failed to discover any weapon with which the life of the woman might have been taken, or any purse she might have carried.

TERRY ASKS WIFE TO EXPLAIN.

He Wants to Know Why She Thinks He Owes Her $6,000.

Supreme Court Justice Truax reserved decision yesterday on the application of ex-Judge Augustus Van Wyck for a commission to examine Mrs. Lillie Terry, wife of George Terry, Assistant Treasurer of the United States, and the couple's son, Lawrence Terry, both of whom now live in Mexico, in a proceeding to determine whether Mr. Terry is legally in arrears to his wife for her support.

Mrs. Terry was separated by agreement from her husband in 1902. She is now suing him in the Supreme Court here to enforce the separation contract. Richard B. Aldcroft was appointed trustee at the time of the agreement to receive the $100 monthly payments for Mrs. Terry.

He opposed the motion yesterday, saying that only $600 of this money was ever paid by Mr. Terry.

"I advised Mrs. Terry," continued Mr. Aldcroft, "to accept the compromise offered by Mr. Terry, which was $50 a month. He was a soldier of fortune—in office to-day and out to-morrow, and anything she got at all was profit. We agreed to this, but the $50 monthly was never forthcoming. Now the other side comes into court and asks to examine Mrs. Terry, now residing at Oanaca, Mexico, and her son Lawrence, who is engaged in mining operations at Chihuahua, Mexico. We admit this agreement on behalf of the wife. We seek simply to collect the sums due Mrs. Terry."

The Terrys have not lived together for twenty-nine years. Mrs. Terry sued for divorce in 1902, but abandoned the action when Terry agreed to pay her $100 a month for life. She says there is about $6,000 due her.

$50,000,000 FRANCHISE TAXES

Decision of the Courts in One Case May Bring Settlements in Others.

The amount of arrearages on the special franchise tax due to the city is $30,351,413, which, with interest, will amount to nearly $50,000,000. The decision of the Court of Appeals on Tuesday in the case of the Jamaica Bay Water Supply Company against the State Board of Commissioners, it is believed, has brought the settlement of these claims a step nearer.

In the absence of a copy of the court's opinion the Corporation Counsel's office refused yesterday to discuss the question at length. However, Assistant Corporation Counsel Curtis A. Peters, who, with Assistant Corporation Counsel David Rumsey, has been in charge of the matter for the city, said it was settled that the corporations have gained the right to the equalization of the special franchise tax; that is, the value of the franchises will be assessed not at par, but at the same rate as real estate, or about 90 per cent.

The question of how the value of a franchise should be reached was settled as far as the Jamaica Bay Water Supply Company is concerned, but the court, Mr. Peters said, would not give a general application to its ruling on this point. In the Jamaica Bay case it was laid down that from the gross earnings of the company the operating expenses and 6 per cent. interest on the capital must be deducted. The franchise tax will then be assessed on the capitalization of what remains of the earnings and the value of any real estate owned by the corporation.

Mr. Peters, however, thought that possibly this ruling may have an important effect on the negotiations which the city is carrying on with other companies against which it has claims. It may be taken as a basis for a compromise so as to avoid tedious and expensive litigation.

The only companies which have so far paid their franchise taxes, according to Daniel Moynahan, the Collector of Taxes, are the Manhattan Railroad Company and the Edison Electric Light Company, both of which have paid the city, subject to the final decision of the claims against them by the courts. In Manhattan there are 139 corporations subject to the franchise tax. Of these the elevated and surface railroads owe, it is claimed, $15,480,061; other railroads, $98,306; cable, telegraph, telephone, and other dispatch companies, $1,116,359; gas, electric light, and power companies, $6,600,756 and all other corporations $18,716, making a total for the borough of $23,314,200.

CRUCIBLE STEEL CHARTER.

Change Permits the Company to Buy and Sell Its Own Stock.

At the annual meeting of the Crucible Steel Company of America in Jersey City yesterday the stockholders ratified the proposed amendment in the charter which will allow it, like the United States Steel Corporation, to buy and sell its own stock. The exact terms of the amendment are as follows:

"The corporation may also purchase or otherwise acquire, hold, sell, assign, conserve, or otherwise dispose of shares of its own capital stock."

"Accumulated profits may be reserved and invested in shares of its own stock, which the corporation has power to hold."

The company has $24,436,500 in shares of preferred stock outstanding on which the quarterly dividend in June was increased from 1 to 1¼ per cent., and in September to 1½ per cent. The shares are entitled to 7 per cent. cumulative dividends, which have not been paid in full since 1903. The common stock, of which $24,578,400 is outstanding, has never paid dividends. The report states that it is hoped to make the regular quarterly payment of 1¾ per cent. in December, "by which time it is expected that the entire outstanding indebtedness will have been liquidated."

BUTTERICK MERGER SETTLED.

But Some of the Stockholders In Everybody's Refuse to Share in It.

William L. Jennings, Treasurer of the Ridgway Company, publishers of Everybody's Magazine, which is to be taken over by the Butterick Company through the interchange of $3,000,000 of stock, decided upon at a meeting of the Butterick stockholders on Tuesday, said yesterday that the merger would be completed within the next few days.

The objection raised by the Van Wyck interests among the Butterick stockholders at the meeting, Mr. Jennings said, was due merely to the refusal of the Ridgway Company to disclose the exact earnings of Everybody's Magazine. These would have been produced, he said, but for the failure of all the Butterick stockholders who attended the meeting to promise that they would not be made public.

In the transfer of stock the Ridgway stockholders will receive three shares of Butterick for one of Ridgway. Erman J. Ridgway, President of the Ridgway Company, sent out a confidential letter last week to the stockholders of the company telling of the proposed sale of Everybody's to the Butterick Company, and asking that consents be mailed to him. Of the holders of the Ridgway stock, Mr. Jennings said yesterday, only a few opposed the plan to sell.

WATER TOWER FLOODS TOWN.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Oct. 20.—With a loud report the 100-foot steel water tower of the White Plains Water Company, located on North Broadway at Avenue C, the highest point in the town, collapsed to-night. The accident caused great excitement. When the people rushed from their homes to see what had happened they were met by a wall of water which soon filled many cellars and formed a small lake in the vicinity.

The force of water destroyed two buildings and badly damaged two others, one of them being moved twenty feet off its foundation. Without the least warning the tower buckled fifteen feet from its base and crashed to the ground and the water rushed forth. A water famine resulted in the high points of the town until the water company could pump into the mains.

Chief Bromm of the Fire Department went to the scene and had the pressure put on so that the village would not be at the mercy of a fire. The tower was built in 1886 at a cost of $25,000, and a new tower will have to be constructed at once.

A CANDIDATE ASPHYXIATED.

Dewitt C. Rogers, owner of the chief grocery store in Metuchen, N. J., was found dead in Newark, N. J., in a furnished room at 26 Centre Street. His death is believed to have been caused by coal gas. A woman who accompanied him was found unconscious.

Rogers was 55 years old, prominent and wealthy. He was a graduate of Rutgers College and was running for Councilman in Metuchen on the Republican ticket and was sure of election. He was married and has two children.

BLACK HERESY CASE TAKEN UP

JOHNSTOWN, N. Y., Oct. 20.—The Black Heresy charges came before the annual session of the Presbyterian synod of the State of New York, being held here to-day. The charges against the Presbytery of New York in ordaining the Rev. Archibald Black were referred to the Judiciary Committee of the synod for investigation.

The committee immediately took up its work and a report is expected to-morrow afternoon. Members of the body are reticent as to venturing an opinion regarding the outcome of the inquiry.

LATEST CUSTOMS DECISIONS.

Several decisions affecting the classification of baskets of various kinds were handed down yesterday by the Board of United States General Appraisers. It was alleged by Charles Zinn & Co. that hampers and clothes baskets had been assessed at excessive rates by the Custom House authorities. General Appraiser McClelland sustains the importer's claim for duty as "manufactures of wood," with a tax of 35 per cent.

The board has reduced the assessment imposed by Collector Loeb on baskets made of wood shavings twisted and braided. The Collector's return of 35 per cent. is reversed and the baskets are allowed entry at 30 per cent. as "manufactures of chip." The attempt to reduce the 35 per cent. tax imposed on basket suit cases made of split bamboo was unsuccessful. The importers concerned were S. Sondheim & Co., M. Kopolsi, Scheuer & Co., and A. L. Tuska, [illegible] & Co.

MANY AUTO ACCIDENTS.

Unidentified Woman Killed—Lloyd Griscom Accused of Speeding.

Automobile accidents were common yesterday in and around this city. In one a woman lost her life. Her identity had not been established last night, but she appeared to be about 68 years old. There was nothing to give a clue to her identity except a signet ring on which was the initial "M."

She was struck at Seventh Avenue and Fifteenth Street by a taxicab driven by Charles Dieudonne of 169 West Ninety-first Street. Dieudonne picked the woman up and carried her to St. Vincent's Hospital in his car. She died there a few minutes after being carried in.

Policeman Conlin of the West Twentieth Street Station bore out Dieudonne's statement that he had been driving slowly; that he had sounded his horn, and called to the woman who deliberately stepped in front of his car.

In Morristown, N. J., there was an accident which wrecked the automobile of Fire Chief Smith of Madison and caused serious injury to James Hallon, also of Madison. The car, which was driven by Hallon, collided with the auto of State Treasurer Daniel Voorhees in a dark stretch in Madison Avenue.

In Williamsburg Jacob Reiner, 5 years old, of 383 Bedford Avenue was struck by a taxicab operated by Harry Kelk of 819 East 213th Street, the Bronx.

Lloyd C. Griscom, Ambassador to Italy, was arrested while speeding south in Madison Avenue, near Fifty-third Street, by Motorcycle Policeman Culberson. In the East Fifty-first Street Police Station Mr. Griscom said he was trying to make speed to get to a downtown noonday Bannard meeting.

Mr. Griscom gave as security for his appearance in the Yorkville Court a diamond ring valued at $250, which he was wearing.

An Autumn bonfire near the residence of H. B. Smithers in Garden City, L. I., resulted in the destruction of an automobile driven by Andrew Reis, an employe of the Garden City garage. The boy was delivering a barrel of gasoline to the Smithers residence. The fire ignited the gasoline, which exploded, and hurled Reis thirty feet. The machine was reduced to scrap iron.

A limousine belonging to Charles A. Bates of 109 Riverside Drive took fire yesterday while the chauffeur, Thomas McKenna, was driving Mrs. Bates down Seventh Avenue.

Mrs. Bates jumped to the street in time to escape being burned. McKenna went into the cellar of a building to get water and fainted.

BLACKMAILER SLAYER GUILTY.

Carlo Maressi, New Brighton Barber, Convicted of Manslaughter.

Carlo Maressi, the New Brighton, S. I., barber, who on the afternoon of Friday, July 9, shot and killed Joseph Vina, one of two Italians whom he said had demanded blackmail money from him, and had held him up and beat him, was found guilty of manslaughter before Justice Kelly in the Supreme Court of Richmond County yesterday. The jury was out one hour and forty minutes. The penalty may be twenty years.

Maressi was one of the most prosperous Italians in New Brighton. When he was arrested after the shooting of Vina and the wounding of Vina's companion, Eugenio Parrenti, his neighbors came forward and testified to his excellent character and reputation as a good citizen.

"I am glad that I did it," Maressi said after the shooting, "and the world is better for it. They demanded $2,000 from me two years ago, and then they came down to $1,000, and then a still smaller sum. I am a poor man and I have a family, and I made up my mind that I would be one Italian who would not give up to them."

Maressi will be sentenced to-morrow. It was said yesterday that an effort will be made to get Justice Kelly to impose a light sentence.

John Donahue of the Tax Department had a bad time yesterday. Some practical joker put in a newspaper yesterday morning an advertisement announcing that he needed three stenographers for about three months, and that he was prepared to pay $20 a week. They were to call, so the notice said, at the Tax Department, in the Hall of Records, between 10 and 2 o'clock.

As 10 struck the first of them appeared. Being told that no one there had advertised for a stenographer, she said:

"Well, if you're a gentleman, you'll at least put up my carfare. I've come all the way from Bayonne."

Mr. Donahue produced a quarter, but as he was turning away the office boy announced another applicant for the job. He got rid of the second stenographer with a dime. By that time a large deputation of women of all ages was gathering in the background.

The worst of it all was that most of them were commuters, and Mr. Donahue's spare change was gone when he started the importunate ones for home.

Will Charge Chauffeur with Murder.

Assistant District Attorney Turnbull announced yesterday in Coroner Shrady's Court that the Grand Jury would be asked to indict for murder in the first degree John O'Hanlon, the taxicab chauffeur, who ran down and killed Elizabeth Bott at Ninth Avenue and Twenty-third Street on Oct. 1. O'Hanlon was committed to the Tombs in default of $5,000 bail.

DON'T BE A READY-MADE MAN
Why Custom Made Costs Less Here Than Ready Made Does Elsewhere
Because the uncalled-for garments we receive from the leading tailors of New York and other principal cities come to us at a fraction of their real value. Doing ten times more business than many Broadway houses and in our present location saving some $20,000 annually in rent, tells why we are able to give values impossible with others.
$12, $15, $18, $20, $25
FOR SACK SUITS, PRINCE ALBERTS, FULL DRESS AND TUXEDO SUITS AND FALL OVERCOATS which were custom made for $35, $45, $50, $60, $75
Every garment here is brand new and recently received from the tailor who made it. Your exact size is certain to be among the 3,000 here. If alterations should be necessary to perfect the fit, they are made by our skilled tailors free of cost to you.

Hart, Schaffner & Marx Overcoats.

Copyright 1909 by Hart, Schaffner & Marx

LOOK at the overcoats here pictured—notice the swing, the perfection of drape. The one on the left, 50 Inches long, has a collar that lies flat or may be buttoned in the "Protector" style if you prefer.
Our price is $50.
Top Coats, we find, are not in great demand, so we are clearing out our $18, $20 and $25 ones at $14.50.
Some $20 and $28 Raincoats, too, that came in late last spring are now $16.50.

NELL IN SPRINGTIME
Dear Fred—
This is just a line to go on record in the matter of SPRINGTIME. I can say with all sincerity and enthusiasm that I never spent a more delightful evening, and I cannot understand any issue for you and your wife except positive success from all points of view.
You already have achieved that artistically, and every one seems to have done his or her work splendidly. Mr. Tarkington and Mr. Wilson did an exquisite piece of work. Mr. Shelley supplemented it in an able manner, and your own contribution shows me that you are one of the two or three men in America who are producing plays and who are capable of sympathetic co-operation with the author, the players, and the subject matter of the presentation.
As for Mabel—I don't see how either Charlotte or myself can ever call her Nell—she has grown prodigiously since "Polly," and no woman on the English-speaking stage could have conveyed the simplicity, the tender, poetic sweetness, the pathos and the light and shade of Madeleine, as she did.
Your prediction is in accord with the entire effort, your cast meeting every requirement, and you certainly are to be felicitated upon this endeavor to bring into the present day of strenuous, progressive and virile drama a note of sweetness, a delicately colored and executed miniature in a sweet old frame, which, to look at, will smooth the furrows from the modern workaday brow, and bring back the whimsical smile of tenderness and romance which is always back of us, and which, when we look over our shoulders, gives us a few fleeting moments of rest and peace and contentment.
I told you last night that your luck was with you, when, nearly a year ago, you outlined the scenario of this play to me, and asked me if I could do it for you, and I then gave my opinion that it was hardly in my line of endeavor. After seeing the exquisite touches Mr. Tarkington and Mr Wilson have given to the play, the delicacy and the feeling and the purity of thought and motif continually so pleasantly before you, I repeat that I could not have done nearly as good a job. So you see all things turned out for the best.
Sincerely yours,
EUGENE WALTER.
